LINGERIE TOQUE

The height of beauty and summer daintiness seems to have been reached in this toque model of Valenciennes lace. The shape is conical and fits the head closely and crown and brim are covered with overlapping ruffles of narrow Val lace. Tiny rosebuds have been fitted together closely so that they form a flat shaped band which encircles the hat and meets beneath a spray of large roses on the right side. The crown is nearly spanned by a bow of black velvet ribbon whose ends hang coquettishly over the shoulder.

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

GIRL JUSTICE.

A gracious and unusual thing happened in New York city the other day. A body of pretty shopgirls went out on strike because their homely sisters were not given fair treatment by the foreman of the factory.

Isn't that fine?

Why should foremen and heads of departments give preference and show courtesy to pretty employees, reserving the hard tasks and the harsh words for those less favored by nature?

It is unfair.

Why should the handsome girl have the advantage of the homely girl?

It is a common saying that woman is a severe and heartless judge of her sister woman; that woman's inhumanity to woman makes countless millions mourn.

But—

Here is an exception. These good looking girls, toiling at their shop tasks under conditions ill suited for bringing out the best and noblest qualities, show a commendable spirit of justice and generosity.

They have revolted, putting in peril their living in behalf of their homely sisters.

Now—

There must be something in the industrial conditions where women are employed together that makes for sympathy and helpfulness.

You are not likely to discover such a bond of common interest and feeling in the so called higher circles of society. The belle of the ballroom is not apt to manifest great consideration for the poor wallflower. Rivalry, selfishness and envy are rife.

Why not expect to find a like spirit in the factory?

Yet here—generous girls!

Here are these New York shopgirls giving an exhibition which shows that the feminine sex is capable of the largest sense of justice—the impersonal sense. Putting aside their natural desire to retain their jobs, they are quick to see and resent a wrong inflicted upon their fellow toilers.

Why fear the coming of women into business and politics?

There is something in the transfer of woman to a wider sphere that develops in her a larger view of things, a keener sense of relation and a larger tolerance.

These brave girls have put on record a sacrificial sense of honor that has not always been recognized in woman's dealing with her sister woman.

Sharp Girl.

AGREEMENT WITH REBELS IS ASKED

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 7.—Representatives of the government will meet Emiliano Zapata, the rebel leader, at El Kiguero, Morelos, tomorrow to discuss measures aiming at peace in the Southern part of the republic.

Zapata has declared he would consider no peace proposal unless it contained Madero's resignation. But the government has proceeded with plans for the conference and the cabinet has been instructed to obtain an armistice if it can.

Whether the commission will consider the resignation of Madero is highly improbable, but it is felt that, once the peace conference is begun, terms can be made that do not include such provision, since the principal complaint of the Zapatistas has been that of the ownership of the land.

SELLING TO STAND WITH PRESIDENT

PORTLAND, Aug. 8.—Following his return from a vacation in Yellowstone National Park, Ben Selling, Republican nominee for United States Senator, has prepared a statement setting forth his stand on the various political issues of the day.

The statement, which was prepared as soon as possible after Mr. Selling's return, was completed and made public tonight. He declares himself to be in favor of the Republican ticket, including President Taft, and asserts that in this stand he has not deserted in any way his progressive guns.

Mr. Selling proclaims and defines his own progressiveness by citing his long record in Oregon in behalf of the Oregon system and other legislation for the benefit of the people.

Cooper and the Poacher.

James Fenimore Cooper, once upon a day, caught a man on his grounds stealing some of his best apples.

At the sight of Mr. Cooper the man began to run away. Cooper halted him and told him that he was not only doing wrong, but had wronged him, for if a stranger saw people slyly creeping into his grounds to get a few apples or vegetables they would come to the conclusion that he (Cooper) was a miserly, ill natured and niggardly person.

If he wanted any such thing he should come in boldly at the front gate like an honest man, fill his basket and freely receive with the best wishes of an open heart.

The Ruling Passion.

The woman who had chased dust and dirt all her life finally reached St. Peter.

"Come in, you poor, tired woman," he said, and held the gate ajar.

But the woman hesitated.

"Tell me first," she said, "how often you clean house?"

The saint smiled.

"You can't shake off the ruling passion, can you?" he said. "Oh, well, step inside and they'll give you a broom and dustpan instead of a harp."—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

THUNDER SHOWER PUTS HEAT TO ROUT

Old Jupiter Plusius tore loose Wednesday night and for several hours, aided by King Thunder and Prime Minister Lightning, he flooded Oregon City sending the straw-hatted and ice cream-suited inhabitants scurrying to their homes in search of winter raiment. Umbrellas and overshoes were at a premium.

The heat lightning started about dusk and played a merry dance over the city, to the growls and bursts of thunder. The rain clouds spread out and deluged the streets and roads, settling the dust and cooling the atmosphere deliciously.

"Jupiter" left as suddenly as he came. Wednesday was an extremely hot and sultry day and the thunder showers came as a climax. It will be cooler today, let us hope.

CALF SUPPLY SHORT IN PORTLAND TRADE

There was only a small showing of livestock at North Portland Wednesday. The strong feature of the trade was the calf division, in which all sales were made at $8.75, the highest point reached to date.

The great scarcity of calves in the market this season has kept the price even higher than its usual differential with cattle.

Examination of the receipts of calves at North Portland for the first seven months of 1912 shows a loss of 1714 head, compared with arrivals of the same period in 1911. This decrease was shown in spite of the strenuous efforts that are being made by a local meat company to take this class of business away from the dressed meat trade of Front street.

Total calf arrivals during the 1912 period were 1732 head, while for the first seven months of 1911 they were 3446 head.

Prevailing Oregon City prices are as follows:

DRIED FRUITS—(Buying). Prunes on basis 6 to 8 cents.

HIDES—(Buying). Green hides 6c to 7c; salters 7c; dry hides 12 c to 14c; sheep pelts 30c to 85c each.

FEED—(Selling). Shorts $25; bran $27; process barley $58 per ton. Total calf arrivals during the 1912 period were 1732 head, while for the first seven months of 1911 they were 3446 head.

FLOUR—$4.60 to 5.50.

POTATOES—New, about 50c to 60c per hundred.

POULTRY—(Buying)—Hens 11c; spring 17c, and rooster 8c.

VEAL—Calves 10c to 12c dressed, according to grade.

MOHAIR—33c to 35c.

BOMBARDIER WELLS, ENGLISH HEAVY-WEIGHT CHAMPION.

The same can be said of a match with Jeannette or, for that matter, with any rugged man capable of withstanding a beating for a few rounds.

It is regrettable that Wells is so lacking in endurance. There is no doubt that he is skillful enough to pierce the guard of Johnson, and while his strength lasted he would hit hard enough to trouble the black champion. But Wells is good for only one short spasm. Just why this is so is hard to understand. In build he resembles the lean horse that is supposed to be best in a long race, but in action no fat man could blow up more quickly. This being so, talk of matching him with Jeannette or Johnson should be dropped.

The Harvester May Lose Crown.

Many horsemen think that The Harvester will not be the holder of the stallion crown when he returns to America from his foreign trip. Colorado E. (2047) is picked by many of the light harness followers to win the honor.

Fortune Spent at the Olympics.

It is estimated that from $2,000,000 to $2,500,000 was spent by the twenty-seven nations that took part in the Olympic games at Stockholm.
