BOOST FOR THE CITY. Portland has an annual Rose Festival second to none in the world. It is advertised world wide and people come hundreds of miles to celebrate at this time of the year.

Oregon City cannot afford such an expenditure of money and time as its neighboring city, the metropolis of Oregon, but a little money spent annually to bring Oregon City to the front by some original stunt, will be money well spent and do more to further the future of Oregon City and Clackamas County than any other one thing.

Oregon City has so many natural resources; Clackamas County has greater natural wealth than Multnomah ever dreamed of. All we need to do is become generous; open our close tight fitting pocket books—subscribe to the advertising department of the Commercial Club; let the world know what we have, continue to advertise and then advertise some more.

Farmers Can Learn a Lesson From the Trusts

Credit System Can Advantageously Be Adopted by Tillers of the Soil

By DAVID LUBIN, Permanent Delegate from the United States to the International Institute of Agriculture, Rome

IF the farmer is eliminated our REPUBLIC IS DOOMED. The way to conquer the trusts is to take from them their great weapon of MONOPOLY OF CREDIT. You can dissolve them or do whatever else to them you wish, but they will continue. Government regulation does not amount to a bill of beans, and nobody can stop the trusts by such methods.

IN GERMANY THEY HAVE SOLVED THE PROBLEM THROUGH THE FARMERS. THEY HAVE SEVERAL METHODS BY WHICH THE FARMERS CAN OBTAIN CREDIT WITHOUT MORTGAGING THEIR FARMS.

One is by assessing the farm land collectively and permitting the owners to issue negotiable bonds pro rata, which are guaranteed by the government.

Another way is the CO-OPERATIVE method. A number of farmers band, and when one of their number wishes credit the others secure, with their lands, the loans he may float.

TAKE AWAY FROM OUR BIG CORPORATIONS OR MERCHANTS IN THIS COUNTRY TODAY THEIR PRIVILEGE OF CREDIT AND SUBSTITUTE THE MORTGAGE SYSTEM AND EVERY ONE OF THEM WILL GO BANKRUPT IN A DAY.

Better Owe It to Him Scoop Than to Beat Him Out of It merical Club are working together for a greater rose day. Help!

THREE YEARS' HOMESTEAD

Senator Borah is to be congratulated on the successful steering of his three years' homestead bill over the rocks and between the rapids of the conference of the two houses. The main principle of the compromise is that the patent to a homestead will not issue until after three years' residence—but of which term leave of absence for five months yearly may be granted on application to the government official, and on cause shown—Oregon Journal.

We can look for greater growth of the state of Oregon as soon as the country at large learns of this new homestead law. Dooley will have to change his definition of the law to: "The Government bets you 160 acres of land that you can't live on it three years." From now on more citizens will win the bet than in the past, although unless some very carefully worded provisions are made, provisions which cannot be misinterpreted the Land Department may find flaws in the law preventing prospective homesteaders from receiving patent after living up to the full intent thereof.

Oregon has square mile after square mile of land awaiting some one to take interest enough to settle on and work it, but of course this is not on these kirts of our large cities, but far back in the "unexplored" regions, but as good land as lies out of doors and as close to our metropolis air line as many of our thriving centers.

Canada's homestead law has attracted thousands. Oregon has Canada badlybeaten with a like law.

OREGON FIRST

If for the state at large it is best to use Oregon made goods thus aiding industrial plants and industrial labor why not begin at home and aid our own. By making the way of our companies here easier, we not only aid ourselves but each and every man in their employ. If ever, better times are to come for labor it certainly will not come through fight. More is always gained in any cause by applying sugar than salt.

A Portland newspaper says: The way to stimulate the establishment of industries in Oregon is to buy things made in Oregon. That method invites new capital. It affords wages and employment for more labor, skilled and unskilled. It sends more money through the channels of industry and trade.

We raise more than fourteen million pounds of wool every year. But we ship almost all of it to Boston, and buy later the finished fabrics, paying the transportation cost twice across the continent, paying a profit to Boston capital, paying wages to Boston textile workers and in addition, keeping capital and skilled labor out of Oregon.

We do not even use our own geological material, but buy it elsewhere. We imported $12,000,000 worth of geological products in 1911 and, as shown by the Oregon bureau of mines, we could have manufactured at least $3,000,000 or $3,000,000 of it at home, affording a profit to Oregon capital and wages to Oregon labor.

Instead, we bought California-made products and Washington-made products, giving the profit to California and Washington capital and wages to California and Washington labor. In addition we increased the cost of these products to ourselves by paying freight charges over long distances on materials that we could have made at home and saved the freight charges. We are extravagant in the recklessness with which we lavish our money on outside manufacturers and outside workmen. We are profligate in our carelessness about buying things made in Oregon.

MILLWORKER SEEKS $10,000 FOR INJURY

Victor Wasiljeff filed suit Tuesday against the Hawley Pulp & Paper Company for damages for injuries received while working in defendant's mill January 2, 1912.

The plaintiff alleges that there were pulleys eighteen feet above the main floor of the mill, and belts were run from pulleys to the machinery below, and in order to stop the machinery which was operated by the plaintiff, it was necessary to ascend to the deck above and throw off the belts from the revolving pulleys by hand, and in performing the work under orders of the foreman, his hand was caught between the belt and the pulley, and his right arm was crushed and broken and permanently injured.

Plaintiff further states that the defendant was careless and negligent by not having proper devices for adjusting the belts, and that if proper devices had been used the injury would not have happened. He asks $10,000 damages, for the injury to his arm which he says has rendered him incapable of performing work.

Heart to Heart Talks. By EDWIN A. NYE.

A LIGHT IN THE WINDOW.

In the potter's field of the Coffeyville (Kan.) cemetery lies the dust of the man who wrote the popular song "There's a Light in the Window For Thee."

His name was Edmund Dunbar. When Dunbar was a lad working in a factory late at night his mother always kept a light in the window for him. When he went on a long cruise as a sailor she kept the light burning, and when she died her last words were: "Tell my boy I will keep a light burning in heaven for him."

I should like to finish the story in accordance with the sentiment, but cannot.

Dunbar had an erratic career. He spent three years in the Minnesota penitentiary for bigamy and became a wanderer on the face of the earth, a vagabond.

When he appeared at Coffeyville he applied at the city jail for food and lodging. He died the same night, and letters found on his person identified him. He was buried in the paupers' graveyard, and recently what was left of his body was taken to the home of his childhood.

Such was the theme of Edmund Dunbar's life strain, but as factory boy, sailor, student, minister, convict and tramp it was mostly made up of minor chords.

On the stormy night of his death in a common "calaboose" did his spirit as it beat its wings on the battered edge of a worn and weary body look for and see the light in the window?

Let us hope so.

Dunbar was at one time a brilliant minister, an evangelist of unusual power, who stirred whole communities and always struck the sure note of human interest.

But there was a bad streak somewhere in his makeup. He was convicted and sent to prison for miscellaneous marrying and afterward went to pieces morally and degenerated into a common tramp.

Is genius aberration?

Or is it true, as Stephenson hints in his "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," that each of us is a double; that all of us, genius or otherwise, have within us two distinct natures?

Is man both brute and angel?

And is it only the angel that is within us that sees the light in the window?

In Spite of Them. "I thought you said he had three children." "So he has." "That's queer. He always seems to have a lead pencil in his pocket."—Detroit Free Press.

The Roman Forum. There were many forums in Rome, but the oldest and most famous was not created like a building at a certain time. The Forum Romanum was originally the lowlands between the Palatine, Capitoline and Quirinal hills, used as a meeting place for barter and politics by the tribes living on the hills named and on other hills near by. The development of this crude trading place and neutral ground into the Roman forum of later times was very gradual and irregular.

France May Have a War In Morocco on Her Hands

AFTER all the delicate negotiations which endangered the peace of Europe, but resulted in giving to France a free hand in Morocco, it appears that the French protectorate over the north African sultanate is likely to be maintained only at the cost of a long campaign. Recently the inhabitants of Fez, the capital, rose and massacred French soldiers and civilians, the pretext for the outbreak being that the life of the sultan was threatened by the French. Fearful barbarities were perpetrated upon the inhabitants of the Jewish quarter as well as upon Europeans, and some of the worst offenders are said to have been Moorish women. General Moinier, the French commandant at Fez, has asked for reinforcements, which have been promised him. One prominent French military authority says that it will require twelve years to subdue Morocco.

DR. MOUNT ATTENDS DENTAL EXAMINATION

Dr. Clyde Mount, member of the State Board of Dental Examiners, is in Salem where the semi-annual examination is being conducted. He will be there the remainder of the week, and from the information that has been wanted to this city on the winds, the convicts will be delighted when the examiners and the students have finished their work. To make it plain, the convicts who have defective molars, cuspids, bicuspids, etc. are the subjects operated upon in the clinics which are being held daily. This, it is whispered, is another of Governor West's policies. However, without reflecting in the least upon the men behind the bars, the gold that is being wedged in their teeth is probably the only honest gold some of them ever acquired.

MOOSE TO INITIATE ANOTHER BIG CLASS

Owing to unforeseen circumstances the Oregon City lodge No. 961, I. O. O. M. will meet in Willamette Hall Thursday evening instead of in the Elks' hall as had been announced.

At this meeting another large class will be initiated, bringing the membership of this organization to the 150 mark. After the new candidates have been through the forests to the Moose haunts they will be served with a substantial lunch and refreshments. A short program is being provided by the members of the lodge and a good time will be in store for all.

Organizer Westcott, who soon will leave this city is much pleased with the growth of the Moose lodge here, and with his reception by the citizens in general and predicts a fine future for Oregon City "Howdy Paps." Mr. Westcott intends closing the charter June 15, when he will turn the lodge over to the able management of the local officers. It is earnestly requested that all members and visiting members attend Thursday evening as matters of great importance to the whole lodge are to be discussed.

GEORGE MARLEY, HURT IN MILL, GRATEFUL FOR BENEFIT

Mrs. Henry Henningson, Mrs. Dora Hamilton, Mrs. Bessie Osborne and Jack Frost composed the committee appointed to take charge of the proceeds of the recent benefit ball for George Marley, whose hands were mangled at one of the paper mills. There were 125 couples at the party, and the proceeds amounted to a neat sum, which was turned over to Mr. Marley Tuesday evening. Mr. Marley will be crippled for life and he is grateful to those assisting in making the ball a success.
