TAFFETA TEA GOWN.

This gown is one of the new designs for the popular taffeta frocks seen this spring. The surplice bodice is folded into a girde of the taffeta. The sleeves, in one with the bodice, are draped on outer side of the arm into a narrow strip of silk embroidery. The skirt tunic is draped, slightly to the left of the front, into another band of this embroidery which starts at the girde and is finished below the knee with several silk tassels. The underskirt is finished at the bottom by a broad band of the embroidery.

MODISH MATTERS.

New Idea in Wedding Veils Direct From Paris.

The latest Parisian wedding gown has a caplike adornment of tulle for the hair, with a tiny line of roses forming an edge. The veil is folded over it and falls in soft, crisp folds at each side of the head of the dress. The Parisian bride no longer walks up the aisle with a veil concealing her face. It is now a real factor of the beauty of the whole costume.

A charming waist of dark blue chiffon seen recently had elbow sleeves finished with Irish lace corresponding to a yoke of the same, and across the

For the Children

Two Baby Waifs Rescued From the Sunken Titanic.

© 1912, by American Press Association.

When the steamship Carpathia, which picked up the survivors of the wrecked Titanic, came into the port of New York she carried two small French boys whom nobody knew. They were cared for by a Miss Hays of New York. The children were mere babies, one four, the other a little over two years of age, and answered to the names Louis and Lolo. They knew no other names. The babies were found wrapped in a blanket in one of the Titanic's lifeboats. According to the stories told by survivors, a man passed the children into the boat just as it was leaving the side of the ship. Officers stepped forward to prevent his taking a place in the boat, but he declared he did not wish to go, asking that the children be taken. They proved to be the sons of Mme. Navratil of Nice, France. They had been taken away by their father, who probably perished on the Titanic.

Donkey in Lion's Skin.

A donkey finding a lion's skin put by hunters in the sun to dry, bravely clothed himself with it. Returning speedily to his native village, he sorely frightened his friends and companions, both men and animals. His appearance making such a great impression he was unable to withhold his great glee and brayed out his new-haws in boisterous guffaws. Forthwith those who had fled now turned upon him and gave him a merciless beating and cudgeling.

Later, while moaning and whining in his lonesome corner, his friend, the fox, gave him this advice: "A fine appearance may disguise, but silly words will disclose a fool."

No Laughter Party.

Great fun is caused by a party given by children to children where the rule of the evening is "no laughter permitted." Every time the rule is transgressed a forfeit must be paid, to be redeemed later on, and all games are played with the one idea of provoking laughter. Every child comes in some quaint homemade costume, a prize being given for the funniest, and instead of the usual decorations, absurd toys are placed on shelves and mantelpieces, such as long bodied dogs and cats, odd colored birds and monkeys, rag dolls, Teddy bears, etc., all in the funniest possible attitudes.

Slap Jack.

This game of cards can be played by not more than ten persons. The cards are dealt one by one and placed in a pile, face downward, before each player. Then in turn each one takes a card from the top of his pile and, without looking at it, plays it in the center of the table. When a jack is thrown on the table all the players try to slap it, and the one who does so first takes all the cards in the center of the table and adds them to his pile. The object is to obtain all the cards, and the one who succeeds in this is the winner of the game.

A Castle in the Air.

Featherly Flitter and Flidgety Wing, Twitter and Flitter and Warbley Sing Were five little birds who lived one spring In a castle in the air.

Each was as happy as queen or king, Without a care about anything, When the mother bird a worm would bring Each birdling had a share.

If a bee came by with a flip and a fling They welcomed him avily nor feared his sting, And they cheerily chirped as they sat in a ring, While the bee flew here and there.

When their little air castle would sway and swing, Then closer together the birds would cling, And merrily chirrup a ting-a-ling-ling, For the gladness everywhere. -St. Nicholas.

2 BISHOPS ELECTED AT METHODIST CONFERENCE

MINNEAPOLIS, May 21.—Dr. T. F. Henderson, of Brooklyn, and W. O. Shepard, of Chicago, are the new bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church elected on the 11th ballot, the result of which was announced tonight. Dr. Henderson received 562 and Dr. Shepard 532. The number necessary to elect was 524.

Indications that the conference will attempt to keep to its resolution of reaching an adjournment May 28, were shown in the night sessions, begun last night to cast a ballot for bishops.

BEST SALMON CATCHES MADE NEAR FALLS

The run of salmon in the Columbia and the Willamette rivers is now extremely small. While there has not been a heavy catch in the Columbia since the season started, the hauls at Oregon City have been unusually good up to this time and Columbia river canners received some of their supplies from there.

With the more limited catch in the Willamette, practically all of the Columbia river fishermen who have been temporarily operating there have departed for their homes, and this will probably end for the season the purchases of Columbia river packers in this section. Only three boxes of salmon, or the smallest amount of the season to date, were shipped by the Pillar Rock Packing company to its lower river cannery Tuesday.

A private advice from the lower Columbia stated that the hauls of seiners are comparatively nominal. Some of the crews were taken off a week ago and but few are now operating owing to the inability to catch more fish. The river is rising and with muddy water the catches are so light that they are scarcely to be considered at this time.

The market for canned salmon remains very firm, with many inquiries for the new pack coming forward, but with practically all Columbia river packers overboard.

Prevailing Oregon City prices are as follows:

RICH MINER'S WIFE SEEKING ALIMONY

(Continued from page 1) litigation. She also will ask that the monthly alimony be deposited with the clerk. About a year ago an order was issued annulling the marriage, but Mrs. Taylor subsequently asserted that she had not been served with the summons, although it was published in a paper sent to her address, and Judge Eakin reopened the case. An appeal was taken but the Supreme Court sustained the ruling of the lower court, and the case now will be tried on its merits. The defendant in an affidavit accompanying the motion alleges that her husband is worth more than $1,000,000, and that after their marriage he held a mine in Nevada for $1,200,000. She further avers that when they lived together their living expenses were about $3,000 a month, and that $2,500 monthly is necessary for her to live in the style she lived then. She avers that the witnesses to refute the charges made against her by her husband will have to be brought a long distance, and that from $200 to $300 will be necessary to pay the expenses of each of them. She also asks $5,000 counsel fees. Mrs. Taylor alleges that she began suit for support in California, in which she asked $2,500 monthly alimony, but the plaintiff transferred all his property in that state to defeat the judgment. She declares that she is wholly without means of support, and as a result of worry is ill and under the care of a physician. Affidavits also were filed by R. Y. Williams, a lawyer of California, who represented the plaintiff when ejectment proceedings were issued against her to oust her from the home in which she and her husband had lived at Santa Ana, Cal. She avers the property was turned over to Russell Joy and later to Edith Warburton Joy. A. J. Crookshank was appointed receiver of the property which is still in litigation.

CANDIDATES READY FOR FINAL EFFORT

(Continued from page 1.) ing car to the man or woman who obtained the most votes by the evening of June 5. A few weeks later a second prize of $100 in gold was offered. These prizes attracted much attention to the contest for an automobile is something almost everyone wants, and few have the money to buy, and of course no one would refuse to have a purse containing $100 tossed his way. Seven candidates have done consistent work so far as is known and the winners of the car and second prize will know they have been in a race. The Contest Manager wishes to impress upon the candidates today that they must deposit all ballots before 7 P. M. June 5. The ballots at that time will be turned over to the judges who will make the final count and announce the winners. Four new subscriptions a day from now until the end of the race would make any of the candidates contenders. Although the contest has been interesting throughout it is predicted that from now on it will be the most exciting one ever held in this county. POKER CLUB GUEST OF MISS DAULTON

Miss Helen Daulton entertained the members of the Patience Poker Club at her home on the West Side Monday evening and a most enjoyable evening was spent in playing patience poker. The highest scores were made by Miss Leila Hiatt and Miss Cis Pratt, who had to draw for the prize, which was a pretty Fairfax spoon, and was won by Miss Pratt. Delicious refreshments were served. The rooms were prettily decorated with white and pink Maman Cochet roses and asparagus ferns. The hostess was assisted in serving by her sister, Miss Bess Daulton. The next meeting of the club will be at the home of Miss Myrtle Parker, Monday evening, June 3. Present were Miss Leila Hiatt, Miss Cis Pratt, Miss Myrtle Parker, Miss Wynne Hanny, Miss Dottie Pratt, Miss Bess Daulton, Miss Nieta Harding, Miss Nan Cochran, Mrs. M. D. Latourette.
