AMBLER LOSES DAMAGE SUIT AGAINST MOTT

A jury Friday in Judge Campbell's Court returned a verdict in favor of the defendant in the case of M. F. Ambler against Fred Mott. Ambler alleged that he was attacked and seriously beaten by the defendant October 19, 1909. He sued for $1,850. Mott said the plaintiff trespassed upon his land and when he remonstrated with him Ambler struck him with a hammer. Cross & Hammond represented the defendant.

Mother—Bobby, why have you stuffed cotton in your ear? Does it ache?
Bobby—No, Papa said that everything he tells me goes in one ear and comes out the other. I want to prevent this.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Caution.
An old north county farmer visiting London put up at one of the big hotels. He had barely turned in on the first night when the "buttons" rushed into the room and switched on the electric light, exclaiming:
"Make haste, sir! Get up! The hotel is on fire!"
The old man slowly raised himself on one elbow and, fixing the boy with a determined look, remarked:
"Mind ye, if I do I wanna pay for the bed."—London Answers.

Ruined His Stomach For Science.
One of the most singular things about the great nervous specialist Dr. Brown-Sequard was the way in which he saved his stomach for science, but injured his stomach for the same cause. "I never smoke," he once said, "because I have seen the most evident proofs of the injurious effects of tobacco on the nervous system." But his desire to investigate the contents of his own stomach by swallowing sponges to which a thread was tied and pulling them up to examine the gastric juice which they had absorbed brought on a rare affection, known as myelism, or ramification, which compelled him to masticate his food a second time.

CITRON COLORED CLOTH.

This is a delightfully rich and pretty little gown for early spring wear. It is developed in citron-colored drap soule with bandings elaborately touched in the same shade. These bands cross the bodice in surplus fashion below a yoke and collar of lace. Another similar band in turn crosses these, forming a bolera effect around the arm, while over the shoulder is a crushed fold of black satin. The sleeve which boasts quite a fullness is made of citron chiffon over self-tone satin with a cuff of the souché band. Below this and over the plain underskirt is a knotted drapery of citron-colored satin.
