W. Fulton. William Carey Johnson was a pioneer attorney of Oregon practicing first at Oregon City for many years and later in Portland He died July 5 at the age of 79. Millard A. Seitz was drowned at Gearhart, Or., while surf bathing July 22 last. He was admitted to the practice of law in Mich igan and had been in Oregon five

In an extemporaneous address preceding the offering for adoption of the resolutions Mr. Idleman spoke at some length concerning the work and life of Mr. Johnson. Referring to the fact that the deceased had not left an estate Mr. Idleman said that this was largely because without any legal necessity of doing it Mr. Johnson had in 1893 the year of the great financial panic spent his entire accumulation in making up to his clients losses they had sustained by reason of the depreciation of securities on which he had loaned their money. H. B. Nich-olas supplemented Mr. Idleman's re-
