Mexico's Persecution of Americans

Foreign disturbances are ably reinforcing Uncle Sam's domestic troubles. Some of the refugees who have just arrived in San Diego from Madero's country tell stories of serious depredations on themselves and their countrymen by roving bands of Mexicans. These refugees were carried from one of Mexico's ports to that California town on the army transport Buford. While some of the tales of persecution in Mexico may be exaggerated, the government at Washington deemed that conditions were serious enough to warrant it in sending an army vessel to convey to the United States all those Americans who resided in Mexico's Pacific Coast towns who wanted to return to this country. Possibly there has been no concerted action in these attacks by Mexicans on American residing or visiting on the other side of the Rio Grande. The abuse which is being heaped on our government, however, by Orozco, and other rebel chiefs seem to show that they would be glad to force the United States to intervene in the fight. Our government, according to Orozco is lending a hand to Madero. The only ground for such an accusation, so far as Americans can see, is the fact that we have stopped the exportation of arms and military supplies in general to Mexico. As most of these entered from the vicinity of El Paso, and as the rebels are dominant in the section of Mexico which is nearest to that town, most of the military material which crossed the border fell into their hands, by purchase or coquet.

Despite the provocation for vigorous action against some of our obstreperous Latin-American neighbors, the Washington Government is keeping its head. The rebels in Cuba are even more embarrassing to us at this moment than are those of Mexico, but we are making no threats against any of them. There is a point nevertheless, at which our forbearance will cease, and this point may soon be reached. We are steadily strengthening our forces in Texas. At Key West there was a general mustering of the fleet which may be called upon at any time to take action in Cuba. It is understood of course, that indemnity will be demanded from Madero and Gomez for all losses inflicted on Americans by the acts of the soldiers or rebels of their respective countries. But it is impossible that the loss may go far enough to precipitate direct measures by us to halt these depredations. Not since the days of 1901-05 has the Foreign Office at Washington had so many serious problems pressed upon its attention as it has encountered in the past two or three years.

Rules For Bringing Up a Successful Husband

By Mrs. JOHN HAYS HAMMOND, Wife of the Famous Mining Expert and Capitalist

THERE is one rule that sums up all others for bringing up a successful husband—believe the BEST of him at all times. Men like their wives to think well of them. MAKE THE RIGHT CHOICE AND STAND BY IT. THAT IS A LARGE PART OF BRINGING UP A SUCCESSFUL HUSBAND, GETTING THE RIGHT HUSBAND MATERIAL TO WORK UPON. DON'T marry a man for MONEY. If he has made it himself he is probably old. If he is young he has inherited it and is not fully developed. In either case you have poor pickings. DON'T be afraid to marry a man because he has been in love before. The capacity for great love is a gift, and if a person who is forty or more says he hasn't been in love I shouldn't want to marry him, for he would be a person WITHOUT AFFECTION. DON'T let any other woman influence your judgment in choice. CHOOSE FOR YOURSELF. DON'T accept any gifts except candy, books or flowers and a man's heart whole affection until the wedding day or near it. DON'T marry a foreigner. It requires a sacrifice of individuality. DON'T marry without getting the advice of a physician. The time will come when that will be obligatory. Also the advice of your spiritual adviser and your family. DON'T marry unless the man is HONEST AND COMPETENT in the affairs of life. DON'T abandon all COMMON SENSE in your choice.

A Norway Legend. According to a work on Norway, the scantiness of the soil in that country is explained by some of the country people as follows: At the creation of the world the angels whose duty it was to scatter the soil for Norway. Seeing this, the guardian angel of the land made complaints to the Creator. What was to be done? Impossible to start the whole of creation for the sake of Norway. "Come, my little angels," said he; "look carefully and perhaps you may still find a little earth." The conscience stricken angels swept the floor of heaven, and the little dust they found they gathered in their draperies and scattered over the Norwegian rocks.

How Caviar is Cured. The finest caviar is the blugna prepared from the roe of the white sturgeon. Little less fine is the sevruga, prepared from the steriated sturgeon. Both are put up at Astrakhan, Russia. According to our consular at Odessa, the roe is rubbed through a sieve with care not to break the grain. It falls into brine, where it remains for three or four hours, after which it is packed in sacks and allowed to drain. This is the only preparation given to the best caviar. The cheaper varieties are more strongly salted. Caviar is digested with each and is one of the finest forms of nourishment, especially for the sick.

Commemorating the Sending of First Telegraphic Train Order

Photos copyright, 1912, by American Press Association.

OFFICIALS of the Erie railroad recently dedicated at Harriman, N. Y., a monument commemorating the sending of the first telegraphic train order. That message was sent in 1851 by order of Charles Minot, general superintendent of the road, who had a special telegraph line run from Gosben to Turners (as Harriman was then called) in order to test the practical benefits of the Morse invention, then but little developed. The message read: "To agent and operator at Gosben: Hold the train for further orders. Conductor and engineer day express; Run to Gosben regardless of stopping trains." Before that time engineers and conductors on reaching a station took counsel together as to the advisability of running to the next siding on the chance of getting there before the train coming from the opposite direction. Among the notable persons who attended the dedication ceremonies were Mrs. E. H. Harriman, whose great country estate is in the neighborhood of the monument, and Frederick D. Underwood, president of the Erie. One of the photographs shows them on their way to the monument, which was erected by Mrs. Harriman.

WILDFIRE AT THE BAKER

Lillian Russell's Exciting Racing Play For Rose Festival Week

Baker Stock Company will be seen in Wildfire for Rose Festival week. This is the great racing play in which Lillian Russell starred for a couple of seasons, and afterwards Pauline Hall and in that fascinating role of the brilliant dashing young widow, Miss Alice Fleming will again take her place at the head of the Baker Stock Company for the remainder of the season. This Mrs. Barrington's husband has just died and left her nothing but a stable of race horses, which he had always kept a secret from her, and which circumstances make it necessary for her to also keep a secret from everyone. But these horses are her only salvation and she pluckily goes about it to make them win her living for her. Many interesting and exciting complications come up and finally the big racing event arrives. In this Mrs. Barrington stakes her all on the favorite horse Wildfire only to learn that a cowardly scheme on foot to have him pulled and lose at the critical moment. Then she gets busy and there are things doing fast. Mixed up in the plot are a lot of people including a trainer, stable boy, jockeys and the general crowd found around race tracks. After a thrilling suspense the widow wins out and turns the tables on her enemies handsomely. The man she admires comes under suspicion of working with them but he is also cleared and a very pretty scene ensues as she brings him back to her. Much of the comedy is furnished by Bud a diminutive stable boy who helps her beat out the conspiracy against her. Wildfire is a play like its name—full of go and ginger, excitement and surprises and in the hands of the capable Baker Company will be something Portland people can take their visiting friends to see with much pride—and also without the necessity of going broke to do so. It will continue all through Rose Festival week with matinees Wednesday and Saturday and the usual popular bargain night Monday. The opening performance will be today matinee.

THE INWARD LIFE.

The signs and fruits of inward life are the outcome of long, slow working causes running back through all our years, including all that we dreaded and bewailed as well as all that we welcomed and enjoyed, including also the outward and inward life of our struggling ancestors and the long and broad evolution of humanity. We must follow the hint. We must make each step an onward one. We must not interrupt our own progress.—Charles G. Ames.

Unwitting Police. Civilian policemen were the only ones possessed by Glasgow at one time. In the eighteenth century, according to H. G. Graham, "the whole safety and order of Glasgow were entrusted to the unpaid and reluctant burghers. Every citizen who was belated and striking marches composed for the beauty and fascination of the production."

CATTLE MARKET HAS STRONG CLOSE

UNION STOCK YARDS, Portland, June 8, (Special).—The week in the livestock market closes with cattle steady to strong, hogs holding in a steady way at the quotations of the past few days, and mutton generally easy at prices fully a quarter under those prevailing at the opening. The casing of the mutton market was brought about mainly by the unduly heavy offerings during the week of poor to medium grade stock. There was nothing surprising, however, in the latest developments in the sheep market, for the trade always looks for a heavy movement of off-grade mutton stuff at this time of the year. Cattle values at the finish were about a quarter above those ruling the first of the week. Best grade steers have within the past few days sold at $7.50 and prime cows at $6.50 and for the best in the two lines these figures were believed to be obtainable today. There was no trade today, however, in beef or in any other line, practically all the stock unloaded at the yards being contract deliveries.
