Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Avison, who have been visiting in the East for the past two months, returned to Oregon City Friday evening. Although Mr. and Mrs. Avison had a most delightful time they are glad to be back in Oregon, the land of rain and sunshine. They encountered some very warm weather, and in several places where they visited the weather was suffocating, especially in Massachusetts and in New Jersey. They visited also in New York, and returned home by way of Canada, where they visited relatives.

Word has been received in this city by S. P. Davis, from Prof. J. C. Zinser stating that he and his family would return to Oregon City within a few weeks to make this their future home. Mr. Davis has been in charge of the Zinser property on Thirteenth and Washington streets, and is now occupied by J. P. Lovett and family. Mr. Zinser will make several improvements on his place here when again taking possession. Mr. and Mrs. Zinser and family left here about four years ago for their farm near Salem. Mr. Zinser was formerly county school superintendent of Clackamas County.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Myers entertained at their home on Sixth and John Quincy Adams streets Friday afternoon, the occasion being the birthday anniversaries of both Mr. and Mrs. Myers. This was only a family affair, and was a most enjoyable event. One of the features was the birthday dinner served by Mrs. Myers, who was assisted by her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Thomas Myers, and granddaughter Miss Eva Aldredge, who recently arrived from Powell River, B. C., to spend the winter. The table was prettily decorated with cut flowers, and the dining-room and living room as well. The table was centered by a huge birthday cake. There were four generations of the McCarver family in attendance. Present were Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Babcock, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Myers, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Myers, Mrs. Mary M. McCarver, Miss Anita McCarver, Miss Eva Aldredge, William Myers, George McCarver, Charles McCarver.

FOR THE DEBUTANTE A girlish evening gown is the model sketched today. The under body of this gown is of rose pink satin with a tunic of self-toned chiffon. A lathered band of the chiffon tops the bodice which is charmingly trimmed with double ruffles of the satin. Between these ruffles all-over lace of a deep cream color is inserted and the lower half of the bodice again is covered with the shirred chiffon. The tunic is finished by a shirred band of the chiffon edged with a satin ruching and above this is a band of the yellow lace.

1200 MEN LEARNING GREAT WAR GAME

FORT STEVENS, Or., Aug. 24.—Twelve hundred men, regulars and guardsmen, are playing the war game at Fort Stevens, and day and night the camp is prepared for action. Constant relays of commissioned and non-commissioned officers and artillery experts are training the eight companies of the Oregon Artillery Reserves. The common belief that the big guns are fired from a platform after being sighted like small arms, are which belief was held by some of the guardsmen when they came here, is far from the fact, and conditions are such that only the highest trained experts can possibly qualify for the most difficult positions. The huge 10-inch rifles, now being manned by the state troops, have a length of over 30 feet and are mounted in such a manner that only for a few seconds before fire are they exposed from their concrete walls. They fire 10-inch shells, 3 1/2 feet long and weighing about 670 pounds.

The Oregonians are taught various methods of firing the big guns. It is explained to them that direct firing can take place by means of observation instruments attached to the rifles, and it is shown them how, if a target should happen to be at a long range, the distance to the object fired at can be obtained by range finders. These instruments may be thousands of yards from the battery, but by means of trigonometric calculation they automatically solve the problem and give the information desired. They are taught that a low or high temperature affects powder. On warm days guns shoot greater distances. Corrections for tide are made. The curvature of the earth is taken into consideration. The wind may retard or accelerate the movement of a projectile, even if it is traveling one-half a mile each second. All this information must be obtained and allowed for before the final setting of the gun is made, moreover it must be done in less than 30 seconds because the guns are fired twice a minute. By means of a sub-calibre gun the volunteers will be trained in actual target practice today and Monday. On Tuesday and Wednesday they will be permitted to make full service target practice. Governor West and possibly General Maus will be present. Colonel Stevens, the district commander of the lower river fortifications, has ordered all commercial and fishing boats to keep off the range during certain hours on the days in which service practice will be held, to avoid accidents. Great precautions are to be exercised. Nearly a score of Army officers from all parts of the United States are supervising all instructions, and among the officers are experts from Fort Monroe, the great artillery school. Captain Collins, Captain Page and Captain Casey, three of the most famous artillerymen in the United States Army, are supervising the instructions and target practice preparations.

The War Department, it is said, is at last fully alive to the vast importance of the Columbia River's defense. The fact that this is the only harbor in 700 miles of rock coast, that it is the nearest point to the Orient and that it taps what may be termed the granary of the United States, makes the defense operations of vital importance.

STEADY EFFORT. Anybody can get a steady living out of steady effort. The same clock that ticks off twenty hours for one man can't cheat his neighbor. The same laws of right and wrong, the same privilege to do and dare, are open to both.—Herbert Kaufman.

Tea Substitutes. In Mauritius tea is made from the leaves of the orchid; in Peru it is infused from native holly; the Tasmanians have many substitutes, while the Tonkinese make it of wood, bark, leaves and berries.

Reports from the hop yards of the Willamette valley are almost uniformly good. Only in isolated instances and where the growers neglected to spray at all has any material damage resulted. With favorable weather for picking the quality should be the best ever turned out.

A report from the Wasco county yards that took the first prize for quality at the Chicago show last season, says that the outlook is for even better quality than then. Signs of mold are no worse to date this season than they were a year ago therefore the alarm felt by growers generally is unfounded. Notwithstanding the good showing of crops some of the growers have already started to gather their Early Fuggles and some will start on the late hops during the coming week.

By the trade generally this is deplored because it will not only hurt the growers who pick their product early, but will have a demoralizing effect upon other Oregon hops. No business is reported passing in the hop market locally at this time. While the views of the trade are firmer and it is generally believed that higher prices would be paid for first class quality, buyers and growers alike are holding off operations until they see what they are going to get. Some business is reported as passing in the Sacramento, Cal., district at 18c a pound and this would mean at least 19c for the better Oregon product. Cables received from England and France state that conditions are again unfavorable, rains being general.
