Every Man Must Be the Savior of the State In a Modern Community

HERBERT G. WELLS

By HERBERT G. WELLS, English Author and Playwright

HE air is full of vague and dangerous demands for an aristocracy, an oligarchy or an autocracy. There is evidently a considerable number of people who would welcome A TYRANT at the present time, a strong, silent, cruel imprisoning, exacting melodramatic sort of person who would somehow manage everything so long as they went on. Being silly, we may yet see a Boulanger prancing through our streets. There never was a more foolish cry than that.

It is not A MAN we want, but just as MANY MILLION MEN as there are in the universe. It is every man who must be the savior of the state in a modern community. We cannot shift our share of the

LAWMAKERS-NOT PRESIDENTS.

Saturday to spread up till about 4 p.

Editor of Farm and Home Calls Attention to Choice of Men Who Will Make the Laws.

The mistakes usual to a presiden tial campaign are being made. People are excited over candidates for nomination to the presidency, but are giving only slight heed to senators and representatives for congress or in state legislatures. These are the men who will make the laws. Chief attention should be devoted to selecting the best lawmakers. This is a matter of men, not parties. While political parties may break up, individual character should never break up. Vote for men for national and state legislatures who can be depended upon to frame laws in the interest of public, not pelf; of justice, not privilege; of righteousness, not party. Both parties in congress are equally responsible for going back on the people, says Herbert Myrick in Farm and Home. Both parties almost unanimously support the reciprocity frameup against domestic farmers. While Republicans advocated such reciprocity, now Democrats seek to put sugar on the free list and thus destroy a new branch of farming that would put $200,000,000 a year into the farmers' pocket; otherwise that vast sum goes abroad for bounty-fed or cooliegrown sugar. Both parties are equally guilty of dodging parcel post, and thus again defeating the peoples' will.
