TEN MILE AUTO LAW

It is urged by autoists that the may-ord be vetoed by the legislature which is now in his hands and that he return with his recommendation that "fifteen miles" be inserted in place of "ten miles." If a ten mile bill is passed, and enforced, all our autoists it is declared, and everyone coming through from Portland by auto, will be in the "jug." On our streets an auto cannot go 10 miles an hour on high gear, the autoists allege and surely it is not the intent of the

FORUM OF THE PEOPLE

RAILROAD ROUTE

Morning Enterprise, Oregon City. To the Editor:—Mr. Editor, I noticed in Friday's paper that the Commercial Club of Oregon City thinks that the Southern Pacific line going on the West Side, would be a detriment to Oregon City. Now I can't see how. Does the Commercial Club expect to always confine Oregon City's growing railroad traffic to those few crowded feet next to the bluff. Does it seem possible that they never expect to be only Oregon City from the river to Ellyville? Now why are we on this side of the river. A part of that city we all live and call our home town? Your interest are our interests; we buy your goods in your stores. We take our produce there to market. And some of your best men are loved and respected neighbors of this side. So why, should the club think because the track is on this side that it has got to object. We have more room, a better grade, and tourists passing, get a much more favorable impression of our town than on that side. Every foot of the line from Rocky Reef to Bolton is beautiful scenery. The east slope is a picture from this side as the train would be just the right distance to give effect. Now why not all pull together to see Oregon City grow. Take us with you. It will only be a short time until Oregon City will take in Bolton, West Side, and Williams as well. So don't lose the opportunity to make Oregon City one of the biggest and prettiest towns in Oregon outside of Portland. G. S. ROGERS.

OF MUTUAL INTEREST

The meeting of the Commercial Club tonight will bring out some very interesting facts. The Southern Pacific Company will be represented with an explanation of its intentions East and West Side, and when the people get together they will no doubt know all before the meeting is over. It is to be hoped that some one from the Government or Portland Railway, Light & Power Company offices will explain what Commercial Club members can do to hurry matters along on the locks question. County Division Antis will also have their say, and a line of defense will no doubt be figured out along systematic lines to the end that old Clackamas County will remain as it is—the best, if not the largest county in the state of Oregon. The weather man needs a vacation. He seems to have lost track of time and seasons. We had a fine winter and spring but after a touch of summer he suddenly delivered a lost package intended for April or May—as far as we city people are concerned all right, but our country brothers have trouble enough without having to re-handle all their hay. Wake up—it is summer. Old Time Remedies. Strance as it may seem to some, the ingredients of the witches' cauldron in "Macbeth," at least a part of them, were once standard remedies among Europeans. In the tenth and eleventh centuries a sovereign cure for ague was the swallowing of a small toad that had been choked to death on St. John's eve, and a splendid remedy for rheumatism was to fasten the bands of clothing with pins that had been stuck into the flesh of either a toad or a frog. Physicians frequently recommended the water from a toad's brain for mental afflictions and that a live toad be rubbed over the diseased parts as a cure for the quinsy.

How Tommy Was Found by His Old Mummy

By F. A. MITCHEL

My Tommy was the loveliest and most loving little boy in the world. He couldn't get on without his mother, and his mother couldn't get on without him. I was always afraid of losing him, for when a man with a grim organ and a monkey came along Tom would follow him, and many times I thought I had lost my boy for good. Once he was brought home by a policeman and once I had to go to the station for him. Tommy's father died when he was seven, and my boy said, "Mummy, you'll have me with you always, won't you?" And I said: "I wish I might, Tommy, but you'll grow up to be a man and have a wife and children of your own. Oh, dearie me, I wish you could always remain a little boy!" But Tom said he hated girls and would never have anything to do with any of them; he would always stick to his dear old mummy. But nature requires that boys and girls should break away from their parents and become parents themselves. Tom stuck to me as long as he could, but he was a manly boy and grew into a manly man. He could never content himself in the little town where we lived, and when he came to be eighteen years old I saw that he was chafing to get away. He wouldn't leave me for a long while, but finally consented to do so for a few months. I bid him go and not come back so long as it was to his interest to stay away. Tom went, but he didn't come back. He wrote to me from different places, though, telling me what he was doing. He made one voyage on a liner as deck steward, but he didn't like the sea and gave it up. Then he served one enlistment term in the army and was sent to the Philippines. While he was there I was obliged to move to another town. I left my new address with the post master, but a new man took his place soon after that, and the address must have been lost. At any rate, I didn't get any more letters from my Tommy. Two years passed, and I was getting older every day. I lived by my self and had no one to comfort me. I didn't know whether my boy was alive or dead. If I could know that he lived and I could get a letter from him even but once a year it would make a very different woman of me. I went back once to where Tommy and I had lived together and where I had brought him up. I wanted to learn if he had been there looking for me. I found that he had. A number of the neighbors told me that he had asked them where I was. I had told only one or two where I was going, but it was so long ago that they had forgotten. Besides, I had moved again two or three times. They told me that Tom was awfully disappointed not to find me. After asking everybody and getting no information that would enable him to find me he went away, but did not say where he was going. That was the great disappointment of my life. To think that he'd been trying to find his old mummy and couldn't! And now that he'd gone again into the great world there was far less hope of his ever finding me or I finding him than there was before. I found a place to take care of a rich

Chautauqua Pianos

for Sale

From $30.00 to $40.00 actually saved. Put your thinking cap on. Figure it out. If you intend to buy within a year, buy now, or at least come and investigate. These pianos are all brand new and were especially selected for the chautauqua. The list included such well known makes as the Ludwig, the Hobart, M. Cable, the Milton, and the Price & Teeple. 10 per cent off the Portland cash price, a small payment down, and easy monthly, or quarterly payments as best suits your convenience. These pianos have been used only by teachers, and have had the best of care and are truthfully a safer buy than a piano that has never been tried out. They have stood the test, and proven their worth. Who will be the first to take advantage of this opportunity to save some cold cash, and settle this piano question. If you never intend to get one, this will not interest you, but if you do intend to get one some time, why live without it, when you could just as well have it. Can you think of any kind of pleasure that does not cost money? A good piano will last for 30 years, less than 3 cents a day. The cheapest pleasure in the world. Pianos pay for themselves in various ways. Some make fortunes for their pupils. Some support families. Some are peace makers, by bringing sunshine and joy to the home, and least of all apparently, it provides pleasurable pastime, recreation and rest for the young and old, awakening new and good thoughts like an inspiration. These are all really good pianos and grace many an Oregon City home, but no one ever got them NEW, for so little money. Why, because there never was a reason before, it is easy to give big discounts on an inflated price, but not off the right price. We feel that we have received 10 per cent on these pianos through the advertising we got out of the chautauqua. They can be seen anytime while they last at the piano store, 709, Seventh street, Oregon City. The Wiley B. Allen Co., Estab. 1873.

Mannish Manners of Modern College Girls Destroying Ideal Type of Womanhood

By the Rev. Dr. FRANCIS E. CLARK.

THE lack of spiritual training received by the girl graduate of modern times has a tendency toward the DESTRUCTION OF THE BEST TRADITIONS OF WOMANHOOD. I believe that women should be physically perfect and that sound bodies should be developed with sound minds. No one can minimize the importance of CAREFUL TRAINING along these lines, but infinitely more important is the growth of the same spiritual strength that our grandmothers and mothers gave to the upbuilding of civilization. MANNISH MANNERS, UNCOOUTH AND OFTEN ALMOST VULGAR SPEECH SEEM TO HAVE BECOME A CHARACTERISTIC OF THE MODERN COLLEGE GIRL.
