Crushed Lady—I had an awful disappointment today. "Freddy failed to propose?" "No; worse than that, I saw a great bargain in shoes and had a hole in one of my stockings."

Mr. Badger prides himself of having some of the finest Jersey cattle in the state of Oregon. Rosco Morris has received a letter from his aunt, Mrs. Eugenia Smith, of Parkplace, who is in Pasadena, Cal. Mrs. Smith is much improved. She writes that the weather is much colder in California than it usually is at this time in Oregon. She will not return to Parkplace until next winter. Miss Anna Quick of Fort Collins, Col., who has been teaching at Hepner, for the past year is a guest of Mrs. W. T. Milliken and Miss Coulson Miss Quick is a daughter of Dr. S. T. Quick one of the oldest and best known physicians in Fort Collins. Professor James B. Shouse, superintendent of schools at Bend, Or., spent a few hours in town Saturday visiting Rev. W. T. Milliken, who is an old Minnesota acquaintance. Professor Shouse expects to spend his vacation at North Bend, Or. A chapter of the Kappa Sigma Pi, one of the best organizations of the day for boys and young men, is to be organized in the Baptist church in the near future. This organization has the working features of the Knights of King Arthur and similar societies together with the field, life saving and athletic work of the Boy Scouts, without the semi-military spirit of the latter. It embraces the best features of all the boy's organizations, and has already spread to Europe and Japan. Dr. van Brakle, osteopath, Masonic Building, Main 399. Laws on Dress and Diet. Britain's parliament used at one time to say not only what a laborer should earn, but also what he should eat and drink. The statute of apparel, passed in 1363, regulated the diet of servants, artificers and tradesmen. They and their wives were further compelled to wear clothes of a certain low price with no gold, silver or embroidery. If they did not possess goods or chattels to the value of 40 shillings they were to wear only blanket or russet and girdles of linen. Other laws of a similar character were also passed. Most of them were repealed under James I., but the last was not expunged from the statute book till 1850. Smoking Hemp. "One of the curses of the natives of central Africa" said a Scottish missionary, Mr. Crawford, "is smoking hemp. It is worse than opium. I knew a case where a native tied his wife up in a parcel and sold her for a smoke of hemp. I was told of the sensations of hemp smokers by a chief, who had conquered the habit. It causes a peculiar glistening enamel to come into the eyes and has the effect of making a man quite friendly one moment and the next he would like to stab you."—London Standard. Experimented With Poisons. When Antony and Cleopatra were contemplating suicide they made a collection of a great variety of poisons and tried each of them on two or more slaves in order to ascertain whether death was accompanied with much apparent suffering. One historian declares that over 200 persons lost their lives in order that the information might be obtained. The result was that Antony killed himself with a dagger and Cleopatra either with one of her selected poisons or by a serpent's bite. Just Remember. That a few drops of oil of lavender will sweeten the air in a room and a little sprinkled in the bookcase before it is shut up for the summer will keep the books from molding. MORAL FORCE. The world stands on ideas and not on iron or cotton, and the iron of iron, the fire of fire, the ether and source of all the elements, is moral force.—Emerson.

ONE GAME CATCHER EARLY WILL ALWAYS RE-MEMBER.

Ted Easterly, Cleveland's star catcher, remembers a certain game at Bennett park, Detroit, toward the end of the 1910 season. Ted was catching in good form and hitting over .300. President Somers joined the Naps there, and Ted hit him for a raise before the game. Easterly enumerated all his good points, and the Nap owner agreed to all he said. "I'll think it over," said Somers. Seven Tigers stole second that afternoon. Easterly didn't remind Somers of their conversation before the game.

BOB BESCHER MUST WAIT.

Manager O'Day Not a Believer in Stealing Bases Promiscuously. Bob Beschler, the Cincinnati outfielder, who led the league in stolen bases last season, will have a hard time of it this season if O'Day continues to hold him to his (Hank's) idea of team work. Hank is opposed to Beschler running the bases wild, as the little runner did last season, believing that it is a better game to wait for a sacrifice or another hit to advance him rather than play the game as the Giants do, for instance. Beschler gets on about as often as any player in the National league, but he must wait hereafter for that sacrifice or clean hit before advancing. Hank believes that with the team hitting as it is at the present time Beschler can get around without taking chances on the bases, and if so, one run in means two runs for the opponents to beat them.

INTERNATIONAL MOTOR EVENT

Annual Race For British Trophy to Be Held on Huntington Bay, N. Y. The annual races for the British international trophy will be held on Huntington bay, New York, Aug. 31 and Sept. 2. In the event that a third race is necessary to determine the winner the deciding contest will be held the following day. The club also agreed to hold the elimination trial races to select a team of three boats to represent this country Aug. 26, 27 and 28 over the same course. Ducked Out With Lame Back. Pitcher Drucke of the New York Giants has a lame back and says if it hurts it to pitch he will quit. Manager McGraw says a rest is all that it needs and that Drucke will be allowed to start easy. Cornell to Send Moakley to Olympia. Students at Cornell university plan to have Coach Jack Moakley go to the Olympic games at their expense. NATIONALS' NEW UMPIRE. Owens Has Powerful Voice and is Making Good in the Big Show. Umpire Owens, who has taken Manager O'Day's place on President Lynch's staff, has a voice like a sea lion. Though a very genial person, Mr. Owens has a will of his own, and the players say they would not advise any one to attempt to hold him up in a dark alley just because he has been observed to smile pleasantly when surrounded by his friends. The new ump is working behind the bat for awhile. His judgment is excellent on balls and strikes, and there has been no kicking.

At The Portland Theatres

Last Car Leaves for Oregon City at Midnight

The Musical Play Success, "THE SPRING MAID," at Heilig Theatre, June 6-7-8-9. The musical play success, "The Spring Maid" with the charming actress, Mizzi Hajos, will be the attraction at the Heilig Theatre, 7th and Taylor streets for 4 nights, beginning Thursday, June 6, Special matinee Saturday.

"The Spring Maid" comes again on Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday at the Heilig Theatre in green and white and gold. Through it sweeps color and beauty. Beauty in voices, beauty in the women, beauty in the scenery, and beauty, a delicate whimsical, peculiar beauty in the music. It takes the listener back to the days when he dreamed dreams, and all the land has praised the marshaling of so much color, entrancing harmony and merriment into one stage production. Everywhere, Heinrich's Reinhardt's operetta has been welcomed as one worth going to see and then going to see again for in addition to its laughter and music, wit and sentiment, it contains Mizzi Hajos. That little Magyar maiden has danced herself into the heart; her sauciness, daintiness and coquettish spring girl, Jack Raffael, Tillie Salinger, Dorothy La Mar, and others, but the character of the pompous, laugh-compelling actor of the old school is now played by Charles McNaughton who has been brought from the London production of "The Spring Maid," and has been the foremost English comedian for more than six years. There is also another change which Warba and Luescher have made in the desire to make the organization an even more brilliant one, Louis Miller, a lyric tenor of reputation and dramatic ability, now sings the stirring music falling to the role of Baron Rudl. The group of waiters songs in "The Spring Maid" have swept the country with fascinating melodies, and the rehearing of "Day Dreams," "Two Little Love Bees," "How I Love a Pretty Face" and "The Fountain Fay" will appeal again to thousands who have welcomed the coming of the better things in light opera presented with a great array of singing voices and an unusual orchestra.

In getting up the production of Rosland's "Chanticleer" in which Maude Adams is to be seen at the Heilig Theatre the first half of the week it was not the intention of Charles Frohman to dazzle the eye, tickle the senses and leave the minds of those witnessing the work in a bewildered state. To him the hosts of carpenters, electricians, mechanics and costumers that labored on the production were engaged on a detail of the play. To speak of them was to merely touch upon a superficial aspect of the play and forget the play itself. He did strive to give the work settings that would be worthy of it, and in doing so he called to his aid several of the best artists in the country. While no stress is laid on the sartorial dressing of the drama of the barnyard there is much about it that is sufficiently novel to arrest attention. For instance, a tric of stage craft creates an illusion in the barnyard where the action begins. When Chanticleer struts upon the scene he does not seem to be more than twice the size of the ordinary monarch of the barnyard. This effect is obtained by the enlargement of all of the inanimate objects in view. A kennel is as large as a stage house, a hayrick the size of a mountain, a wheelbarrow fills the space of an ox-cart and a hand basket is roomy enough to hold the old hen that brought Chanticleer out of his shell. This method of heightening the birds and the beasts is made feasible throughout the play. There are four scenes and it is easily to be imagined that they are all picturesque. The production is one that is being eagerly awaited. There have been many inquiries made at the theatre regarding it and every mail this week has brought mail orders for seats to the box office. The regular sale of seats for the production to be given here will open this morning and as it is expected to be very heavy preparations have been made to handle a long line of people. It seems a certainty that the work will be witnessed by all of the people that the theatre can hold.

WAY DOWN EAST, GREATEST OF ALL RURAL COMEDIES TO BE PRESENTED BY BAKER STOCK COMPANY ALL THIS WEEK OPENING TODAY MATINEE. MATINEE SATURDAY. BARGAIN NIGHT MONDAY.

GREATEST RURAL PLAY And Way Down East is better than the circus for most people. It makes them laugh as much—it is much more comfortable, and tells a beautiful story that lingers long in the memory. It is one of the most successful plays ever written, and this will be the first stock production of it Portland has ever seen. Way Down East pictures life in the New England rural districts and has been copied by hundreds of others plays—copied, imitated, but never equalled. It tells a pathetic story of a wronged and ruined girl, cheated by mock marriage and made to suffer for a man's perfidy, but who in the end triumphs, is made happy by a good man, and sees her betrayer suffer for his sins. The characters are all original and quaintly interesting. There is the hard old Squire, the Doctor, the Professor, Hi Holler (the children's friend) the village gossip and all the others so well known, and they will be played by the clever members of the Baker Stock Company, who furnished so much amusement recently in Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch. Manager Baker has engaged Jessie Shirley one of the best known actresses in the West to play the emotional role of Anna Moore Miss Shirley has been specially engaged for the one week only and her appearance here will be of much interest to many theatre goers. There will be matinee Sunday and Saturday of Way Down East, only the usual Bargain Night Monday. Seats should be secured immediately for there is bound to be a great demand to see this famous play.

ROSE SHOW PRIZES TO BE ON EXHIBITION

Arrangements have about been completed for the annual rose show to be given by the Clackamas County Rose Society, and the president, Mrs. A. C. Mrs. C. W. Evans, Mrs. J. H. Walker. The prizes for the rose show will be on exhibition Monday at the Bannock store, and the prizes for the children's floats at L. Adams'. The prize winners will be announced the evening of the rose show by B. T. McBain so those winning prizes may have them at that time instead of waiting several days. Auctioneers in England. The auctioneers of the United Kingdom cannot claim to belong to a very ancient profession so far as that country is concerned. Though auctions were familiar institutions in ancient Rome, the first in the British Islands is said to have been held about 1700, when Ellisha Yale, governor of Fort George (Madras), put up for sale his trophies of the east, and although "auction" was defined in 1678 as "a making a public sale and selling of goods by outcry" it does not appear to have been recognized then as a British institution. The word "auctioneer" does not occur before the eighteenth century.—London Mail. Wanted to Find Out. Little Elsie Francesca had been asking innumerable questions and finally her father grew impatient and said, "Oh, Elsie, I can't answer half the questions you ask!" "I know you can't, papa," she replied, "but I don't know which half you can't answer unless I ask them."—New York Globe. A Leading Question. "Mamma says you hide your age. Do tell me where you put it."—Journal Amusant.

Postprandial. "Judge Goodliven just went down the street. I thought you said he was attending a big banquet to him this evening." "Not at all. I saw him coming out of a fashionable restaurant, and I merely remarked there was a big dinner in his honor this evening."—Philadelphia Ledger. Thin Gold. Gold can be beaten so thin that it would take 282,000 gold leaves to produce the thickness of a single leaf. We believe in a greater Oregon, a greater Clackamas County but a greater Oregon City first.
