OLD PARTIES ARE CORRUPT, SAYS T. R.

BOSS SYSTEM SCORED BY ROOSEVELT IN AN ADDRESS AT SMITH TABERNACLE

SPEAKER INTERRUPTED BY WOMAN

Bull Moose Candidate for President Given Welcome in Portland—Judge McGinn Introduces Him

PORTLAND Sept. 11.—Arraigning both of the old parties as corrupt and boss-ridden, Theodore Roosevelt, nominee of the Progressive party for president, in an address before an audience estimated at 9000 people, one-third of whom were women, at the Gipsy Smith Auditorium this afternoon, commended the new party as the only hope of the people for solving the social and economic problems of the day. Roosevelt spoke for 70 minutes and, although his audience was a sympathetic and responsive one, he seemed to lack the fire and enthusiasm in his delivery that has characterized his former appearances here.

Roosevelt introduced his address with an invitation to the voters, regardless of past political affiliations, to unite with the Progressive party, which he said embraced the Democracy of Jackson and the Republicanism of Lincoln.

"Nominally we are fighting two parties, but in reality, there is only one," he said. "We are fighting the same representatives of the same interests in both of the old parties. It will be the purpose of the Progressive party to dispense with the bosses. We will not do away with the bosses but we will destroy the conditions which have made boss-ship practicable. These conditions are being perpetuated by both the Republican and Democratic parties through improper alliances with the representatives of crooked business."

Disclaiming any selfish interest in assuming the leadership of the new party, Roosevelt repeatedly during his address reminded his auditors that the pending contest was their fight. He denied emphatically that the Progressive party movement was a one-man issue and declared that if it was he would not be identified with it. The new party, he said, was bound to come because of the inability of the old parties to cope with the situation and give to the people an administration that was responsive to their demands.

Theodore Roosevelt as He Looked Wednesday Afternoon, While Making His Great Speech.

Hurling bitter invective, and snapping his words out with a trip-hammer vigor, Colonel Theodore Roosevelt grilled the five Oregon delegates to the Republican National convention at Chicago last June, in his speech at the Multnomah Hotel at 1 o'clock this afternoon.

"He said those five men who voted for Taft in the convention after they had been sent to the convention pledged to him (Roosevelt) were nothing but traitors to their party, their state and to the Oregon system; that they completely nullified the work of the entire delegation of 10 men, and that the people of Oregon might just as well not vote at the primaries at all. Roosevelt warmed up to his subject with energy and he was constantly interrupted with applause as he denounced the five traitors as he called them.

"I had no time to come out to Oregon and take part in the primaries here last spring," he said in launching into the theme which he called the most vital breakdown of the entire Oregon plan.

"I should like to have done so and I was greatly surprised, and pleasantly so, when I learned that the primaries had resulted in my favor. I had supposed when the ten delegates had been chosen by the voters for Oregon under your presidential primary system and that meant they would go to Chicago and cast their vote for me, but what happened?"

"This is what happened, my friends. Five of those men cast their votes in such a way that the work of the entire delegation was nullified. These men proved that they were traitors, and I want to say to you that you might just as well not have voted at your primaries here last spring."

Roosevelt spoke in this vein for nearly half his allotted time and he had, apparently, every one of the 1200 or 1500 people who jammed into the hotel lobby and on the mezzanine floor with him. The very building shook with shouts and the air fluttered with hundreds of brilliant band-

PUBLIC INSPECTS NEW ELKS' HOME

MORE THAN 300 VISITORS ARE SHOWN THROUGH WATER STREET BUILDING

STRUCTURE IS FINEST IN THE STATE

Reception Committee Kept Busy Entertaining Guests—Building Is Beautifully Decorated

The handsome new home of the Oregon City lodge of Elks was opened to the public Wednesday afternoon from 2 to 5 o'clock, and more than 300 persons inspected the elegantly furnished rooms. Music was furnished by Charles U. Wilson.

The rooms were beautified by potted ferns and huge branches of delicately colored Chinese asters and carnations, Wilkinson & Baxter, florists of Gladstone, kindly donating the flowers and ferns.

The Elks' home in this city is probably one of the finest lodge homes in the state, and those having charge of the construction, as well as the furnishings, are deserving of much credit for their work.

The guests, upon arriving in the Elks' home were met by the reception committee, who escorted them through the hallways and into the different rooms, and all were given a most cordial welcome. The Elks are proud of their building, and the visitors were proud of the building also, and extended congratulations to the members of the lodge for their efforts in securing one of the finest homes on the Pacific coast.

The reception committee was composed of members from the various committees that were influential in establishing the home in this city and was as follows: House committee—Clarence Fields, William H. Howell, E. J. Noble, H. S. Moody, W. H. Bair, of Canby; building committee—Fred Simmons, Theodore Osmund, esteemed leading knight, James Lovett, William Sheahan, Harry Draper, furnishing committee—W. H. Howell, Thomas P. Randall, Charles W. Kelly, M. D. Latourette, R. L. Holman. Assisting these committees in receiving was Henry O'Malley, exalted ruler of Oregon City lodge.

GLADSTONE SCHOOL WILL OPEN MONDAY

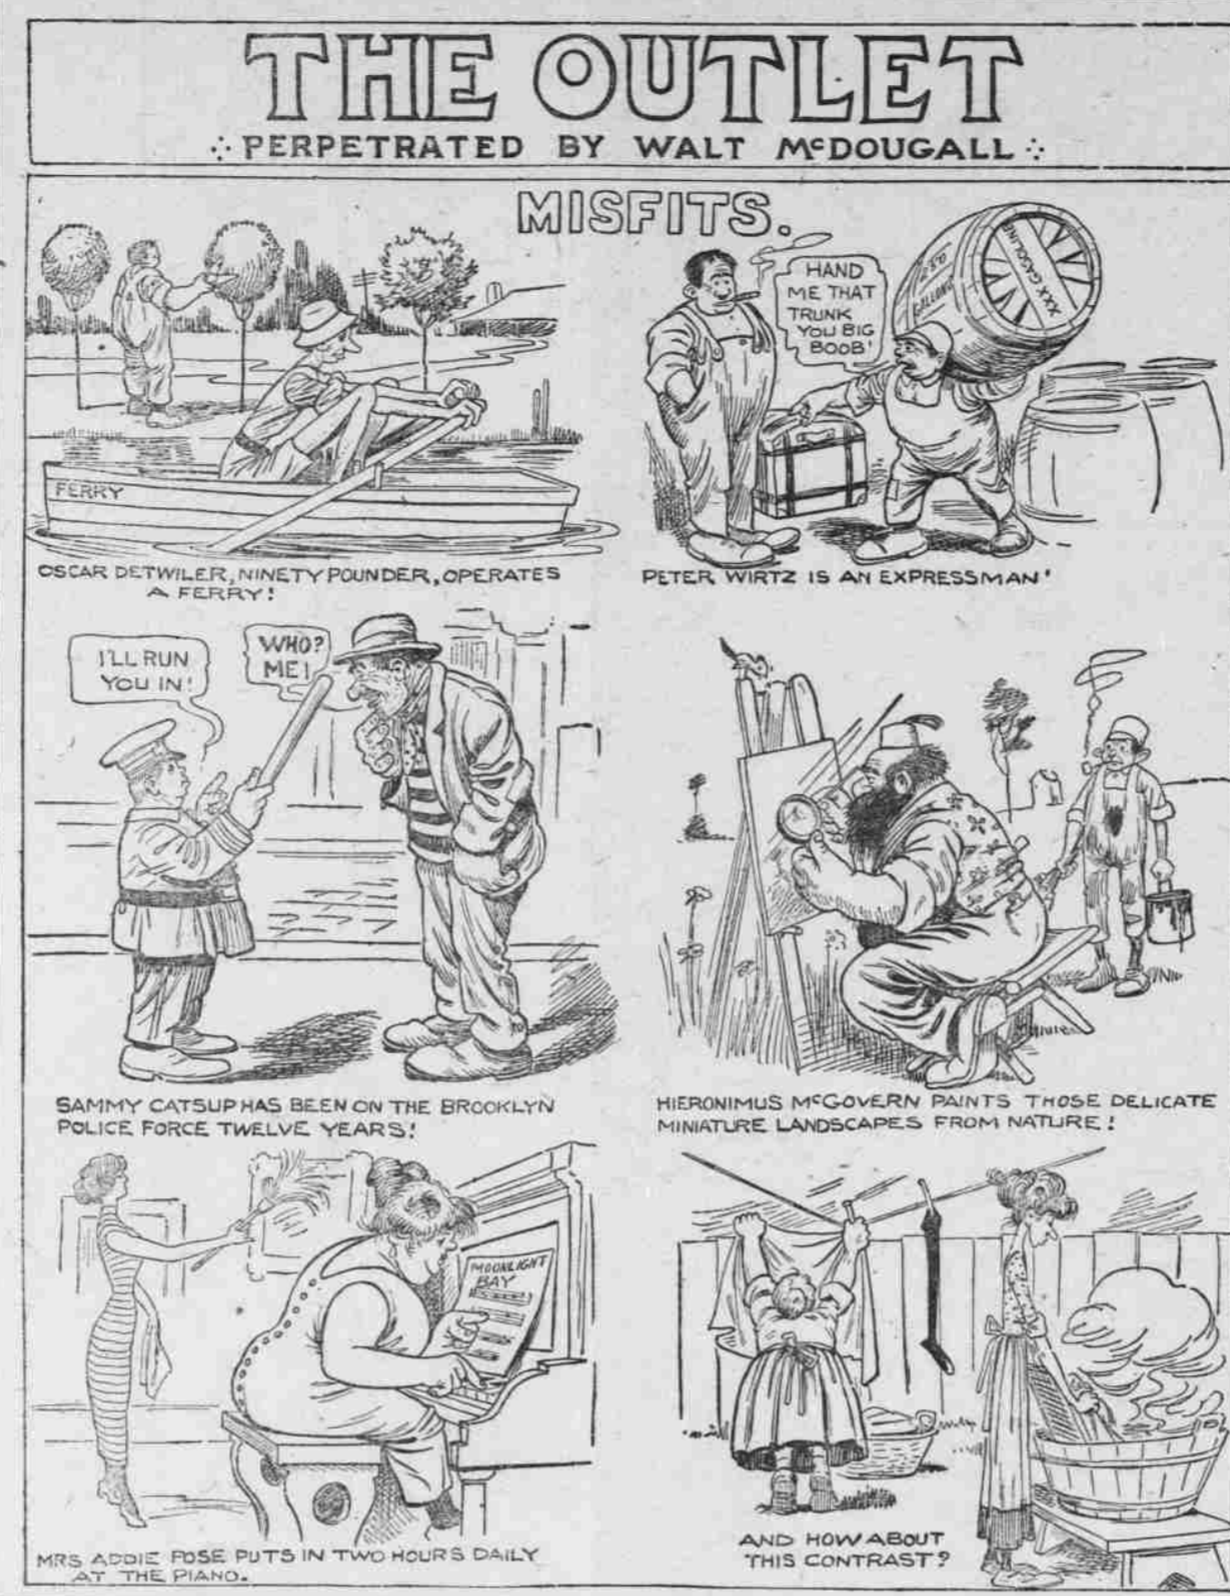

The school at Gladstone will be opened Monday with what promises to be the largest attendance in its history. The directors at a meeting Tuesday evening decided to employ a drawing teacher one day each week, and an agreement was reached with the drawing teacher of the Oregon City schools to do the work. It also was decided to have a drinking fountain on the first floor and to install four fire hydrants. Music also will be taught in the school. Mrs. Anna Hayes having been re-employed as teacher.

POLICE HUNT MAN WHO SHOT AT TRAINMEN

E. L. Shaw was notified early Wednesday evening that a highwayman had tried to hold up a freight train at Woodburn and was headed in this direction. The Marshall of Woodburn wired Shaw that the man had fired several shots into the caboose, and had ordered the trainmen to hold up their hands. Shaw and Night Policemen Bradley, Cooke and French were on the lookout for the man virtually all night, but he evidently did not come to this city.

LATOURETTE TO COACH OREGON CITY ELEVEN

A meeting of all football fans will be held Friday night to perfect arrangements for the team to represent Oregon City on the gridiron map this season. Several of the members of last year's team will be back in the harness, including "Buck" Carothers, Pete Long, Auk Smith, "Fuzzy" Montgomery, Fred "Busties" and "Dutch" Firman. The two Silvers have signified their intention of coming out but it is feared that "Monty" will be unable to play on account of a serious illness the past four months. "Pike" White is another who may not be able to partake in the weekly celebrations on Canemah field, owing to his present position with the Oregon City Transportation Company. "Mott" Roos says the one who beats him out for quarter will have to "go home." The hope for another "unbeatable" team for this season was strengthened when it was announced that "Sap" Latourette, greatest of all Oregon quarters, would be head coach for the Falls City eleven. He will be ably assisted in his work by "King" Cole. Cole is the man who turned out the eleven last year, a team that never had its goal line crossed. They met the best teams in the state and practically "clinched" the amateur championship of Oregon at 147 pounds. The team this year will probably average 150, or 155 pounds. All candidates desirous of glory on the gridiron are asked to communicate with either Pete Long or "Buck" Carothers as early as possible.

BOY PLEADS GUILTY TO FORGING CHECK

Richard B. Linville twenty years of age, was held to answer to the grand jury Wednesday by Justice of the Peace Samson on a charge of forging two checks. B. L. Crowley, who conducts a pool room, cashed a check for the young man for $4.50. The check was made out to Robert Sears and bore the signature "R. B. Jones". Linville said that Sears lived in Newberg and Jones in Gladstone. It developed that neither man had an account with the Bank of Oregon City upon which the check was written. When taken to the Justice of the Peace's court Linville confessed that he had forged the check.

some of the fastest horses in Oregon. It is being planned to have more running horses than last year and consequently a goodly number of runners have been engaged for the races. That there will be races among Clackamas County horses is also assured.

Mr. Freytag, who will have charge of the pavilion says that the pavilion will be more crowded than ever. The apple exhibit alone requiring one entire section. The buildings, including the barns will be lighted by electricity this year and it is being arranged to have attractions on the Fair grounds every evening as well as during the day.

The cafeteria that was so popular last year will again be operated by the women of the Methodist church under the grand stand and is being rearranged to accommodate a much larger crowd than before.

M. J. Lazelle, who has charge of the Dairy Department, is writing to all of the dairymen in the county, urging them to enter their best cows in the milk test and the prospects are good for a larger number of entries than last year.

BOYS GET FINE SKIN AND OUTDOOR BATH

There was something noisome along Main Street Wednesday morning. Did you get a whiff of it? Two boys were particeps criminis, but a member of the rodent family was responsible in the first instance. It happened in this wise: The boys went trapping. They caught an animal of the species they desired. They skinned it and brought the skin to town. They stopped first in a cigar store and immediately thereafter the owner closed his stand. They went into a drygoods store and the olfactory nerves of the proprietor and his accommodating clerks worked overtime for the first time in many years. Then they went home. Their mother did the rest. They were taken into the rear yard and stripped. The hose was used first, then a scrubbing brush and soap were brought into play. The skin will bring a good price, but the young trappers have been taught a lesson. They will show more discrimination in the kind of animals they entrap in the future. Theodore Roosevelt, were he writing this story and having in mind some of his political enemies, would use the right name of the animal. However, the Morning Enterprise will leave the answer to its readers.

The plaintiff says her husband wrote to her from Boston, Mass., July 31, 1912, asking her to obtain a divorce announcing that he would never live with her again.

BESSIE WOODWARD BECOMES BRIDE

POPULAR YOUNG WOMAN AND HUGH DALLAS KENNEDY MARRIED

MISS HELEN POLLOCK BRIDESMAID

Young Couple Go to Seaside on Honeymoon and, Returning Will Live With Bride's Parents

One of the prettiest home weddings ever solemnized in Oregon City was that at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Woodward, of Fourth and Center Streets, Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock when their second daughter Miss Bessie Maude, and Hugh Dallas Kennedy, of this city, were married. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. R. Landsborough, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, the impressive ring ceremony being used.

To the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March, rendered by Martha McLarty, the bride party entered the parlor. The bride leaning on the arm of her father, R. E. Woodward, was preceded by the little flower girl, Little Violet Woodward, niece of the bride, who carried the ring in a lily, and the bridesmaid, and Miss Helen Pollock. They were met beneath an archway formed of evergreens and white asters, where the impressive ceremony was performed. The ceremony was followed by refreshments.

The bride was pretty in a gown of white silk, and her long tulle veil held in place by a wreath of lilies of the valley. She carried an arm bouquet of sweet peas. The bridesmaid, Miss Helen Pollock, wore a striking gown of pale blue silk, and carried pink carnations.

The decorations of the Woodward home were of artistic taste. White and pink Chinese asters were used in the parlor, living room and dining room, these being intermingled with Oregon grapes, asparagus ferns and Boston ferns. The reception hall was in green and pink, roses being used in this room.

The bride is one of the popular young women of Oregon City, where she has lived all her life, and has won many friends by her charming manner. She is one of Oregon City's well known young musicians, having appeared many times at entertainments given here.

The bridegroom is one of the bookkeepers of the Willamette Pulp & Paper Company, arriving in Oregon City about three years ago from Connecticut, and has made his home in this city with his cousin, William McLarty.

Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy left Wednesday evening on their honeymoon, which will be at Seaside, and upon their return will make their home for the present at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Woodward.
