In only one inning did Portland get man as far as third base. In the second the Colts filled the bases with none out, but Cooney forced Fries at the plate on Coltrin's grounder. Noyes fanned Bloomfield and Wuffli nailed Kibble's sharp drive for a force out at third base. After that it was mostly one-two-three.

HITTING ALONE WON'T WIN FLAG

Heavy Batting Will Not Capture Pennants In Big Leagues.

LOOK AT BOSTON LAST YEAR.

Braves Were Second Best In Stick Work, but Finished Eighth-Good Pitching and Defensive Work Necessary In Order to Win the Gonfalon.

By TOMMY CLARK Several critics have come forth recently with the statement that a bail club able to wallop, whale or massage the pill will always be a factor in the fight-that batting is over 50 per cent burgh, Chicago or Philadelphia, ranking second in the league. The same club stole more bases than Philadelphia or Pittsburgh and scored more Louis or Brooklyn.

But as a vital factor in the race Boston's percentage was .291 against .427 for the club next above.

Boston was last in club fielding, with vent the other squad from amassing runs as it does to gather in the preclous tallies on your own hook. As between the two, furnish us with a weak hitting club that has a set of high grade slabmen against a hard hitting club minus the right pitching. A poor batting club can hit poor pitching, but the best hitting club in the business has its troubles when Walsh, Johnson, the crest of the mound and begins firing. Weak hitting ball clubs have won more pennants than one, but no one has seen a baseball club reach the top and stick with a set of second division slabmen.

A man forty-one years old, who has been near death three times from concussion of the brain and who shouts. dances, whistles and pulls grass on the coaching lines, is a wonder.

cussion of the brain. He was taken to a hospital four years later with concussion of the brain from diving into an empty swimming pool at Cornell university, and early last winter Jennings' life was despaired of for several days after an automobile, which he was driving, ran off a bridge. He had concussion of the brain for the third time.

Jennings' famous "Eyeah!" cry is now O. K. He is on the coaching line again with all his old time ginger fizz

The Cleveland team seems bent on disappointing again. The Naps, who were touted as a pennant possibility. did not get off to the good start that was expected. Matters cannot be running smoothly, for Harry Davis has placed himself in the game, and his troubles are sure to begin. No doubt the Cleveland owners will have occasion to regret the letting out of George Stovall. He would have fit in nicely at first base, where the team appears to be weak.

ANDRE GOBERT COMING.

French Tennis Champ Anxious to Play Americans, Andre B. Gobert, the French champion and bolder of the English covered court title, is still keen on visiting America this season. He would probably have come over for the clay court championship were it not for the fact that it conflicts with the English championship at Wimbledon. As it is, he expects to cross over in the middle of next month-that is, if the Frenchmen beat the Englishmen in the Davis cup

Private Brittan's Bath

By ARTHUR A. MURDOCK

Bob Brittan, private in the -th Pennsylvania infantry, was advancing with his regiment over a tobacco field in Virginia in a thin skirmish line when a strong force of Confederates issued from a wood beyond and scattered the Pennsylvanians like chaff, Bob fled with the rest till the noise was some distance behind him, and, fearing to be followed and taken prisoner, he looked about him for a place in which to conceal himself. Under some shade trees he saw a plantation house, and there he went. Hearing sounds that led him to believe the Johnnies were coming and spying a well near the bouse, he ran for it. The bucket was hung on a balanced pole. Between a ducking and a term in a southern prison Bob did not hesitate, and, catching the bucket, he jumped into the well. He went down in a hurry and when he rose to the surface, realizing that the other end of the balance pole would give him away, let go his hold, emptying the bucket which went up to the well house. Even in hot summer weather well water affords a pretty cold bath. Bob shinned up out of it and by bracing his feet and clutching with his fingers managed to maintain a position above the surface. There he remained for an honr, when he heard some one above, and the bucket was lowered. When it had been filled and was being raised, he looked up and saw a giri's face bending over the well.

As he had preferred a cold plunge to a Confederate prison, so he now preferred a girl to continued shivering. As the bucket passed him on its way up he emptied it and proposed with its assistance to climb up and trust to the muscles of a feminine enemy. With one hand on the bucket and the other clutching the stones, getting his toes in the cracks, he was making the ascent when he heard the girl exclaim: "Lordy! How heavy!"

Nevertheless the young soldier maintained his hold and slowly mounted to the well house. The girl, seeing that instead of drawing up a bucket of water she had pulled up a man, released her hold, and had not Bob with both hands caught the top stones he would have gone back to where he came

Southern girls of that period were used to startling events, and this one recovered herself rapidly. Indeed she caught on to the situation that a man was in danger of falling into a well and, lending a hand, assisted him on to terra firma. Bob stood before her dripping and shivering. "Well, I declare!" were her first

Bob said he was sorry to spoil the water for drinking purposes by making a bathtub of the well, but it was either that or Libby prison, and from what he had heard of Libby it was not a desirable residence. "Have you heard any soldiers moving about here?" he asked, looking about him fearfully.

"There were some of our boys here ooking for Yankees about an hour ago. but they've all gone. Are you a Yan

"Yes. Are you going to give me away? "I don't know. I suppose I ought to." "Don't."

There was no reply to this, but the girl didn't look as if she could turn over the unfortunate voungsters to be harshiv dealt with, and Bob, encouraged, asked her if she couldn't find a more comfortable hiding place than a well. She said the chicken house might serve; it was dry and not very clean, but the chickens were all out of it for the time being, and there would be room such as it was. Bob said he would prefer a chicken house to a prison so the girl took him there temporarily till she could find something better for him. She said that if the men-her father and brother-knew of his presence on the place they would march him in. Since he had parted with his musket and his pistol had been in the well with him he would be very easily marched.

The chicken house not being cleanly after dark Bob went out and got some sleep under a tree. In the morning the girl brought him something to eat and told him that the Confederates were occupying the region round about. Her father and brother had taken their squirrel gans and had gone to help drive the Yankees out of Virginia, and he might come to the house if he wanted to. So the men of the place having gone after Yankees, a Yankee domesticated himself in the abode and was made comfortable by the daughter of

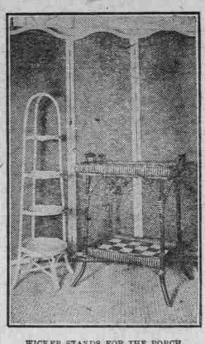

About a week after this a young Virginia gentleman, sporting a gold head ed cane, walked into the camp of the -tn Pennsylvania and was looked at curiously by the boys till one of them exclaimed:

"By gum! It's Bob Brittan." Bob gave an account of his adventures and straightway doffed his gen Lemanty costume, presented the gold nended cane to the colonel and reup peared in the ordinary blue of a private. After the war Bob went down to Virginin to visit that well, he told his friends, but they noticed that be brought back a wife. The only circumstance that rendered the married life of Mr Brittau distasteful was that his wife would always be telling of his appearance when she drew him out of the well, and she always spoils the story by inroads of great laughter.

A Sensitive Writer. Butler, the author of Hudibras, was no less noted for his pride than his poverty. A friend, who knew well the poet's circumstances, invited him one evening to supper and contrived to place in his pocket a purse of 100 guineas. When morning came the money was discovered by Butler, who felt much uneasiness at the incident Finding by whom the purse had been placed in his pocket, he returned it, expressing his displeasure at what seemed to him an insuit, although well Comfortable and Artistic Wicker Furniture.

WICKER STANDS FOR THE PORCH.

There are innumerable odd pieces of wicker furniture which have their util Itarian or decorative value in outnitting the summer cottage. For instance, tall garden lamps, which can be moved to any corner of the plazza or place on the lawn, are not only picturesque, but quite necessary when nature does not supply sufficient Illumination And here are quaint shaped book and magazine racks, tea tables and dower stands, which prove irresistible to the woman whose expenditures are not too limited.

The wicker stands seen in the illustrations are among the very newest things for porch furnishings

BEWARE OF THE TELEPHONE

Listeners at Other End Hear More Than Speakers Realize.

Not every woman realizes how care ful she should be when talking near a telephone in operation. The listener at the other end nears more than the voice of the speaker at the mouthpiece If one is bastily denying her request she may hear not only the civil words into which the person telephoning translates the denial; she may hear the original words too.

One day a girl having the toan of a motorcar for the afternoon joyfully telephoned to ask if the invalid member of a friend's family would enjoy a spin? As she waited, receiver to ber ear, she distinctly caught these words in the trate tone of the invalid:

"Who is it-Jane?"

Followed ber own name. "Ob, nother take ber!" greeted ber astonished ears, as did an ungracious "Well, what do you want?" The tone or the person at the telephone changed suddenly, however, when the tenor of the message was understood, and, though the invalid could not go, her representative actually forced berself on the girl in the former's place.

Washing Woolen Scarfs, It is an easy matter to cleanse at home white woolen scarfs and shawls. Prepare soapsuds by boiling pure white soap in rainwater. Soak the article first in warm, clear water. Dip it in the soapsuds and gently knead with the hands outil it appears clean. Press between the hands without wringing. Wash through fresh soapsuds and place in cold water. Rinse through several waters and dry it between cloths. Never hang woolen articles upon the tine To stretch the full length upon a towel and cover with another absorbs the water without stretching the article out of shape.

Miles, Long and Short, Considering the size of Switzerland, one might expect a mile to be about as far as one could throw a ball, but the hardy mountaineers think 9,153 yards the proper thing, even when, as it generally is, it is very much uphill. The Swiss is the longest mile of all, being followed by the Vienna post mile of 8,296 yards. The Flemish mile is 6,869 yards, the Prussian 8,237 yards, and in Denmark they walk 8,244 yards and call it a stroll of a mile. The Arabs generally ride good horses and call 2,143 yards a mile, while the Turks are satisfied with 1,826 yards, and the Italians shorten the distance of a mile to 1,766 yards—London Mirror.

TRUDELL CRAWFISH PARTY ENTERTAINER

A crawfishing party was enjoyed at Mr. and Mrs. Henry Henningsen and turning about 9 o'clock. Breakfast, was had when dancing and luncheon and supper were served during the outing. William Trudell, who supper was served. was toastmaster, proved a most lightful one, his witty speeches being highly appreciated. Mrs. Joseph Beauliau, had charge of the crawfish feast, and all voted her an expert in the art of cooking the fish. Ten dozen crawfish were caught by the members of the party and disposed of be-fore the return home was made.
