FOOD FOR THOUGHT

There was a time in the first days of the City's larger development when much big business was transacted in quiet lunch rooms. Lately there seems to have been a revival of this practice which can be made both pleasant and profitable. Men are cheerful at meal time, trusting one another a little more over a cup of coffee and a cigar because understanding one another a little better. On such occasions they are a little less self-conscious and a little more tolerant of one another and of the city's general aims and needs.

DROPPING THE BONE

Esop, among his many instructive fables, relates how a savoricious dog, which was possessed of a satisfactory bone, saw, when crossing a bridge over a stream, his own reflection in the water. Dropping his bone which fell into the stream he sprang after the shadowy bone, with intent to wrest it from the shadowy dog. The net result was that the shadow disappeared and the grasping canine emerged dripping and shivering from the water a watter and a wiser dog.

number of local monopolistic charges, and its dwarfed commerce made a pitiful showing.

Live Wirelets (By Edgar Bates.)

A few good foot races, horse races, etc., would help out on next Booster Day.

Oregon City ought to have some of those Betsy Ross flags too.

The news of the school directors in eliminating the admittance fee at the high school graduation exercises is a good move. Graduation suits, dresses, presents and extras, are a burden to many parents and then finally to be taxed a 25 cents admittance fee is stretching things a bit too far.

Be sure that your vacation plans include chautauqua and the C&by Fair.

If Oregon City had a "boy mayor" his first stunt would be to provide for that swimming pool.

That the future of Oregon City is unquestioned is proved by the water commission bonds selling for a bit above par.

A great many students try to sell their school books as soon as they have finished the course. Put these books away for in after years you will greatly enjoy looking them over and recalling the days when you attended school.

In comparison with the records of students in other counties in Oregon, Clackamas county's pupils did remarkably well in the recent eighth grade examinations.

June 8 is the date—the eighth usually makes one think of mill pay day—but the next "eighth" will be one of the county's big days—Rose Show and Bargain Day.

A tip to the farmers—don't forget Portland's big apple show this fall. Now is the time to plan to make a creditable showing for old Clackamas.

Couldn't find the name of an Oregon City business man who took the trip to Tillamook!

Three more of West's "honor men" have taken "French leave"—how many are left?

Where is that Women's Room sign for the courthouse? What do you know of the industries of this city? The woolen mill makes all grades of blankets, shirtings, etc. The big Willamette Pulp & Paper mill manufactures newspaper while the Crown mill makes white and colored paper for wrapping packages and fruit paper. The Hawley mill products are newspaper, wrapping paper and tissue paper. The Enterprise prints the only daily paper in the county and does first class job work.

View of Portion of Auto Parade and Immense Crowd in Oregon City on Booster Day, April 27th, 1912. (OREGON CITY PUBLICITY)

The above picture shows a part of the Grand Automobile parade on Oregon City's Big Booster Day, held on the 27th of April, of this year. This is the one BIG day of the year in Oregon City and this year the day was a grander success than ever before. The people of Clackamas County like fun and they can well afford to have a big day occasionally, as they live in a prosperous county. So the farmers for miles around Oregon City came in and filled the town so full of people that no one could see the streets, but everyone was happy. The horse parade was a mile long, and when those beautiful steeds came prancing down the streets to the ragtime of the numerous bands, no one would have thought that horses were becoming unpopular on account of the motor wagons.

LOUIS BARRY HAS BIRTHDAY PARTY

Louis Barry's birthday anniversary occurred Monday and some of his friends and relatives decided this would be a good chance to surprise him, which they did on Monday evening at his home at Greenpoint. Mr. Barry was visiting at the home of one of his neighbors, and upon returning found that many of his friends and relatives had taken possession of his home, but upon inquiring as to what their object was and being informed, he at once turned his home over to them, and a most delightful evening was spent in cards, after which refreshments were served. Mrs. Charles Burns and Mrs. W. E. Burns assisted Mrs. Barry in serving refreshments. Mr. Barry was presented with several handsome presents. Presents were Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Burns, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Kelly, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Burns, Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Barry, Mrs. J. L. Barry, Mrs. C. A. Monell, Mrs. Agnes Silver, Miss Bertha Barry, Miss Harriet Baker, Miss Julia Baker, Miss Mabel Covert, Mr. Dirkee, Thomas Barry, Walter Kelly, Edward Burns, Leslie Burns, Katherine Barry.

A SCHOOL OF LOVE

By EMMA L. GOULD Mrs. Edmunds at forty five found herself a widow with no income. As Kate Downerink she had in her youth more offers of marriage than she knew what to do with. She had married Roger Edmunds because he was the last of those who proposed before she was too old to flirt. At his death she conceived the original idea of making a living by teaching young women how to get husbands. So she put out a circular in which she agreed to a stipulated fee to tell any girl how to get any man she wanted, the fee to be paid after engagement. This looked fair enough, and a number of young women called at her consultation rooms for advice. Among them was Johanna Ormsby, who stated what she wanted as follows: "I wish to marry Mr. Sam Trusdell. He is a bachelor of thirty-five and a woman hater. I have tried to make myself agreeable to him, and he likes to pass an evening with me for a chat. That is to say, he never is anything toward me but friendly." "How long has this been going on?" "About a year." "That's bad if you had but recently made his acquaintance it would be much easier. Such chronic cases need desperate remedies. In your case I see no way but to pick a quarrel with him.

"A quarrel?" "Yes, you must contrive something out of which a quarrel shall grow. Then mis-conceive something he does, or if that is impracticable, make the fight on no basis whatever, trusting to invent one, and if you can't invent one tell him you have been mistaken in something which has passed, but which now, since it is all over, is too painful for you to mention. In that case you will have the advantage of being penitent and throwing yourself on his mercy."

"But I wish him to love me. Why make him angry?" "To start him. The longer your relations remain as they are the more chronic they will become and the harder to break up. Since you are not an apt scholar I shall have to manage the affair for you. To make a beginning, cut him the next time you meet him on the street."

"For what ostensible reason?" "Cut him and leave the rest to me. Use the telephone freely, and I will keep you advised."

Miss Ormsby went away, and the next time she met Mr. Trusdell she saluted him with her nose in the air. He looked at her with astonishment. What could he have done to merit such treatment? He turned to look back at her, then passed on his way in much agitation. There is nothing that will so rack a man as to receive the contempt of a lady. She may fight him, she may plead with him, and he can stand it manfully, but let her contempt him and he is crushed.

That same evening Miss Ormsby received a note from Mr. Trusdell, begging to know wherein he had offended her. She called up Mrs. Edmunds, reported the matter and asked for instructions.

"Pay no attention to the note," was the reply. "But now your treatment of the case is getting me out of chronic indifference as well as Mr. Trusdell. I fear I shall make a breach that will never be healed. That would be dreadful!" "It will never be healed until you do as I tell you."

There followed a silence. Miss Ormsby felt as if she were hanging over a precipice with no one to help her. Nevertheless she dare not disobey instructions. She did not reply to Mr. Trusdell's note.

One evening there was a ring at the doorbell and a guest was ushered into the drawing room, where Miss Ormsby was sitting. He was Mr. Trusdell. The lady had no opportunity to consult her instructress. She must depend upon her own resources. Having no resources, she fell back on the general instructions she had received in the beginning. She stood still, said nothing and prepared to appear penitent.

"I have called," said Mr. Trusdell, all of a tremor, "to ask what in the world I have been doing to meet your contempt."

"There was no reply. Miss Ormsby's eyes were bent to the floor. Mr. Trusdell came nearer and implored her to tell him. "I fear," she said at last, "that I have done you a great injustice."

"Injustice?" "Yes, I am very sorry for what I have done." Her voice trembled. "Has any one maligned me?" "Yes—no. Let it all pass as something too painful to be remembered."

"Will you not name my traducer?" "That would only make matters worse. Do, I beg of you, drop the matter. I will do any penance you ask."

"Why do you feel so deeply concerning it?" "I don't know. I can't tell."

"My dear Johanna, do not trouble yourself further in the matter. It is enough for me to be assured that you feel toward me."

Miss Ormsby blushed and turned her head aside.

A few weeks later Mrs. Edmunds received a sizable fee.

SECURED WEALTH AND SOME PEOPLE.

(OREGON CITY PUBLICITY) When seven states realize an increase of $2,812,450,182 in the value of their farms in ten years, some idea of the worth of new settlers can be obtained. The seven states of Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Montana, Idaho, Washington and Oregon realized this increase—almost three million of dollars. The securing of two million more people, increasing the number of farms only 114,263 brought this added amount of wealth. In short for every person added to the population of the Northwest during the ten years there has been a corresponding increase in the value of farm lands of $1406.

The seven states now commonly known as the AMERICAN Northwest increased the acreage of improved lands 23,686,802 acres during the ten years. If actual comparisons could be made there is little doubt but that this vast growth of our own country would compare favorably, if not exceed the record of any other section on the map of the world.

Such is Life. Dugan—Oh, my, oh, my! Isn't Casey puttin' on grand airs wid his new automobile? An' over in the old country I dare say he went barefooted. Ryan—Faith, not be his own accounts. He says he had a turnout over there that attracted great attention. Dugan—Ay covey. An' ev'ry one always does.—Boston Transcript.

MOOSE TO INITIATE BIG CLASS TONIGHT

Another large class will be marked with the Moose brand and fully initiated into the big Moose herd this evening. With this class, the Moose herd here will number nearly 150, with expectation of being increased to 200 June 1. After the initiation ceremonies and regular lodge work is finished a fine entertainment is to be provided for members and prospective members. The entertainment committee has been busy during the past week and has arranged a fine program which is sure to be appreciated by all in attendance. The program includes popular songs by one of Portland's most popular sopranos, now a resident of Oregon City, Miss Bessie Morrison, who recently finished an engagement at the Grand Theatre here. Miss Morrison's program will include a late Moose song hit which should be heard by all the members. Jack McCormack, late of New York, a genial and versatile vaudeville artist of ability will render several character and ragtime selections. Mr. McCormack is now appearing at the Grand theatre and will be accompanied through the courtesy of Mr. Schramm by George Covell, a ragtime favorite. Mr. Covell is a member of Everett, Wash. lodge. Howland Headley, a Moose and a reader on the Lyceum platform in the Eastern States will read the original address of Arthur H. Jones, Supreme Dictator, entitled Mooseology, which was delivered before Portland Lodge No. 291 at a recent meeting. This address should be heard by all loyal Moose as it is undoubtedly a forcible masterpiece. It is urgently requested that all members be in attendance and bring with them any of their friends who are considering joining the "Howdy Paps."

The regular lodge work will start at 8 p. m. sharp and the entertainment at 9:15 when those who are not members will be allowed to enter the lodge room.

BITHIANS GUESTS OF MISS MOLLIE ROSE

Miss Mollie Rose entertained the members of the Bithiah class at the home of Miss Adah Hulbert at Gladstone Monday evening. After the business session refreshments were served, and a social time enjoyed. The next meeting of the class will be at the home of Miss Nellie Swafford.

LADIES' AID SOCIETY BUYS CARPET FOR CHURCH

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist church, which has been striving to assist in the payment for the carpet that was recently installed in the church, will give an experience social in the church parlors Wednesday evening and the members will relate their experience in earning a dollar, each one donating that amount toward the fund. During the evening a short program will be given. There will be no admission charged.

Increased Honors.

CORRAL CREEK SCHOOL HAS FINE PROGRAM

The school at Corral Creek closed Friday afternoon with a basket picnic in the grove, and was one of the most successful affairs of this kind ever given in that part of the county. Among the features was a flag raising. The Mothers' and Teachers' Club presented the school with a handsome flag, and the presentation speech was made by Mrs. Norman Say. Mrs. Inna Wood, who has just closed a most successful term of school, had prepared an excellent program and the children taking part are deserving of much credit for the manner in which the program was carried out.

The children of this district are taking much interest in the coming district fair, and Mrs. M. C. Young, one of the prominent residents of that section of the county, has devoted much of her time in interesting many of the farmers in that section in donating prizes for the fair, and already has more than $312 subscribed. The district fair will be held the last week of June.
