Samson of this city, who have been visiting Mrs. McCord's aunt, Mrs. L. Armstrong near Aurora, for the past week, have arrived in this city, and are visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. H. Samson, parents of Mrs. McCord, and with Mr. and Mrs. William McCord, the former a brother of Mr. McCord.

FOR A GARDEN PARTY

Above is a delightfully quaint frock for a youthful wearer, one which calls up visions of old gardens and dainty maidens of long ago. The bodice is of taffeta, having a cream ground and little blended bouquets on Dresden colorings. The skirt is of plain dark green silk and this is used for the narrow pleatings on the edges of the bodice, sleeves and neck, below the narrow yoke of lace. The plain vest is of the green taffeta with taffeta rimmed buttons and loops of the pompadour silk. Green velvet is used for the giraffe. Hat of green taffeta with bow of velvet.

LITTLE JOURNEYS TO HOMES OF OREGON INDUSTRIES

(Little Journeys to the Home of Oregon Industries, written for the Morning Enterprise by Colonel E. Hofer.) The organization of Oregon Life Insurance Company, which has six and a half million dollars of insurance written on the coast, is a record in record was first talked over with the late Harvey W. Scott by the projectors, L. Samuel, and he immediately subscribed for all the stock he could—no one stockholder being allowed to have over two shares of $1000 each. The stock is sold at par and can never be sold for more than par and can never draw over seven per cent dividends in one year, and there are only eighty stockholders and never can be any more. So the strictly speaking Oregon Company is unique in the history of insurance corporations—it was never organized for the purpose of making money for the officers or the stockholders, and is organized and operated purely for the benefit of the policy holders. In speaking of the organizer above I used the word "projector" advisedly, because there was never a dollar of promotion stock issued in the formation of the company. When the great insurance scandals were unearthed a few years ago by the energetic efforts of Governor Hughes of New York, it was discovered that at the head of each one of them was a person called a president or general manager drawing salaries all the way from $75,000 to $100,000 per annum. Few people will believe at first statement that A. L. Mills, President of the First National Bank of Portland, and President of the Oregon Life Insurance Company draws no salary whatever for his services in the latter position. Neither does the manager, L. Samuel, nor the assistant manager draw a dollar of salary, but receive a very modest commission on the business they write. Mr. Samuel conceived the idea of this form of a life insurance company in 1905 and he and his associates have made it what it is today—the most satisfactory life insurance company in the world. He had been writing life insurance policies for twenty-one years and wanted to write his life into the history of the state and he has done it by establishing Oregon Life. The man to whom he first talked about it is dead and gone. So are eight more of the original stockholders—W. H. Goode, O. F. Paxton, Heenan Wittenburg, Sig Frank, of Portland; C. A. Cogswell, of Lake County; Henry E. Ankeny of Eugene; Richard Scott of Milwaukie; and Col. W. F. Beckner, of Baker City. It is a remarkable fact that only one of these gentlemen could get a policy in the company and he helped bring into existence. The highest authority on life insurance in the world—Best's Life Insurance Reports for 1912, says Oregon Life has a most wonderful record on that it is one of the best managed life insurance corporations in the world. It states further that the mortality rate in Oregon is wonderfully low. The death rate of children and adults is almost a minus quantity in Portland and other parts of the state. People get tired of hearing L. Samuel boost the Made in Oregon Idea. But L. Samuel never gets tired. He has been in the state forty-one years. He was the original Oregon booster when he published the West Magazine. But his life work and all his talking for the Oregon industries are not a drop in the bucket compared to the demonstration of the idea he has made in the establishment of Oregon Life. All the officials are Oregon men. All the stockholders are Oregon men. All the capital is Oregon money. The policy holders are all Oregonians. The investments are all made in Oregon securities and it is the only exclusively Oregon Life Insurance company. Its losses are paid in Oregon and its interest distributed in Oregon. P. S.—L. Samuel starts all his grandchildren at one year of age with a policy in Oregon Life. He says he believes in his own medicine and shows his belief in having his own take the medicine to the third generation.

PROSECUTOR RAPS HEAD OF POLICE

(Continued from page 1) saw "Bridgie" Webber, one of the suspects arrested, running away. Asked if he saw anyone in the courtroom whom he had seen in the "murder" case, he immediately pointed out Sullivan and the latter was at once arrested and charged with murder. In a letter to Commissioner Waldo today, Mayor Gaynor ordered him not to suspend Lieutenant Becker and denounced the New York newspapers for their attitude in the gambling situation here. Flat declarations that upon the shoulders of New York's millionaire Police Commissioner Waldo rests the responsibility for the gambling conditions that culminated in the gang murder of Informer Herman Rosenthal, was made today by District Attorney Whitman. Whitman declared that Police Lieutenant Costigan, before the grand jury declared that no gambling house could remain open in New York unless heavy tribute was paid to the police; that the sole authority in gambling regulation rested with Commissioner Waldo; that Waldo alone knew what resorts were to be raided; that the entire responsibility for keeping the town "closed" rested with the commissioner, and that the town today was more "die open" than ever in Costigan's experience. Immediately after publication of Whitman's statement Commissioner Waldo and Costigan held a conference and later both denied that such statements had been made by Costigan. Whitman's statement has accentuated the war between the district attorney's office and the police, which is expected to be fought out to the finish. Every man connected with the Rosenthal murder, the police say, is at present located except Sam Schepps, one of those who rode in the "murder car" when it stopped before the Metropolitan hotel where Rosenthal was slain. The police claim to be putting forth every effort to get on Schepps' trail.

STREET CARS TO STOP AT CORNERS

(Continued from page 1) the quality of rock offered for use on the streets was referred to the committee on streets and public property. An ordinance providing for 300 feet of hose, was read for the first time. Albright made a motion that City Attorney Story be instructed to draft an ordinance regulating the sale and use of firecrackers for July 4. It was carried. Residents of John Quincy Adams street made requests that the grade which is now being made be changed. They were referred to a committee. Meyer reported that Special Accountant Hackett had finished his examination of the city's finances. The report will be made at the next meeting. Mayor Dimick submitted a copy of a quarterly report made in Eugene, and suggested that the system was meritorious. Attention was called to several houses alleged to be in an unsanitary condition and the committee on Police and Health was instructed to make investigations. Horton reported that the work of improving Molalla avenue was progressing rapidly and that the street would soon be in fine condition. The specifications of the city engineer regarding the hardsurfacing or macadamizing of Seventh and Fourth streets will be presented at the next meeting. There is an urgent demand that both streets be hardsurfaced. A motion that the Oregon Engineering & Construction Company complete the work on the block on Twelfth street between Main and Water was carried. GASOLINE SCHOONER IS TAKEN AS PRIZE

VANCOUVER, B. C., July 26.—The fisheries' protection cruiser Newington yesterday brought into Esquimault harbor the gasoline schooner Thelma of Tacoma, as a prize. The vessel was seized on Wednesday about two and a half miles off the coast of Vancouver island. The poacher is the second captured by the Newington since she entered the service, the Bonita being taken about a week ago. The schooner Mars of Seattle was warned when close to the line and let go. Another vessel overhauled by the Gunilda was also let go with a warning. When the Newington came upon the poacher through the mist, with drizzling rain falling, there was confusion on the Thelma, and Captain Carlson and his crew of the Newington hurriedly worked to capture the purse seine. The Newington steamed alongside and the fishery protection officer went on board. Captain Carlson claimed that if he was inside the limit he must have drifted there. The Thelma had 475 salmon on board which were land at Esquimault. Captain Carlson and crew of the Thelma and their vessel, which was kept fast to the Newington, was then taken to Vancouver, where action for confiscation of the vessel as a prize to his majesty the king will take place. The Thelma was built at Tacoma last April.
