The Sea Anemone
 The sea anemone resembles in shape a morning glory. Its mouth opens like the cup of that flower, and above it are seen a number of tentacles waving in the water. Its food consists of anything it can get, but generally it gets the minute insects that float in the sea. At any alarm it closes its cup and is then hardly distinguishable from the rock on which it is rooted. It has a set of sucker muscles that attach it so firmly to the rock that it will sometimes be torn in pieces rather than let go.

EXCHANGE OPENS OFFICE IN LONDON

PORTLAND, Or., July 20, (Special).—A permanent branch office of the Northwestern Fruit Exchange was opened in London on July 1, according to W. F. Gwin, general manager of the exchange, who has returned to Portland after a two months trip to Europe.

"We have always felt," said Mr. Gwin, "that the foreign market, while valuable, is also dangerous, especially to the uninitiated. It is unfortunate how little real knowledge there is on the part of growers and shippers in the Northwest, of fruit trade conditions in Europe. I have often heard growers complain that they had shipped cars to foreign brokers on consignment, with rosetate prospects but disastrous results. Others have complained of the manifold and unaccountable handling charges of the foreign receivers."

"In still another instance, an English operator made his appearance in the Yakima Valley, settled down for a season's stay and offered to buy for cash. He was welcomed, of course, especially as he was not very particular as to the price he paid. When the season was over he left very quietly owing the growers a good many thousand dollars, and one association was reported to have lost over $10,000, wiping out their entire surplus. These are only a few of the snags that have been run up against mostly due to ignorance of foreign trade and foreign trade conditions."

"It was in order to put the Exchange in possession of complete, up to date information concerning conditions that I made this trip, and it is because trade conditions on the other side are complicated and full of pitfalls for the unwary that the exchange found it advisable to establish an office of its own in London. This office was formally opened on July 1, and is conveniently located in the Country Life buildings, 17-21 Tavistock St., W. C., right across the street from Covent Garden Market."

CORRESPONDENCE

STAFFORD.

Adolph Delkar is still confined to the house from the effects of the kick from his horse. He is bearing the confinement as a man can when there is so much to do on a farm just at this time of the year, and help scarce, but it might have been a broken leg.

We heard a few days ago that Mrs. Mella Millem had been taken from her home near Mt. Tabor, to the Sellwood hospital for an operation, and the attending physicians found that she was suffering from a cancer in an advanced stage, and gave her but a few days to live, but we still hope to hear that she has rallied and will be with us a while longer.

Adolph Delkar is getting along nicely, but not able to use his leg much yet. He was kicked by a horse.

Mrs. Aerni returned from her two weeks' visit at Trout Lake at the foot of Mt. Adams, her old home, Wednesday last, much refreshed by her outing, and accompanied by one of her husband's married daughters with her two little children.

Mr. Millem was out Friday last and made arrangements with Fred Baker to secure his hay. He reported his wife as being very low at the Sellwood hospital.

The Stafford hoodlum and student of "hold up literature" tried to get up another Black Hand sensation. It will be remembered that nearly a year ago a letter signed "Black Hand" was found by Fred Moser one morning stuck in his stable door, demanding $1,500 be left in a certain corner of the grave yard and a failure to accede to the demand would result in arson and murder. However, they did not get the gold, as the sheriff and deputies came out jauntily by daylight to scare them away. This time Mrs. Gebhardt, going out to her chicken house early on the morning of the Fourth found a blank envelope stuck into the buggy seat. She opened it and found it to be a typewritten some what illy spelled letter of about the same purport as the one received by Moser. After a few days at the earnest solicitation of his wife, Gebhardt took the letter to Sheriff Mars, who again came out with a force of men and watched, of course with no result. This time the demand had come down to $1,000, which was to be deposited in the same place as the one selected for Moser's contribution, and was to be placed there at midnight of the eighth. Beyond making Mrs. Gebhardt a little nervous for a few days, it had no result. If these jobbers could only scare the fool farmers into supporting them in idleness, they seem to think it would be easier for them than to raise potatoes or hops, even at the fabulous prices received the past year, but they find the average farmer is a sturdy lot and not easy to separate from his hard-earned dollars.

Fred Elligsen raised his new barn Thursday, and nearly all the countryside were there, men, women and children, to the number of more than a hundred.

A young fellow attending the dance in Mr. Ritters new barn Saturday night had a horse die with what appeared to be colic.

It takes five different aged whiskies to make Cyrus Noble--each one good in itself. But it takes blending and re-aging to bring out the best in each--to "round-out" the flavor.

Why punish yourself with rough, high-proof, strong whiskey when you can get Cyrus Noble everywhere?

OREGON CITY ENTERPRISE

A Problem in Fractions.
 A young wife was doing the marketing for her first dinner in her new home.
 "Nice quarter of lamb, ma'am?" politely suggested the butcher.
 The young wife's face became wrinkled in thought. "But," she said, "there are only two of us! Don't you think an eighth would suffice?"

Microbes.
 Without the ceaseless labors of microbes our earth would be an uninhabitable charnel house.
