MISS TOLPOLOR IS LAWN PARTY HOSTESS

Miss Ann Tolpolor was a delightful hostess of a lawn party at her home Wednesday evening. Miss Sade Michaels, of Chehalis, Wash., was the guest of honor. The lawn was beautifully illuminated with Chinese lanterns, and the grass in many places was covered with rugs. Mrs. A. A. Price, sister of the hostess, assisted in entertaining. The following were the guests: Misses Mary Ross, Madge Brightbill, Edna Petzold, Marion Money, Evelyn Harding, Florence Grace, Bess Warriner, Flo White, Louise Huntley, Rose and Lola Price, of Portland; Sade Michaels and Messrs. John Weber, Lionel Gordon, Lorraine Ostrom, Edward Busch, Charles Swafford and Joseph Hedges.

English Club Gloom. Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt at a dinner in New York was talking about English clubs. "There is something very depressing," he said, "about the really fashionable clubs of Pall Mall, St. James' street and Piccadilly. The stiff dignity and the somber quietude of these clubs get on an American's nerves. "An American visitor to White's once said that the air of the place seemed to him to suggest that the king lay dead upstairs."

MISS WALKER'S PUPILS GIVE FINE RECITAL

Miss Louise Walker, one of the well known young musicians of this city, held a piano recital at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Walker, Seventh and Washington streets, Thursday evening, when several of her pupils, assisted by Mrs. Leon DesLarzes, gave a delightful program. Every number received a hearty encore and those in attendance were delighted. Mrs. DesLarzes' voice was heard to good advantage in "The Birdies' Mine," and responding to an encore "A Chirp Tragedy." Miss Walker's artistic playing was highly enjoyed. Her number were "Norwegian Bridal Procession," "Humoresque," "In Autumn," "Polonaise" and "Nocturne." Plans are being made by Miss Walker for a picnic to be given next week to the pupils of her class, in one of the parks of Oregon City or one the West Side. The decoration of the Walker home were very artistic, the color scheme being yellow and green, California poppies being used in profusion.

The following program was rendered: PART I:—Duet, Hans and Grete, Clara Nobel; March, Krogman, Percy Pollans; (a) "The Scissors Grinder," (b) "The See-Saw," Gaynor, Clara Nobel; (c) "Coquette," (d) "Evening Song," (e) "Goin' Gaynor, Evaline Whitman; (a) "Dream Fairies," (b) "Jack and the Bean Stalk," Maxine Stanford Ely; "Nocturne," Read Dorothy Stafford; Edelweissen, Heins, Fayne Burdon. DEFENSE SCORES IN PENDER TRIAL

ST HELENS, Or., June 6.—The state secured its first setback in the trial of A. J. Pender for the murder of Mrs. Daisy Wehrman and her little son when the mysterious hammer, alleged to have been the property of Pender, was ordered in evidence for the state, as the tool said to have been used by Pender in breaking into John Riley's trunk when Pender is alleged to have stolen the revolver for use in the murder of the woman and child, and its introduction rejected by the court. The state relied largely on connecting Pender with the chain of circumstantial evidence through this hammer, and its rejection as evidence by the court made a break in the carefully prepared chain of the officers, working on the case for the past eight months.

L. L. Levings, a private detective, who has worked on the case with Sheriff Thompson of Columbia County, was the witness on the stand all the morning. His testimony was the strongest yet presented by the state and was relied upon to offset the testimony of a number of witnesses presented yesterday whose evidence favored the defense in part. Levings stated that he was present when Pender was brought from Independence to Portland last fall by Sheriff Thompson, that he had participated in the questioning of Pender, and that Pender had made many admissions damaging to himself. The witness stated that he and Sheriff Thompson had examined the Riley trunk which Riley testified, had been broken open during his absence, and had afterward been repaired, that he and Ed King, an expert on rifle and revolver fire, had made experiments in the basement of the Hudson Firearms Company in Portland, with the revolver taken from Riley's trunk, and that it was found that, owing to a little gas-pit in the revolver, the bullets fired from the weapon had peculiar markings found in no other bullets from other weapons, and that these peculiar markings were present in the bullets taken from the bodies of Mrs. Wehrman and her child at the inquest. A technical description of the markings was made minutely and this part of the testimony was considered a strong link in the chain of evidence.

Continuing, Levings told of his visit later to the cabin of Riley and asking for the hammers in the house. Riley produced all hammers he owned but these were found to be not what was wanted and Riley was sent to the Pender cabin to secure a hammer there, and this when presented was found to have peculiar markings caused by scratches which, the witness alleged had been made by the brass lock of the Riley trunk at the time it was repaired after the revolver had been taken from it during the absence of Riley. This hammer, he declared, had been brought to him from the Pender cabin early in October, and had been kept by the officers as a link in the chain of evidence connecting Pender with the murder. The hammer having been previously brought into court, was at this point presented by the state as part of the evidence connecting Pender with the murder, but as the testimony showed that the hammer had been secured from a building in course of construction after Pender had been arrested, the court refused its admission as an exhibit in connection with Levings' testimony. Levings' description of the scratches on the hammer, however, were admitted as evidence before the jury.

The Word "London."
What is the derivation of the word "London?" The usually accepted one is the Celtic "Llyn-din," or lake city, referring to the historical fact that the city was built on a river that overflowed at full tide and half surrounded it. Other philologists have derived it from "lawn" (full) and "dyn" (man), others again from "lon" (a plain) and "don" (a hill). But the derivation London, or "grove city," seems more probable than most of these. The name occurs in wooded parts of Scandinavia to this day.

The Child, Father of the Man.
The late Thomas B. Reed when a lad was requested to bail out a small boat that had been leaking badly and was almost full of water.

"I can't do it," replied Tom. "It's unconstitutional."
"What do you mean?" inquired the owner of the boat.
"The constitution of the United States says," replied the future statesman, "that excessive bail shall not be required of any man."—Youth's Companion.

JUST HIS LUCK.
