A JUDICIAL CODE OF ETHICS

It is an interesting proposition which was made in the meeting of the American Bar Association looking toward the making of an ethical code for the government, or rather the self-government of judges. It must be assumed that a man capable of being a judge is one of high moral and mental qualification. If we admit that men of another sort are sometimes elevated to the bench, as we must, it does not follow that making him subscribe to a code of ethics, to serve as a standard of his judicial conduct and action, will change his character or tendency of mind. The delusion that, by some mysterious process of sanctification, a man, when elevated to the bench, is transformed out of human clay into finer clay of some sort, never has been popular among us. We have, in the main, in the selection and appointment of judges, aimed to choose men of such honesty of character and rectitude of purpose that these qualities would dominate their judicial acts. We have never deceived ourselves by thinking that a man without these qualities could be invested with them in the simple act of investing him with the ermine. Putting a sow's ear inside of a silk purse can not change nature's law decreeing that a silk purse can not be made of a sow's ear under any condition or circumstances.

The obligations of the oath now and for long taken by judges are as sacred as any can be made, but, after all, they have been and are but a formality. The righteous man does not need to assume them, but their assumption by an unrighteous man will impress him more having the sanctity of an oath, than he could be impressed by a mere ethical code drawn for his guidance. A judge capable of violating an oath is much more capable of violating a code. A simplification of methods, and prompt means of reaching and depositing unfit judges, as suggested by the committee of this association, are more filled with promise of a bettering of conditions, and a conciliation of public opinion, than a thousand ethical codes could be. A statement made to the association was to the effect that "a widespread inquiry has shown that while judges generally are above reproach, the condition of the bench in some instances is absolutely shocking." Such bad judges could not be reformed by any code of ethics, or by anything but they can be removed for their own sins of omission and commission without hanging a sword of Damocles over the heads of the many righteous judges guiltless of offering.

Word From the Infernal Regions.

John Armstrong Chlanor claims to have heard from the infernal regions. Chlanor's name was originally Chanler, and he is related to the Astors—is a brother of Captain William Astor Chanler, who was once in congress; of Lewis Stuyvesant Chanler, who was lieutenant governor of New York and Democratic candidate for governor, and of "Sheriff Bob" Chanler, who was for a brief season the husband of Lina Cavalieri. Chlanor has been adjudged insane in the state of New York, so he lives in Virginia, where he is sane. He has compiled an extensive brief on the lunacy laws of the various states, which he pronounces so widely divergent that they are themselves a proper product of bedlam. He is the husband of Amelia Fives, the novelist; likewise he is the author of the famous phrase, "Who's looney now?" So much by way of introduction. As to the message, which he says he gets through his X faculty, whatever that is, let it speak for itself. This communication purports to come from a former New York clubman, and it must be admitted that such a man is properly in Colonel Satan's dominions. He is supposed to say: "I have a moderately mild torture compared with other persons in my walk of life, largely because I happened to be a truthful and moderately honest man by nature and also largely because I had my share of hell while on earth in being a New Yorker of social standing, but no money." It seems that those down below may retain a sense of humor.

The orthodox ideas concerning the hereafter are said to be correct in every respect.

There are four subdivisions—heaven, hades, the underworld and the kingdom of sin, the worst of all. Satan is said to look like Napoleon. The conclusion of the whole matter is that even in the inferno "you may get through if you are a dead game sport, if you are honest and not a hog." All of which may be set down under the heading of "important if true."

Live Wirelets

Three weeks more and the school bells will sound the death knoll to vacation days.

The grandmothers of the office boys in this city never die—there are no ball games.

More than 13,000 new books were published in this country last year. How many did you read?

Lots of "peaches" in Oregon City this season—the kind that come in wooden boxes and those that come in "tubs" and "bottles."

No wonder hop growers have little trouble obtaining pickers. Free tents, free wood and dance every night proves a great magnet.

"C. J. P." of Oregon City says the answer to the ten per cent problem is $129. At this rate "C. J. P." wouldn't last long in any business.

How long would Bonnie Burr last in Oregon City?

Just a tip to the ladies—if you want to see the best Elks' home in the Northwest, take advantage of "Ladies Day" and go through your husband's lodge rooms.

While it is regretted that Clackamas did not receive the blue ribbon at the State Fair, the display is a credit to the county and those responsible for the great showing are deserving of lots of praise. Right now is the time to get together to make the fair at Canby a record breaker. While on the subject, here are a few suggestions—Reduce the price of admission to 25 cents, grand stand 10 cents, install electric lights in main hall, provide plenty of clean side shows, and eliminate the drinking of intoxicants tolerated near the stables.

GERMANS HAVE BIG DAY AT STATE FAIR

SALEM, Sept. 6.—This was German day at the state fair. The Germans were out in force. The weather was fine, the exhibits fine and everything fine. In a special train arriving here at 10 o'clock more than 500 Germans from Portland appeared in Salem and no jollier crowd has made merry here nor been more admiring of Oregon's fair. Led by the official fair band and the Salem military band, the Germans marched through the business streets to the Armory, where a short program was pulled off this morning and where a concert was given by them to-night. Following the bands in the parade were the German war veterans, the visiting members of the Sons of Hermann, Salem lodge of Sons of Hermann, and the Salem German speaking societies. At the Armory, Mayor Louis Lachmund delivered a speech of welcome, E. Hofer, of Salem, John Mattesen, of Portland, and August Hahn of Astoria, delivered addresses in German. Several songs were then given by the German Consolidated Singing societies. Early in the afternoon the Germans and all their friends invaded the fair grounds, and crowded the hours full of amusement, taking in the races, the shows and the exhibits.

SUBMARINE DIVING RECORD IS MADE

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 6.—The United States Navy submarine F-1 established a world's record for depth yesterday, diving 233 feet below off Point Diablo in San Francisco Bay. The submarine remained at this depth for 10 minutes, cruising at a speed of six knots, finally rising to within 19 feet of the surface with the ease of a sporting porpoise. The F-1, under command of Lieutenant James B. Howell, left its berth at the Union Iron Works yesterday and cruised for six hours, going out through the Golden Gate and circling a pilot-boat eight miles out. It was on the return trip, while passing through the deep water into which the steamer Rio de Janeiro dived several years ago, that the F-1 took its long slant into the depths, the crew of 26 composedly doing their duties or eating their midday meal while the hull creaked and groaned beneath the enormous pressure.

COLTS TAKE GAME FROM VANCOUVER

PORTLAND, Sept. 6, (Special).—Portland with Girot in the box, beat Vancouver today, 4 to 2. Willis and Girot allowed 8 hits each, but the Colts' twirler was the steadier of the two.

The results Friday follow: Pacific Coast League At Sacramento—Portland—Sacramento game postponed; rain. At Los Angeles—San Francisco 2, Los Angeles 1. At San Francisco—Vernon-Oakland (two games) postponed; rain.

Northwestern League At Portland—Portland 4, Vancouver 2. At Spokane—Victoria 6, Spokane 4. At Seattle—Tacoma 7, Seattle 3.

National League New York—3-9, Philadelphia 0-8 St. Louis—0, Pittsburgh—8 Chicago—6, Cincinnati—5. Brooklyn—2, Boston—1.

American League Boston—1, Washington—0. New York—2, Philadelphia—4. Detroit—2, St. Louis—4. Cleveland—5, Chicago—2.

If it happened it is in the Enterprise.

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

THE SCHOOL OF LIFE.

Life is a school. It begins in the mother's arms and ends on the great graduation day. It has its intermissions. There are the recess and the vacation, but the school goes on. The curriculum is called "experience." Sometimes the lessons of this school are hard to learn. Sometimes the tears of the scholars will fall on the pages of the book they try to study, but—School goes on! Some of the recitations are well done, and some of the lessons we never seem able to learn. As in school life, so in life's school, each must learn for himself, of himself and by himself.

Mother and father may bequeath to us money or advice or sympathy, but they cannot bequeath to us their experience. Each of us must learn as father and mother learned—in the same school.

Moreover, the scholar in the school of life never gets too old to learn. When he quits learning he quits the school. He must be ready to recite up to the last day.

Shirkers? Surely. Always there are truants. But, however far they may run away, they must always come back to school and take their punishment. That would be a strange school which had no discipline, no chastisement or chastening. Disobedient pupils must be reprimanded, else the school would be anarchic.

The teacher in this school never spoils the child by sparing the rod. And then, thank goodness, there are prizes for good behavior and studious habit. The scholar who applies himself will be rewarded.

Also the Great Teacher is kind. When we do our best and fail and look up to teacher, saying, "I tried to learn it, teacher," there is forgiveness. Then, hurrah for our school!

When recess comes let us play and laugh, entering into our diversions with great zest. When school "takes up" and the study period arrives let us cheerfully take up the books.

When school ends? Why, for us scholars it will surely end, though the term seems long. And may it be that we shall have learned our lessons well, so that on the great commencement day the Teacher may hand us our diplomas, on which is written, "Well done."

Proper Title. He—Why do you call your husband governor? She—Because he vetoes so many of my bills.—Judge.
