out the deterrent influences of the punishment of death, and the best that the authorities can do is to give them the punishment of torture. This indicates that the abolition of capital punishment in Michigan has been a long stride toward barbarism. Rhode Island, which abolished capital punishment about the same time that Michigan did, had the same difficulty in controlling her prisoners, until, in preference to adopting torture, the law of capital punishment for state prison convicts was enacted.

Like the knife of the surgeon or the gardener, the cutting off from society of the life of the murderer is a necessary evil.

"The humanity of the law feels every pain it inflicts, but it uses evil as a means of preventing greater evil."

Sept. 20 In American History. 1862—General Price's Confederate army abandoned Iuka, Miss., and retreated southward. 1863—Second day of battle of Chickamauga. Confederates under General Braxton Bragg defeated the Federals under General W. S. Rosecrans. 1900—General John Alexander McPherson, noted leader in the Civil War, died, born 1812. 1910—John W. Groucher, "cornfield poet" of Georgia, died; born 1833.

THE NECESSARY EVIL. The official returns of the vote in Ohio, on September 3rd, as reported for 68 counties, favor the retention of capital punishment by more than 30,000 majority. It means a great deal when 229,670 voters retain capital punishment when they are changing other conservative laws, and by heavy majorities adopt nearly all of the two score amendments to the state constitution. Those who dislike the infliction of the penalty of death may well pause and look beyond the law itself to the code of defensive and protective statutes of which it is a part. As death is the extreme penalty for the greatest crime, it of necessity occupies a position at the top of the criminal code. From this extreme downward to the smallest misdemeanor or the penalties of the code are graded. When the extreme penalty shall be abolished, the entire scale of lesser penalties becomes affected, the same as when the keystone of an arch is removed, every stone in the structure is loosened. This is more readily observed in prison discipline. Men serving for life may kill their keepers and suffer no penalty. Realizing this, the guards at the Ohio State Penitentiary stated that their lives would not be under the protection of the law if abolition of the death penalty for murder prevailed. The murderous convicts at the Jackson, Michigan, prison, are with-

STOP THE GOSSIP One venomous word That struck its coward, poisoned blow In craven whispers, hushed and low, And yet the wide world heard 'Twas but one whisper—one That, muttered low for very shame, The thing the slanders dare not name, And yet its work was done. For the reason that the slander is muttered low in craven whispers it is always hard to trace the origin of the slumy back to the malicious tongue that first gave it utterance. Gossip passes the report from mouth to ear under the impersonal and indefinite phrase. "They say." The gossip drapes his story with the glamour of secrecy and hides its origin in anonymous authority. Gossip is cowardly. It proceeds to murder reputations with the concealed weapons of an unctuous whisper, accompanied by a wink, a nod or a shrug. Oftentimes when the slanderous work is done the reaction comes. The community wakes up to understand that the tale had no authentic origin and the whole matter was no more than mere gossip. And sometimes the understanding comes too late to save the victim of the venomous tongue. A gossip thrives best in an atmosphere of ignorance and idleness. The well-informed are not apt to be credulous, and the busy will not wait to have their ears stuffed, willy nilly. The best way to stop the gossip is to stop it in your mouth. If your soul is big it will be generous and charitable. It is only the little soul that cannot hold "a secret." The big soul forgets. The big soul knows how sharper than a two-edged sword is the venomous word; that, once spoken it cannot be recalled; that the farther it goes the blacker it grows. If for no other reason than charity, withhold the word. If you be brave enough challenge the gossip and brand the story as a lie. Open your mouth and demand that the victim be confronted by his accusers. To the vague "they say" boldly ask: Who says? By doing so you may save some one from a stab in the back.

Lax Laws Make This a Most Lawless Nation
By CASSILLY COOK, New York Lawyer

SO long as the present lax, dilatory, absurdly technical legal methods of trifling and temporizing with New York city's daily increasing crime are tolerated MERE DENUNCIATORY RESOLUTIONS OF CITIZENS' INDIGNATION MASS MEETINGS WILL NOT DETER THE CRIMINALLY DISPOSED.

THE UNITED STATES IS THE MOST LAWFESS OF CIVILIZED NATIONS. SOLELY, OF COURSE, BECAUSE OF THE IMPOTENT CRIMINAL LAW PROCEDURE GENERALLY THROUGHOUT THE COUNTRY.

Human life in this country would be made MORE SECURE and society generally would be better protected from criminals if we would adopt much of the letter and spirit of the present English criminal law and its method of prompt punishments.
