Andrew Franzen, the poet of Gladstone, is suffering from a dislocated ankle. He received the injury while stepping from a car. When Letters Went by Hand. There was a time when fashionable folk held it discourteous to communicate with a friend through the post when it was possible to do so by messenger. In Miss Louise Courtenay's "Notes of an Octogenarian," published some years ago, she remarks that "when the twopenny London post was established it was not etiquette to make use of it for private letters. I remember my father's annoyance when a stupid London footman had posted a letter to Sir Robert Peel instead of sending it by the groom." "It seems so impertinent," he said, "to send a letter to a man like Sir Robert Peel by post." Invitations and their answers were always sent by hand. The Dignified Duke. In a letter from Captain Edmund Knox, written in November, 1890, he describes the Iron Duke's entry into Seville: "The mob took the horses from the carriage and drew him along. After a time a woman among them, quite six feet high, was not content with that, so she took his little lordship in her arms out of the carriage and carried him, kissing and hugging him all the time, to where the junta was assembled and put him down among them, saying she had brought them the savior of her country." Poor Richard. "In December of the year 1732," says Bigelow's "Life of Franklin," "Franklin commenced the publication of what he styled 'Poor Richard's Almanac,' price fivepence. It attained an astonishing popularity and at once. Three editions were sold within the month of its appearance. The average sale for twenty-five years was 10,000 a year." How She Was Mentioned. "I met Miss Knox today," said Miss Blundin. "By the way, she asked me if I knew you." "Is that so?" said Miss Giggles. "Yes. We had quite an argument. I happened to remark that Mary Simpers was the silliest girl I knew, and she—she simply wouldn't agree with me."—Catholic Standard and Times.

CORRESPONDENCE KELSG Mrs. Gunderson died Monday morning after a long illness. The funeral will be held Wednesday at 2 p. m. and interment will be in the Sandy cemetery. Work has been commenced on Mr. Howard Whipple's new summer home in Hood View Acres. Mr. Whipple has planted a large orchard. Mrs. Joel Jarl is the owner of two thoroughbred Jersey cows, which she purchased last week at the sale at Scappoose. C. A. Johnson has finished clearing and plowing three acres of land. Mr. and Mrs. Albert Rodlun, of Pleasant Valley, visited at Robert Jonsrud's home Sunday. Strawberry season has begun in this vicinity. SHUBEL The entertainment and ice cream social given in the school house Saturday night was well attended. The program was well rendered. Mr. Steiner has moved onto his farm again and is building a new house. Mrs. C. Hettman has returned from eastern Oregon, where she has been visiting her son, John, for several weeks. Mr. Berg has built a new house on his place. Fred Moehnke, of Elwood, passed through our city one day last week. Mrs. R. Gunther and son, Marlon, visited with relatives at Macksburg a few days last week. Mr. Robertson has cleared an acre of land during the past month, which he is now planting to potatoes. Philip Massinger has gone to Portland for the summer, to work. Mr. Klinger has been handling lumber and shingles the past week, for a granary. Henry Hettman has another piece of land ready for the plow. We are glad to see Robert Moehnke up and around again, after his operation. Crops of all kinds are looking good.

"MADE IN OREGON" This page of advertising is paid for by Oregon manufacturers and men who have invested their money in Oregon enterprises, men who educate the people to buy the products of these industries, and to buy what they need from the home merchant. The freshest eggs are eaten nearest to where they are produced. There is no excuse for shipping in state eastern laid eggs when we can buy better and fresher eggs from the home producer. Moral: Get more factories by supporting those you now have.
