TERMINAL RATES

The Oregon City Terminal Rate Association is if nothing else getting Oregon City on the freight map of the country. The work on terminal rates has brought to the attention of the commission the exorbitant rates effective between Portland to Oregon City on the first four classes and an order from them demanding reduction to living rates.

As soon as the Supreme Court decides the case now before it as the validity of the fourth section of the interstate commerce act regarding long and short haul rates, Oregon City may expect further action in her favor. Terminal Rates which will not only aid our present business but bring to our city new enterprises, the greatest stimulant to greater prosperity.

OREGON CITY A SHIPPING POINT

Oregon City ships 300 tons per day of manufactured goods and many tons of farm products. Oregon City receives 700 tons per day of logs and other raw materials for its industries and many tons of supplies for its stores and business houses. It is safe to say therefore that Oregon City handles 1000 tons per day of freight or 310,000 tons per annum or in other figures 620,000,000 pounds. Some freight and the Clackamas Southern opens a new district to increase this tonnage.

When a man gets off on the wrong foot and is shown he is in the wrong, everyone knowing the error he has made he grabs for the straw to save his life and by so doing makes even greater error to the chagrin of his friends, if he has any left and the amusement of others. But then he is the law partner of W. S. U'Ren. 'Nuf sed.'

SLAYS HER CHILD AND SHOTS SELF

fore the woman shot again, the bullet crashing through the back of his head killing him instantly.

Hardly had she fallen to the floor when the police ran up the steps and broke into the house. The little boy's shirt was afire. Detective Tichnor, who reached the room in the rear first put out the blaze with his hands. Thinking that the little fellow was only wounded he lifted him up. The lad however, was dead.

Mrs. Walsh was still breathing but with much difficulty. The Red Cross ambulance was called and made the run in record time, and the woman was rushed to the St. Vincent's hospital, where she was operated upon by Doctors Holt and Van Dusen, acting city physician.

One peculiar incident of the tragedy was recorded just after the woman had been carried down the steps to the waiting ambulance. Mrs. Martha Christensen, an elderly woman who lives at 1253 Greeley station, walked up the steps and started into the house when she was stopped by the police she persisted in trying to get past Mrs. Christensen, it is said, is an old friend of the Walsh family, at one time Mrs. Nettie Walsh having lived at her home.

"You can't come in here," she was told. "Why not? Oh, I just know something dreadful has happened," cried Mrs. Christensen.

When she was told that a murder had been committed in the house the woman almost collapsed. "Oh, I knew something like this would happen," she sobbed. "Last night I dreamed that little Vincent had been carried down the steps. So I left the house without hardly touching breakfast and came here. Oh, it's so strange that I dreamed about it, and now the little boy is dead and Nettie is dying."

She was allowed to go into the bedroom, where she attempted to comfort the husband.

"A Nature Student," said a well known coffee broker recently, "you should exercise the same keen discretion which the druggist showed."

"A woman, you know, a woman well on in years, entered a druggist's and said: "Have you got any creams for restoring the complexion?" "Restoring, miss? You mean preserving," said the druggist heartily. "And he then sold the woman $17 worth of complexion creams."—Washington Star.

England Is Enthusiastic Over a New Hydroaeroplane

Photos copyright, 1912, by American Press Association.

THOUGH later than Americans to take up experiments with hydroaeroplanes, the English are now enthusiastic over the successful maneuvers of the machine which was tested at the recent naval review in Weymouth bay. It is described as having "the powers of an albatross, able to fly over the water, float upon it and rise again." King George watched the evolutions of the craft, which located the royal yacht in a thick fog and later alighted on the water near the yacht and disembarked an officer who delivered a message to the king. The naval authorities declare that in the new invention, for which an Englishman is responsible, Great Britain has the most remarkable and satisfactory machine of its kind in the world, "that other powers have been left behind in the race for aerial supremacy" and that "the British waterplane has already performed feats completely altering the conditions possible in naval warfare." And yet a month or so before the Weymouth review an American aviator, Frank Coffey, performed feats equally remarkable in New York harbor. The upper of the two photographs shows the waterplane towed on a boat, the lower just rising from the water.

THE GRAND PROMOTER

By M. QUAD Copyright, 1912, by Associated Literary Press.

Major Crofoot, grand promoter and general organizer and debt shirker, was a little late in reaching his office. He had mounted the stairs in his usual cautious way and decided that the coast was clear, when he got a surprise. The cobbler to whom he had been owing $2 for two or three years was not only waiting at the door, but his state of mind was such that he saluted the major with: "By golly, but I believe you vas run away and don't neffer come back any more."

"Can this be my dear old friend Wasserman?" exclaimed the major as he extended his hand. "Good hands, but where have you been for the last year?" "I haf been hunting for you!" was the blunt reply. "You owe me $2 and I haf run my legs off almost to get dot money. If you vas in your office when I knocked on der door you don't open him. If you see me on der street you run away. I wait for you here dis morning and we shall settle oop or haf some fights!"

"Fights, fights! My dear Mr. Wasserman, don't get excited. Come right into my office and we'll talk it over. I've had a check lying on my desk for you for the last six months."

"I don't want some talk mit you!" said the cobbler as he refused a chair. "I shall take my $2 and go right away."

"I hope and trust you won't," gently replied the promoter as he backed up to the rusty coat stove to get cold. "In the old days when I was hard up and had few friends you did some work for me, and you did not demand the ready cash. In fact, you trusted to my honor, or, reposed confidence in my financial integrity. It is one of the things I love to remember."

"You said you would pay me in two days," protested the cobbler as his nostrils continued to stand up. "If I did the fact has slipped my mind. It is only a trifling detail, however, Mr. Wasserman, I presume you have heard of the great change in my financial condition? You have not consulted me, but you will as soon as—"

PRICE OF SUGAR ADVANCES 10 CENTS

The expected advance in the sugar market came Tuesday, the jobbers in Portland raising quotations on all grades of the refined product 10 cents a hundred, and it was intimated that a further lift in prices was liable to come at any time. The Eastern market now is 20 cents above the range quoted a week ago.

For two weeks or more there has been a generally strong feeling in the sugar market. On the Atlantic seaboard statistics compiled by the leading importers indicated that the output this year in some of the most important producing countries, notably Cuba, would fall considerably short of the predictions made a few months ago, and as the time passed and the movement of the commodity seemed to bear out these predictions the market steadily stiffened. That it will go well above the present level before the end of the season now is counted all but a certainty.

Another bullish factor of no small importance in the sugar market is the usual heavy increase in the demand during the summer months, when requiring operations reach their maximum. In the East the regular summer demand for sugar is reported to have set in with a rush, in the face of supplies available actually short of the showing at this time a year ago.

Reports from Cuba that the condition of the American market is felt in the island in no uncertain way. Instead of selling freely the big producers there are said to be holding back, confident that the market from now on will show an upward tendency.

From Europe come reports of steady firm beet sugar markets, which also tend to keep the American market in a firm position.

Sermon of Three Hours and a Half. Charles H. was wont in his humorous way to say of his chaplain, Dr. Barrow, that he was the most unflinching preacher in England because he exhausted every subject and left no room for others to come after him. It was indeed too much the doctor's way. When he got hold of a topic he never knew how to leave anything unsaid about it. One of his best discourses, that on the duty and reward of bounty to the poor, actually took up three and a half hours in delivering.
