Wearled, but happy and confident of victory in the coming campaign, the delegates to the Democratic national convention dispersed to their homes today. They had nominated a ticket which it was admitted, represented both wings of the party and the party declarations of principles, adopted unanimously, was one of the most advanced ever taken by a national par-

The scenes that accompanied the closing of the convention were in decided contrast to the tumultuous sessions of the week that had preceded them. The fight was taken out of both sides. The only dramatic incident was the great "valadictory" of William Jennings Bryan, delivered shortly after I o'clock this morning, which brought his devoted followers to their feet in what proved to be the final demonstration of the long drawn out convention.

The Star Spangled Banner -Long May It Wave

NE HUNDRED years ago marked the beginning of the war of 1812, a conflict which was made memora-ble by the successes of the American forces on the seas and which toward its close gave rise to the incident that led to the writing of "The Star Spangled Banner," the song now generally regarded as our incident that led to the writing of "The Star Spangled Banner," the song now generally regarded as our national anthem. This ppem was written by Francis Scott Key, an attorney who had gone to the British fleet in Chesapeake bay under a flag of truce in an effort to arrange for the release of a prisoner of war. Mr. Key was detained on board a ship while the attack was made on Baltimore, Sept. 10, 1814. The flag was still flying when darkness hid the scene, and toward morning the firing ceased. Key knew that the battle was over, but he did not know which side was victorious, and while pacing the deck of the British vessel in restless anxiety he thought of the theme and composed most of the lines of "The Star Spangled Banner." When dawn came he saw the flag still waving. When dawn came he saw the flag still waving.

PORTLAND MAN WED

A pretty but quiet wedding was solemnized Wednesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Reddaway on • Seventh and Monroe streets, when the only daughter of Mr. Reddaway, Miss 🔷 Eva Reddaway .of Portland, became • the bride of Robert C. Beach, of Portland, the ceremony being performed at 11 o'clock a. m. by Rev. J. R. Landsborough, pastor of the Presbyterian church. Only relatives of the contracting parties attended. The bride was beautifully attired in white silk mulle with Chantilla lace trimmings, and carried white carnations. The ceremony was perfomed beneath a floral bell of Red Rambler roses and white iris blossims. The decorations of the living room, where the ceremony was perfomed, were artistic with roses and potted ferns, while the dining room was in pink carnations and ferns, the rooms being separated by an archway formed of roses and . white iris.

The ceremony was followed by a delicious dinner, the table being decorated in their colored comedy ed with smilax and pink carnations, after which Mr. and Mrs. Beach left • musical act. on their honeymoon for Seattle, and Victoria, and upon their return will reside in Portland.

The bride has many friends in this city, where she lived before moving to Portland, four years ago. She is the only daughter of George Reddaway, and is a most estimable young woman.

The bridegroom has made Portland the county, died at the Bean home at his home for some time, where he is day. Gladstone Wednesday evening, Dr. engaged in business. He also is a prominent musician.
