

Jimmie's Fear.
"Say, Sammy."
"Hub?"
"Your papa is an awful big man."
"I hope he won't go to heaven."
"You are a wicked little boy."
"Ain't either. I don't want him to go to heaven cause he's so awful big that I am afraid he'll break the sky down."

Mrs. Williams was formerly Miss Harding, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Harding. Mrs. Harding says that the homeward trip she will always remember, as the sea was the roughest she had experienced having crossed the sea eight times before. Soon after leaving San Francisco, the Roanoke, the steamer she embarked on collided with a lumber vessel, ramming the vessel above the water mark, and making a large hole, but not so as to allow the water to enter. There was general confusion on board both vessels. Lifboats were rushed to the aid of the men on the lumber vessel, but as the repairs were soon made the crew stayed with their ship.

SECOND PRIZE WON BY CLACKAMAS

center of attraction. Thirty more babies were measured and entered in the contest for the grand award for healthy and normal babies. The examinations will close tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. Addresses were given today by Dr. Ravens Spurren on "Artificial Feeding and Infants"; Dr. Mae H. Cardwell on "The Hygiene, Care and Management of the Nervous Children," and Dr. Florence Sharp Manion, on "Feeding of Older Children." All the speakers are from Portland.
There are seven county exhibits in the pavilion, and all but Marion, which is ruled out, are in the race for the sweepstakes prize. Benton county, which has won the prize for the last three years, is represented again with an excellent exhibit which is artistically arranged. Clackamas county, which won second place last year, is here with a bigger, and representative of that county maintain that a much finer exhibit than the county had last year. They express confidence The other counties having exhibits of stepping into first place this year. are Washington, Columbia, Multnomah and Lane.
As one enters the pavilion he first beholds a pyramid of delicious appearing fruits, apples, pears, grapes, and also vegetables, which are being shown by the Oregon Horticultural society. To the right is a large exhibit from the Oregon Agricultural college, and to the left is the first representative exhibit ever presented by the state board of forestry. Here are beautiful, highly polished slabs of the various species of Oregon's timber, such as Douglas fir, Oregon oaks and ashes, alder, cottonwood, white and yellow pines, and many others. In addition there are large views, secured from the national forestry service, showing the state's immense timber resources.
Probably no exhibit is attracting more attention and admiration than Marion county's, with its immense panorama view of the Willamette valley. As one steps past the curtain he finds himself standing beside the Silver Creek Falls, in the Waldo hills, with the beautiful valley for 40 miles one way and 30 miles the other spread before him. The scene is lighted by a brilliant midday sun, but as one looks in admiration at the rolling hills the beautiful farms, and the half dozen or more towns, the light begins to

FOULARD GOWN
A new model in foulard and plain silk is shown in the sketch. This has the new tied bodice which gives the impression of a bolero. This is of mole colored taffeta piped in red taffeta and ties over a vest or chemise of cream lace which falls below in a small tab. Bands of the foulard of which the skirt is made finish the sleeves. This is also mole colored and figured in cream. A narrow band of the plain taffeta marks the skirt closing on the left and holds the drape, which is slight. A row of small red buttons are placed to the right of this.

fade and the mellow gloaming of a mid-summer's evening settles down and then out of the distance tiny lights appear, showing the cities and towns.
The scene is not merely a pretty picture painted by a clever artist, but is said to be so accurate that farmers from all parts of the district shown have been able to pick out their farms. The children's industrial exhibit is housed beneath the grandstand. While it is so far removed from the other exhibits that it is under a handicap in drawing the crowds, it is nevertheless having many visitors.
Those who have the exhibit in charge make excuses for it on the ground that the wet season spoiled many of the displays when they were shown at local and county fairs and that therefore this exhibit is not up to the high mark expected. But to the public it is a source of admiration and pleasure. The exhibit includes almost everything one can imagine youthful hands could do. Besides some of the finest vegetables on the state fair grounds, there are fine displays of needlework, canned fruits, labor saving devices, and other things.
In the potato contest, Eugene Durmond, a 14-year-old farmer near Albany, sprang a sensation on his competitors when he placed on exhibition 12 big boxes of spuds all grown from one potato. He secured his potato in February and cut it into bits, which he planted in a hot house. The sprouts came up he transplanted each one in a hill to itself and thus obtained this marvelous yield.

"HAIR THAT GIVES FATHER TIME THE LAUGH"

We are just about as old as we LOOK. People judge us, by the way we LOOK. The man or woman with grey hair is beginning to get in the "Old Timer's Class." This Twentieth Century does NOT want GREY hairs—it wants the energy of Youth. The big things are being done by the YOUNGER generation.
There's a sort of "Has Been" look about those "Grey Hairs." There's always one to criticize and smile scornfully. Father Time is a stern disciplinarian. Get the best of him. Give him the laugh. Do not be a "Has Been." It's unnecessary. Use HAY'S HAIR HEALTH.

HOP CROP IS BIGGER THAN FIRST ESTIMATE

That the state's hop crop will be considerably above the estimates of a few weeks ago now seems altogether probable. A good start has been made in the gathering of the crop, and for the most part the reports now coming in from yards where the work is under way indicate a generally heavier yield than was counted on a month ago. In practically all cases the hops being taken off the vines show very good size and weight, and the strength of the present showing it is believed that the yield will run close to, if not above, 120,000 bales.
In quality the 1912 output will compare favorably with the crops of recent years, provided care is exercised in the gathering of the product. The growers, realizing what they have at stake, are insisting on clean picking, and the chances are that the harvested crop generally will be such as to sustain the state's reputation for the production of quality stock. Mold is said to have been encountered at a number of yards, but the growers are taking every possible precaution against the admission of any damaged goods into the bales. In nearly all cases the samples of early picked hops received by dealers to date have shown excellent quality.
The weather for several days has been decidedly discouraging to pickers, but they have worked between showers as far as they were able, and the harvest as a result is well under way. Many of the larger growers are reported still to be short of help, but in the event of clear weather, which is expected, they will probably have full forces at work before the end of the week. The recent rains are not believed to have worked any serious damage to the crop.
There is practically nothing doing in the market, and no business of any consequence is expected until the bulk of the crop is in the bale. The growers now are wholly occupied with the harvest of the crop and dealers generally are waiting for a more accurate line than is now obtainable on the quality of the output. Late reports from California say that 1 1/2 cents has been bid for Sonomas, which indicates an upward tendency in the market there.
