WHITE PIQUE

A new pique with narrow strips of red has been used for this smart model. The kimona blouse is banded high across the bust by a broad strip of embroidery. The yoke of the material is buttoned on the shoulders by tiny buttons covered with the material and buttonholes of red. These buttons also trim the lower portion of the blouse. The skirt is cut with yoke effect, which is one with the loose panel front. Broad bands of the insertion run down the sides of the skirt and the bottom of the panel is finished with embroidery and tucks. Red is used as piping for edges of yoke, lace bandings, skirt yoke and panel and cuffs.

A Butcher Shop Idyl

She was pretty and she looked soulful.
"How much is porterhouse?" she timidly inquired.
"Twenty cents a pound," said the butcher, a large, coarse man.
"Oh, I cannot afford that. I'm discouraged at these high prices." She began to weep.
"Take heart," murmured a benevolent looking old gentleman.
"I guess I will. That comes cheaper. Please wrap me up half a pound."
—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Retribution

"When the milkman went on the stand as a witness he met with retributive justice."
"In what way?"
"In the way the lawyers pumped him."
—Baltimore American.

HOP MARKET FIRM EXCEPT IN OREGON

There is a firmer tone in the hop trade at all world's centers, except in Oregon. While the situation here would call for growing strength were conditions normal, the working of the bear forces have temporarily caused some weakness.

With 22 to 24c a pound freely offered in California for contracts on the coming hop crop with the total output there estimated at not more than 50,000 bales compared with 90,000 a year ago, the outlook is much better with the exception of in the home territory.

Vermin reports are now coming from almost every hop producing section in the world, and this cannot help but cut down previous estimates somewhat. In England, with weather conditions still of an unfavorable nature, the prospects for a very big crop are much less favorable than heretofore this season.

Blue mold is scaring New York hop growers and short sellers owing to the spread of the trouble. All efforts to eradicate the disease seem to have failed and at the present time it is not considered probable that the Empire state will produce as many bales of hops as a year ago.

In the meantime short sellers with their allied brokers are about to wage a fierce fight to force growers here to contract at the lower figures.
