

OREGON CITY BOYS TO BE IN CARNIVAL

Charles Schoenheinz, Chester Simonson, Roy Baxter and Laverne Moehke, who several months ago became connected with the Arnold Show Company's band, are in this city visiting relatives. They will leave on the 4:40 train for Aurora, where the company opens an engagement for the remainder of the week. One of the features of the carnival to be held in Aurora will be a barbecue, and many persons of this city are planning to attend. The Oregon City boys, who are members of the Arnold Show guarantee their friends in this city a good time if they go to Aurora. Messrs. Schoenheinz, Baxter, Moehke and Simonson have enjoyed their travels and are running a race to see who gains the most flesh. Up to the present date Baxter has gained the most, but the others are close in the race.

Since leaving Oregon City these young men have visited many cities including Grants Pass, Medford, Roseburg, Corvallis and Brownsville. From Aurora the company will go to Hillsboro. A company organized by Mr. Arnold will also go to Albany. The Oregon City boys expect to return to Oregon City in the fall. Charles Schoenheinz is leader of the band.

UNIT RULE REVOKED; WILSON MAKES GAINS

O'Gorman and Culbertson, who held an earnest discussion with Bryan in a corner of the room. Bryan said his position was unalterable.

Senator Kern was turned to as representing the "progressive democracy," and as there was no nomination in opposition to him, his election was unanimous.

Senator Rayner in seconding Bryan's proposition spoke, at some length, urging a progressive platform, particularly in reference to the tariff and direct election of Senators, on which planks there was found to be a division of sentiment.

The 20 Roger C. Sullivan delegates from the 10 congressional district in Cook County, Illinois, were seated this afternoon by the credentials committee by a vote of 40 to 10. A majority report will be presented to the convention.

Mayor Carter Harrison, of Chicago, and Roger Sullivan, National committee man from Illinois, indulged in counter charges before the committee over the police control exercised at the Cook County Democratic convention. Mayor Harrison said he had detailed 284 policemen and 20 plain clothes men to preserve order, while Mr. Sullivan charged him with having planned to control the convention.

Senator-elect Ollie James, of Kentucky, at a harmony meeting of the committee on permanent organization, was named for permanent chairman of the National convention, but Urey Woodson, secretary of the National committee, and from time immemorial secretary of succeeding Democratic conventions, was defeated for that office by E. E. Britton, a newspaperman of Raleigh, N. C.

The choice of James was unanimous and by standing vote, but the roll was called on the secretaryship, Britton winning, 24 to 18. Woodson's high qualifications for the office were admitted, but the Raleigh men's friends were determined to honor him. In the informal discussion which preceded the vote it was declared that the choice would be without political significance. Those of the committee who remained to vote accepted this view of the situation. Woodson was chosen assistant secretary.

A vote on the chairmanship matter in committee was delayed by speeches urging harmony in the convention. Theodore Bell, of California, spoken of as permanent chairman, was one of those most strongly urging harmony. James is allied with the progressives in the convention.

The candidates of the favorite sons for permanent chairman were withdrawn in speeches, the keynote of which was harmony. Bell declared that he desired no office, but would go on the floor as a "common soldier" to fight for harmony.

It had been reported early that James had met with much opposition as a candidate for permanent chairman. Some of the more radical conservatives had said they feared the Bryan influence behind James. Many other names had been mentioned as a compromise between the factions. Senators Shively of Indiana and Lea of Tennessee were among them.

Senator Culbertson of Texas was offered the permanent chairmanship and declined it. His health is not good and he feared the strain.

Buying a Pedigree. A man who had suddenly become very rich went to live in New York and began to spend money with a lavish hand. He decided that his name needed some advertising, so he visited a genealogist. "I suppose," he said, "if I pay you enough you can trace my family back to Adam." "My dear sir," replied the genealogist, "if you're willing to put up the money we can prove by evolution that your family existed before Adam."—Lippincott's.

POLITENESS. Politeness is perhaps instinctive with some, but with the majority it is a matter of training of the slow and careful discipline of voice and eye and carriage. Under this training all the angles of personal vanity and self-consciousness are rubbed off, the person becomes adorned with grace, ease, gentleness and simplicity, and what may seem to the untrained observer as the perfection of naturalness may be simply the perfection of culture.

A Sailor's Yarn

By F. A. MITCHEL

"What's that ye're sayin'?" spoke up an old salt, taking his pipe out of his mouth. "Ghosts is all falderrid! Well, mebbey dey is, but ghost ships aint."

They were at the Sailors' Saug Harbor, sitting on benches in the sun. Some of the younger ones—young fellows of seventy—had imbibed modern notions concerning apparitions. The man who demurred, Bob Barclay, an old tub some eighty-six years old, was not minded to have the traditions of a lifetime thus demolished.

"What de y' know about ghost ships?" asked one of the sunshine bathers.

"What do I know about ghost ships? Well, hist, mates, and I'll spin y' a yarn about one, and when I get through I don't want none o' y' to say 'twant no sich thing, I'm goin' to tell y' what I seen with my own two eyes.'"

The old fellow was shrunken like a bladder with the wind gone out of it, and his voice was husky as a cracked bell. But he believed the yarn he told, and any one could see by the earnestness with which he told it.

"It was this way, mates: I'd left the sea and had gone to live with my darter in a seaport town on the south Atlantic coast. The apple o' my eye was my granddarter, Molly Sewell, as pretty a little craft as ye ever see. Most young uns haint got no use for old duffers, but Molly had a lot o' use for me, and there was nothin' she wouldn't do for me. The only thing I could do for her was to make fancy baskets for her, as I'd learned to do aboard ship, and spin yarns for her about the sea. She'd inherited a love for a sailor's life from me and a lot o' other granddarters before me—we was all sailors—and she couldn't get no satisfy yarns about sea life out o' me to enough, yer."

"One day I see her walkin' with a young sailor, Jack Barston, on the beach, and when she come in I said, 'Molly, air ye goin' to sail in that ship?'"

"What ship, grandp?" she asked, colorin'. She knew well enough what I meant.

"The ship I saw skuddin' before the wind on the beach this afternoon." "She jist dropped her hand down on my shoulder, put her arms around me and didn't say nothin'."

"I didn't make no difference to me her havin' a sweetheart. She was jist as good to me as before. Barston was as fine a young man as ever pulled a rope, and none of us had any objection to him. But he had to save some money to put a gal he'd marry into a cot, and that would take him some time. He made several voyages after he got engaged to Molly, and every time he come back he'd doubled his pile. At last he said he'd make one more voyage and when he come back from that he'd get married and stay ashore. He had enough to build his cot and buy him a good boat for odd jobs by which he could make a livin'."

"Arter he'd sailed away on this last cruise on the President Adams Molly come to me for comfort. She ailsus relied on me for that when her boy went away, because I'd let her talk about him to me as before. Barston was as fine a young man as ever pulled a rope, and none of us had any objection to him. But he had to save some money to put a gal he'd marry into a cot, and that would take him some time. "I disremember what year it was that Jack was due, but it was in the spring. Molly got a letter from him from Singapore figurin' out the date of the ship's reachin' the home port within a week. At the beginnin' o' that week Molly was very nervous. She never acted before about Jack's comin' home as she did this time. She kep' sayin': 'Grandp, he won't come. I know he won't come.' The first day of the week Jack allowed the ship would reach port passed, and the second and so on to the sixth, and no ship Adams."

"On the morning of the seventh, and last day a thick fog was rollin' in from the ocean. Molly and I sat quietly on a dune, I holdin' her hand to keep up her courage, waitin' for the fog to lift and hopin' the Adams would be in the offing. Arter awhile there was a break in the mist, and then, with all her sails filled, came a ship I knew to oct was the Adams. But a chill run over me, for I knowed there wasn't any wind."

"Molly looked and clutched her bosom with her hands."

"Then the fog slowly closed in on the ship, and we couldn't see no more of her. We waited, and I knowed if she was a real ship as soon as the fog cleared away we'd see her ridin' at anchor in the harbor. But when it cleared up she wasn't there."

"Molly and I went home, both knowin' she hadn't been there. Jack Barston had sent his ghost to tell Molly that he was dead and had died thinkin' of her."

"Molly never married. I lived with her till she got to be a tad of an old woman, when she died, and then I come here. Its putty high sailin' day for me, and I'm only waitin' for the wind to take me to the everlastin' port where she and her Jack are lookin' down on this here world of ours."

LAUGHTER. Spontaneous, happy laughter tells always of goodness, and the man who never laughs must not blame his fellows if they think there is something wrong with his life, something dark within. If the streams which flow out are only bitter the fountains cannot be sweet.

OSWEGO BLUES TOO MUCH FOR COLTS

The Oswego Blues had an engagement with the Portland Colts Sunday. The Colts put in an appearance, but on sizzin' up the fast Oswego team returned to Portland. The Colts' manager says Astoria, Salem, Hood River and other teams do not accept their challenge on account of fear. Oswego Blues are ready at all times for the Portland Colts, and will meet the Oswego Athletic team at any place or time. Now who's afraid? Address Charles Diaz, Oswego, Or. Phone Oswego 943.

MUSICAL SHOW AT STAR PLEASES LARGE CROWD

The Frank Rich Company opened at the Star Theatre last night and jumped into instant favor. The theatre was packed to the doors and applause and laughter were the best evidence that the big audience was pleased. The company is headed by George Burton and he is ably assisted by Messrs. Ripley, Earl, and Lewis and by the Misses Mandeville and Rich. The opening play, "The Mustard Kings," is one of those nonsensical plays that is written for laughing purposes only. There were twelve musical numbers introduced during the evening and it would be a hard matter to pick out which were the best. The same play will be given today and tonight and the program will be changed Friday night to another laugh producer. In addition to the regular bill Friday there will be the chorus girls' contest. There will be a matinee every day and two shows at night.

FULL OF ENERGY That's How You Feel When Your Liver is in Perfect Condition

The man or woman with a healthy liver is usually the picture of health. Complexion clear, appetite and digestion good, bowels regular, brain clear nerves steady.

But let the liver get out of order and the picture is reversed. You are blue, despondent, or your appetite is unsatisfactory, your food oppresses you, you have heartburn, dizziness, a heavy feeling after eating, your skin is scaly and your eye not clear. Or you may be rheumatic or gouty. These and other symptoms whether you have only one or two or several of them, indicate that your liver probably needs immediate attention—that it is not secreting enough bile to take care of your digestion, or is "falling down" in its work of cleansing the poisonous waste matters from the system.

Thousands annually visit European and other famed mineral springs, there to "drink the waters" and restore their livers to health. Perhaps you can't afford to. You don't need to.—Rexall Liver Salts contain the beneficial minerals such as are found in these waters, in pleasant and convenient form.

We guarantee that Rexall Liver Salts contain Bicarbonate of Phosphate, Sulphate and Chloride of Sodium, Lithium Carbonate and Potassium Sulphate. We guarantee that they will cleanse the system without purging. We have had the opportunity to judge their action and the action of other medicinal agents in many cases, and when we recommend them to you it is because we believe them to be an ideal form of liver treatment. 25c. and 50c. Sold in this community only at our store. The Rexall Store, Huntley Bros. Co.

Webfoot Camp of Portland will be in this city Friday evening to be guests of honor of Willamette Falls Camp No. 118, Woodmen of the World. After the transaction of business refreshments will be served and a smoker enjoyed. About 100 members of the order are expected to come to this city.

PATIENCE. There's no music in a "rest," but there's the making of music in it, and people are always missing that part of life melody, always talking of perseverance and courage and fortitude, but patience is the finest and worthiest part of fortitude, and the rarest too.—Ruskin.

Nationality of Electric Terms. The nationality of the various units of measurements of electric current is given in the Scientific American. The ampere, which is the unit of volume, is French, taken from the name of Andre Marie Ampere, who founded the science of electric dynamics. The volt, which is the unit of the pressure which causes the current to flow, is Italian. The watt, which is the unit of energy and the product of the volt and ampere, is English. The ohm, which is the measure of resistance, is characteristically German. The United States boasts only one electric term so far, the henry, which is the unit of self-induction.

Fire in Wedding Celebrations. In some countries fire is an essential in connection with wedding celebrations. For example, in Persia, among the Zoroastrians, the ritual is read in the front of a fire. In Nicaragua the priest, taking the contracting parties by the little finger, leads them to an apartment where a fire is lighted and there instructs the bride in her duties, extinguishing the fire by way of conclusion. In Japan the woman kindles a torch, and the bridegroom lights one from it, the playthings of the bride being burned on the spot.

HARRY CLARK MUST SERVE PRISON TERM

Harry Clark, the Indian half-breed, who was arrested while robbing a store in Mount Pleasant Monday night, will be taken to the penitentiary in Salem Saturday. Judge Campbell Wednesday revoked Clark's parole. He had been convicted of robbery and sentenced to serve from one to seven years in the penitentiary. For several months after being paroled Clark led an exemplary life, and it was thought that his reformation was complete. In granting the parole Judge Campbell told Clark he must abstain from intoxicating liquors and if he drank again he would be sent to the penitentiary. He was under the influence of liquor when arrested by Sheriff Mass and Policeman Frost.
