THE SHASTA ROUTE

No where on the route of the Shasta Limited between Oakland, Cal., and Seattle, Wash., is there such evidence of the Garden of Eden, the Land of Promise, of milk and honey, as in the Willamette valley. This best of all western trains goes through hill and valley through three states of the Great Pacific Coast, still there are some one or more drawbacks which the Willamette Valley does not show. The great cities of the three states are all awake to their possibilities but none of them had the natural advantages to start with that are in evidence in the Willamette Valley but particularly in Clackamas County and when we sum it all up—in Oregon City. First, while Oregon City is already a great world wide known manufacturing center, we have unlimited power, we might say, going to waste, and very few of us seem to realize the extent of this waste. There is still undeveloped at Oregon City as much power as has already been developed. One grinder of the 75 or more in use at the pulp mills of the three companies uses more power than all the looms of the woolen mills employing 200 people. Therefore at the same rate, the power still undeveloped and going to waste is sufficient to run the equal of 75 woolen mills or employment for 15,000 more people—15,000 people employed, means at least 45,000 more inhabitants. Have you ever thought this over? It is a great problem, one which should have the brains of every person in the county. We should interest further industrial investment—we should cater to the further development of this, our one great natural resource, worth more to us than all others to carry us to the commercial elevation our other resources warrant, such as water transportation, deep water to the sea.

THE BOOSTER SPIRIT

Seattle is a wide awake city built on the lines of our coast metropolis, San Francisco—everybody on the run, business here or there, but still not to the extent of our own Portland. Seattle, however, can teach us all one thing—the booster spirit. If Oregon City people would be boosters in the Seattle sense for one year, we would let them all knock the rest of their lives if they wanted to, but we know they would not want to. We all say "we are from Missouri and you must show me." That is all we want to do. Come through with a small contribution to the advertising fund of the Commercial Club and you will be shown. One year's hard work at this time will do more for Oregon City and Clackamas County than all the talking about it will ever begin to do. We have the prospects. Let's have the game and name.

Impolite.

"Why wouldn't you put out your tongue for the doctor this morning, Karl?" "Oh, Emmy, I couldn't. I don't know him well enough."—Fillegende Blatter.

SUNDAY SCHOOL HAS DELIGHTFUL OUTING

Mrs. H. D. McLarty entertained Mrs. D. C. Latourette's class of the First Baptist church, of which Mrs. McLarty is a member Wednesday afternoon from 2 to 5 o'clock. The living room was prettily decorated with Scotch broom and ferns; the dining room with roses. The guests went to Magone's Park and after a game of croquet they returned to the home of Mrs. McLarty where they were served with delicious refreshments, all having a most enjoyable time. Present were Mrs. D. C. Latourette, Mrs. Fred Olmstead, Mrs. Anderson, Mrs. Gillette, Mrs. Spigle, Mrs. Maville and daughter, Mrs. Lenon and Mrs. M. J. Martin. Mrs. H. D. McLarty was assisted by Mrs. Martin and Mrs. Wm. McLarty of Greenpoint.

Who Really Knows?

"Who discovered America?" asked the new teacher. "Columbus," said one boy. "Lief Ericson," answered a second. "The Danes had a colony in it before Ericson was born," declared a third. The teacher hadn't been used to classes like this. She passed hastily on to another subject.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

What Aged Him.

An old woman on the car going home had a little boy with her. "How old is he?" asked the conductor. "Five years," said the woman. "He looks fifteen," the conductor retorted. "Yes," said the woman. "He has had a lot of trouble."—Atlanta Georgian.

Wily Willie.

"You seem to be an ablebodied man. You ought to be strong enough to work." "I know, mum. And you seem to be beautiful enough to go on the stage, but evidently you prefer the simple life." After that speech he got a square meal and no reference to the wood pile.—Detroit Free Press.

For the Children

Little Miss Astor, Who Inherits Great Wealth.

Ava Alice Muriel Astor, daughter of the late John Jacob Astor, who perished in the Titanic wreck, will be one of the richest young women in America when she becomes of age. By the terms of the will $5,000,000 has been set aside for her benefit. Muriel is now ten years of age, and the accumulations of the great fund will probably increase it to the sum of $7,000,000 by the time she is twenty-one. She will then receive it outright. Hereafter the ten-year-old girl will be known to friends of the Astor family as Miss Alice Astor. Heretofore she has been called Muriel. But always within the home she was called "Allice."

Conversation.

To play this game successfully two of the company must privately agree upon a word that has several meanings. The two then enter into a conversation, which is obliged to be about the word they have chosen, while the remainder of the company listen. When a member of the party imagines that he has guessed the word he may join in the conversation, but if he finds he is mistaken he must immediately retire.

To give an illustration, supposing the two players who start the conversation decide upon the word box, they might talk about the people they had seen at the theater and the particular part of the house in which they were sitting. Then they might say how nice it looked in a garden, and one might mention that it grew into high trees. Perhaps one of the company might imagine that he had guessed the word correctly and join in. When the conversation would be immediately changed, and the two would begin to converse about a huge case in which a very great number of things were packed away. By this time possibly the person who joined in the conversation will leave off, completely mystified.

Bachelor's Kitchen.

The players sit in a row, with the exception of one, who goes to each of the others and asks what he will give to the bachelor's kitchen. Each answers what he pleases, but no two must mention the same article. Then the questioner goes back to the first child and asks all sorts of questions, which must be answered by the name of the article he has given and by no other word. We will suppose that one of the children gave a box of matches to the bachelor's kitchen. The questioner asks, "What did you have for breakfast?" "A box of matches."

"What do you wear on your head?" "A box of matches." "What kind of a house do you live in?" "A box of matches." The object is to make the answerer laugh, and he is asked a number of questions until he does laugh or is given up as a hard subject. Those who laugh or add another word to their answer must pay a forfeit.

DESTINY.

Thoughts go forth to purposes, purposes go forth in actions, actions form habits, habits decide character, and character fixes our destiny.—Tryon Edwards.
