A Child Wonder. The French Academy of Sciences in 1729 examined the case of a French lad only seven years old who, in all respects save that of intelligence, was the equal of a man of twenty. His remarkable physical development began when he was two years old. At four he could do the farm work of a boy of fifteen or sixteen, and at seven he was a fully grown man. Although his physique was thus remarkably developed, his intelligence was no greater than that of children of the same age. He died before he was twenty. As is usual in such cases of premature development, his strength faded away, and he became prematurely old before other men would attain maturity.

ATTRACTIVE DESIGN FOR A SMALL GIRL

Such a quaint little hat for the tiny girl is shown today. This in its color and design bears the mall-mark of Paris. The hat is fine white chip and around the crown is a length of baby blue taffeta ribbon tied on the right side in a bow with loops and ends of irregular length. At intervals around the brim stiff little rosettes of blue velvet are placed.

Napoleon's Dress at St. Helena. The only uniform which Napoleon put on at St. Helena was that of the Chasseurs de la Garde, consisting of a green coat with red facings, white breeches and top boots, but after November, 1815, he dropped this, only retaining it on special occasions, and put on a cutaway tail coat, brown or green, with white breeches and silk hose and a small hat with a tricolor cockade. Later he adopted what is sometimes called "the planter's costume," and Captain Nicholls has described in his journal the grotesque appearance of the general—the use of the word emperor was strictly forbidden—in his nankeen jacket, waistcoat and trousers and a straw hat.

JOYS OF LIFE. Live while you are alive. In other words, enjoy this life as it comes to you. Listen to the bird songs and the voices of the children. Linger to watch the sunset or the opening of a flower. Take into your life the goodness, the pleasure and the brightness of every day, for "we shall pass this way but once," and then when you reach the last day that is given you here you will be content and can say, "I have lived."

The Life Story of a Sow. To get the full flavor of this anecdote, which occurs in Watt's "Edinburgh and the Lothians," you must know Edinburgh's Cowgate and its curious buildings. It happened to Dr. Guthrie, after whom a street in the neighborhood, inclosing part of the Horse Wynd and College Wynd, is named. Dr. Guthrie had climbed to the summit of a tall "land" one day on a charitable visit. When he entered the room he perceived a sow, of which the family seemed very proud. "How- ever did you get that great animal up stairs?" asked the doctor, panting after his climb. "Ay, but it never was down" was the laconic and conclusive reply.

Moon Causes Rain in Africa. A new instance of the supposed connection of the moon with rainfall claims the support of highly scientific authority. Heavy rains are said to occur in South Africa at intervals of nineteen years, and this period coincides with the lunar cycle of maximum north and south declinations. E. E. Nevill, late director of the Natal observatory, finds an explanation in the moon's attraction. The theory is that a permanent cloud belt is drawn along by the moon and that as the moon nears its furthest point north the mass of clouds is made to impinge on the mountains in Natal, giving excessive rainfall.—Chicago Tribune.
