A Remarkable Scrap Book. One of the most carefully guarded possessions of the United States treasury is a scrap book that is always kept shut up in a massive burglar proof safe in the bureau of engraving and printing. Scarcely any one has ever seen it save high officials of the department. Its shabby outside gives no suggestion of the precious contents, yet pasted on the yellow pages are "proofs" taken from all the important counterfeit plates for paper money that have ever been captured by the government.

next to strange. Mrs. Testy (looking up from the paper)—Isn't this strange? A man after a fit of illness was absolutely unable to remember his wife and did not believe she was the one he married. Mr. Testy—Well, I dunno. It's pretty hard work sometimes for a man to realize that his wife is the same woman that he once went crazy over.—London Answers.

BLUE BROADCLOTH AND EMBROIDERY.

This is a model displaying much dignity and charm. For it's development blue broadcloth was used with trimmings of silk embroidery in self-tone. It is cut in semi-princess style with a tunic occupying one-half of the skirt only. This is brought around from the right to the left side and drawn up in a point to hold the draped revers of embroidery. An apparent continuation of the right revers hangs beyond this tunic to within a foot of the bottom of the skirt and is finished with a silk fringe. Chemisette of cream lace fills the front. Hat of blue silk with crown covered in breasts and wings of white.

FASHION STRAWS.

A New Jumper Waist That Serves Many Needs. Blessed be the one who invented the jumper. It serves such a multitude of needs. It fits in with so many occasions. The newest one is quite smart and looks so different from the ones we have had that it could easily be passed off under a new name. It is not round at the neck, nor does it have kimono sleeves. It is V shaped.

CIRCULAR DRAWERS FOR GIRLS.

back and front, and its two fronts cross over just above the waist and go to the back, where they finish in a flat bow. It is worn over a blouse of dotted net or shadow lace, which is either unlined or dropped over a slip of flesh pink chignon cloth or china silk. A new fashion notion is the use of a bona fide bath towel for milady's promenade costumes. This toweling material has been dubbed "garic" in Paris, and by this name it masquerades very successfully as a fashionable spring arrival, but it is toweling all the same, and the border effects in which it is used made the bathroom suggestion still more emphatic. The circular drawers that are made in one are much liked by young girls and small women who have slender figures. This model is an excellent one, as it provides sufficient width at the lower edges to be pretty and comfortable, and it is smooth over the hips. JUDIC CHOLLET.

TITANIC STEERAGE DENIED UPPER DECK NEW YORK, May 3.—That the steerage passengers aboard the Titanic knew nothing of the accident which had befallen the vessel until a torrent of water started rushing into their quarters was the testimony to Senator William Alden Smith, chairman of the Titanic investigation committee, here today by Daniel Buckley, age 21 years, of County Cork Ireland, a steerage passenger. One of the stewards, he said, warned the passengers in the steerage that they had better hurry to the upper decks unless they wanted to drown. Buckley said: "I rushed upstairs but found no life preservers and started back down but found that the water had reached up to the third step leading from the steerage quarters and was coming in fast. I saw a steward trying to lock a gate which would bar us from the first and second class decks. A man tried to stop the steward but was knocked down. Then we all rushed a little before."

The Mexican Bridegroom. The bridegroom in Mexico finds marriage a very costly business. He is expected to buy the trousseau, and he is fortunate if he can satisfy the extravagance sanctioned by custom and prompted by ardent passion. Young men from the country are said to be often seen in the City of Mexico purchasing all sorts of finery for the ladies of their choice, and the spectacle they present as they consult the measurements, which they carry with them for all sorts of garments, is very amusing.

TRY AT LEAST. Try to be something in this world and you surely will be something. Aim at excellence and excellence will be attained. This is the greatest secret of success and eminence. "I cannot do it" has never accomplished anything. "I will try" has wrought very many wonders.
