Citizens Declare That Plot To Assassinate Gambler Was In Wide Circulation In Resorts

NEW YORK, July 19.—Private detectives were brought into the Rosenthal murder case today by District Attorney Whitman. They were engaged by a committee of citizens who shared the prosecutor's dissatisfaction with the lack of results achieved by the police in tracing the slayers of the gambler who was shot after making charges of police partnership with gamblers.

In connection with the bringing of these outside agencies attention was called to what were declared lamentable omissions by the police in guarding against the escape of Rosenthal's slayers Monday night and lack of properly directed activity since.

It is said the story that Rosenthal was to be killed was in wide circulation in East Side resorts Monday night but that if any report of it reached headquarters no measures were taken to protect the gambler.

It was commented on that six policemen near by did not fire a shot or blow a whistle to stop the murder party after the shooting; that the number of the "murder car" was reported four different ways—all erroneous—by as many policemen while citizens got it right; that it was left to the District Attorney to uncover most of the important evidence so far available; that men known to have talked over the prospective assassination of Rosenthal the day before it occurred either have not been arrested or were taken and let go on small bail, or, in the case of one, held only because the District Attorney insisted upon it.

The independent course of the District Attorney was indicated today when he summoned Louis Libbey and William Shapira, owners of the automobile used by the murder party, and heard them make what may be important disclosures in support of the theory of connection between the

DARROW WITNESS GIVES LECTURE

Agreement Reached, He Declares, Before Exposure—Christianity And Anarchy Are Compared

LOS ANGELES, July 19.—Lincoln Steffens and District Attorney Fredericks faced each other as antagonists nearly four hours today in the bribery trial of Clarence S. Darrow. The question of the rightfulness of the doctrines expounded by Steffens—that what he designated as social crimes as dynamiting should be treated instead, subordinated the question of the guilt or innocence of Darrow.

Introduced by himself at the very beginning of his cross-examination was "worse than an avowed anarchist—a man who believed in Christianity," Steffens discussed his economic beliefs, often disregarding the objections of the defense's attorneys as he did the pointed thrusts of the prosecutor.

Asked in redirect examination what he meant by his reply as to his beliefs, Steffens declared that he was worse than an anarchist in the sense that he was more radical, for while anarchy demanded love and charity in addition.

Lincoln Steffens, magazine writer, continued on the witness stand in the Darrow trial today, Earl Rogers, chief counsel for the defense, directing his examination.

Steffens' testimony throughout outlined his personal efforts to secure an agreement that would end the trial of the McNamara brothers for dynamiting the Los Angeles Times building. He explained the connection of Clarence Darrow with the negotiations for the conclusion of the case; told of his interviews with leading business men of Los Angeles to secure their consent to a plan for the brothers to plead guilty, and recounted Darrow's insistence throughout the entire negotiations that both men, if possible should be saved from the gallows, arguing that one "victim" to the state was sufficient.

Steffens' testimony furnished one of

Dr. C. H. Chapman To Deliver An Address In Morning—Gladstone Club Finally Loses Game

Unconsciously disproving the general American theory that the Englishman has no sense of humor and at the same time driving some good common-sense conclusions into his audience of more than 2000 persons, Dr. William Spurgeon, the well-known London minister, Friday afternoon convinced his American brethren that he knew a few things about "Married People and People About to Marry." In semi-humorous vein he sympathized with old maids, advised old bachelors to "get busy," took a friendly dig at meddling mother-in-laws, whom the British declared are largely responsible for the American divorce evil, and gave the peevish young married couples some good common sense advice along lines of domestic compatibility. The doctor denounced club women in no uncertain words, as partly responsible for unhappiness in American homes, through neglect of their families, and hinted to the good-natured women in his audience some things that might have provoked Mrs. Pankhurst, his English suffragette sister, and others who have forsaken the gentle art of cooking for the more strenuous labors now occupying the minds of his English sisters. Be that as it may Dr. Spurgeon was given the best of attention and his excellent talk was enjoyed by all. Dr. Spurgeon gives his farewell sermon Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock on "Moses the Hero of the Desert."
