THE OSTEOPATHIC PRIMER

What a "Lesion" is.

Growing out of this common sense reasoning, osteopaths have come to adopt the technical term of "lesion" as representing any departure from the normal of the body's tissues. That tissue or part of the human machine which is out of its natural position and relationship constitutes a "lesion."

Ordinarily it refers to a disordered locality in the body, yet as bad habits or even improper mental states may likewise cause sickness, in a broader sense the term is also used by osteopaths to mean the first cause the starting point, of a chain of disordered functions.

All diseased states may be defined in simple terms as disturbances of the bony frame work of the body, or a disturbance of the nerve supply of the parts affected, or a disturbance to the blood supply of some locality, or an abuse of functioning, or improper mental activity or bad sanitation and hygiene—which promptly comes back to mean some abuse of function.

These are the simple causes which underlie disease, the determination and correction of which spell "cure."

Nature wants us each to have good health, is trying to give it to us all the time. Some of these errors come about and interfere with Nature's plans. The osteopathy way is to find out what has gone awry in the machine and correct it. Nature does the rest.

Osteopathy is the only system of therapeutics which pays attention to the diagnosis of hidden lesions. It is the only system which corrects such lesions and thereby puts the human machine in good mechanical order.—Osteopathic Health.

Distinguished by Movements. Observant and farsighted persons distinguish at great distances a man from a woman, not by dress, face or figure, but by movements. The motions of the most graceful of men are ungainly when compared with the sinuous lines that most women instinctively assume. It often happens that a single motion of a distant figure, and especially a motion of the arms above the head, will instantly determine for a trained observer the sex of the person. If any one doubts this let him note the awkward, windmill-like performance of a man arranging his hair and the graceful curves and deft touches with which a woman accomplishes the same thing.

The Modern Way. "I wish to marry your daughter," said the young man. The old man was a sensible old man. "Can I support you in the style to which you have been accustomed?" he asked—Exchange.

A simple Design.

An early fall model designed for cloth or silk in the fashion suggestion today. This model shows the new long sleeve which has been slowly coming to the fore all summer. It is cut in one with the bodice which is plain and closes in a diagonal line from the left. There is a shawl collar of lace which, however, may be omitted and merely a plain yoke substituted. Little velvet bows and pleatings of taffeta constitute the sole trimming of the blouse. The skirt has a plain straight tunic caught up directly in the front with two velvet bows and finished with a pleating of taffeta.

BIG HOG SUPPLY MAKES PRICE LOWER

The Portland Union Stock Yards Company reports as follows: Receipts for the week have been Cattle 888; Calves 42; Hogs 3455; Sheep 6214.

Cattle receipts have fallen off about half since last week, but the supply has been equal to the demand so no advance in prices. Poorer grade is off about 25 per cent, but trade steady on good stuff. 7c on good steers. Calves still around 6c. Good heifers $6.55 and sprayed stuff $6.60. Seven cars of good mixed Herefords on the market Monday.

The big receipts of hogs knocked the price from $25 to $26.50. Some stubble fed California hogs were received and sold for less than local hogs and if the heavy arrivals continue the price may go to $25.50.

The sheep supply has been heavier also, but the demand is good and good weathers are selling all the way from $4.50 to $4.80. Trimmed fat lambs $5.50 to $5.75 and a few extremely fat at 6c, weighing 99 lbs.

Prevailing Oregon City prices are as follows:

DRIED FRUITS—(Buying), Prunes on basis 6 to 8 cents.

HIDES—(Buying), Green hides 6c to 7c; salted 7c; dry hides 12c to 14c; sheep pelts 30c to 35c each.

EGGS—Oregon ranch eggs 30c case count; 24c candeled.

FEED—(Selling), Shorts $27; bran $25; process barley $38 per ton.

FLOUR—$4.60 to 5.50.

POTATOES—New, about 50c to 60c per hundred.

POULTRY—(Buying)—Hens 11c; spring 17c, and rooster 8c.

HAY—(Buying), Clover at $9 and $10; oat hay, best $10; mixed $10 to $12; alfalfa $15 to $16.50; Idaho timothy $20; whole corn $40, cracked $41.

OATS—(Buying) $28; wheat 90c bu.; oil meal selling about $55; Rich Brook dairy feed $1.30 per hundred pounds.

Butter, Poultry, Eggs.

BUTTER—(Buying), Ordinary country butter 25c and 30c; fancy dairy 80c role.

ONE TILT WITH O'LOUGHLIN WAS ENOUGH FOR RAFFERY.

Tom Raffery, now playing with San Francisco, tells a joke on himself concerning his experiences in breaking into the big league. About three years ago Tom went to Cleveland from Portland. He realized that he was going in fast company and was a bit self conscious. Tom decided that he wasn't going to make any bolter, but would simply play the game. Well, for some fifteen games he didn't open his mouth. He was so meek that Turner, the third baseman, went to him and advised him to ginger up and put some life into his play. "Get after the umpire and show that you are trying to win," Turner told Raff. Well, that same day Tom decided that he would follow instructions and started after Silk O'Loughlin. Raffery kicked on everything that was called and finally topped it off with the remark that he feared O'Loughlin would be run over by a car because he could not see it coming. That got on O'Loughlin's nerves and without a moment's delay he brushed the catcher aside and wheeled Tom around by the shoulders. "Say, busher," he opened fire, "don't get thrown out in this league before you are in it." Tom caught the idea right away and you can bet that Silk O'Loughlin had the right of way thereafter.

INDIAN WANTS TO BE "HOPE"

George Near of Arizona Starts Training With Idea of Becoming Champion. Since the defeat of Jim Jeffries, white hopes have been without number. The Japanese have tried to put forth a brown hope, and the Chinese a yellow hope, but until the last few weeks the Indian has shown no interest in the fight game.

George Near, an Indian, who hails from Arizona, is the latest to announce he is going after Johnson's scalp.

Near is a husky, weighing about 185 pounds, and is well built. He seems to have good control of his mitts and within a short time it will be known whether he is of the proper timber for a fighter.

The Indian recently participated in a Marathon race in Arizona. He is now training in Los Angeles.

Hops in England.

The English were taught the uses of hops by a native Artols, who introduced them into England in 1524. They met with some hostility, for physicians represented them as unwholesome, and parliament was petitioned against them as a "wicked weed." In 1528 their use was prohibited under severe penalties. Henry VIII appears to have been prejudiced against hops, for in a manuscript dated Eltham, January, 1530, occurs an injunction to his brewer "not to put hops or brimstone" into the ale.

For the Children

A Cute Little Doll In Postman's Uniform.

In various sections of London kind-hearted women of wealth have organized associations and societies for the purpose of instructing and amusing the children of the poor. Notable among these is one called the Children's Happy Evenings association. That is a very appropriate name, for many little ones are gladdened and made happy by the entertainments given for their benefit. Recently the children were invited to the annual doll show of this society and there they beheld dolls of all kinds and sizes dressed in all manner of costumes. The show was held at Lady Werther's residence, Bath House, Piccadilly. We print a picture of one of the dolls arrayed in postman's garb to give a faint idea of the many wonderful dolls the children were privileged to see and admire.

Discovery of Quinine.

Although you may not have had to take any of this bitter medicine you must have heard of it as a cure for fevers. Quinine and Peruvian bark come from the cinchona tree.

The value of this Peruvian bark as a cure for fevers was discovered in a peculiar way. The natives of the country where it grew knew nothing of its virtues, although they suffered terribly from fevers. A tribe who was in the habit of drinking the water from a neighboring pool discovered one day that it had all turned bitter and was unfit for use through a storm having blown down some cinchona trees that had fallen into the lake, so they had to go some distance for water.

Not long after two of the tribe fell ill of the fever and as they were too weak to go so far for water they drank out of the old pool and were astonished to find that the fever soon began to get better.

Silent Quaker.
The company is seated so that each one can whisper to his next neighbor on the right. When all are ready the whispering begins, each one telling his neighbor to do some absurd thing. When every one has received a commission the leader announces that "meeting has begun." All solemnly shake hands, after which no one must speak or laugh. Each in turn rises and performs the task assigned him with the greatest gravity. Any one who laughs or speaks must pay a forfeit.

Suggestions for commissions: One might be ordered to make pantomime speech, another to dance a jig, one to put an imaginary baby to sleep, another to sing an operatic solo in pantomime, another to find a mouse under her chair, another to make three grimaces, indicating surprise, delight and grief, and so on.

A Noted Girl Athlete.
One of the most remarkable girls in England is Nellie Stockwell. She is only thirteen years old, but she has won five yearly championships in athletic sports in competition with all the other girls of the London county council schools in south London.

Nellie was nine years old when she won the championship the first year, and nobody expected that such a young girl would be the winner. But she got either first or second place in about every event on the program of the championship contests, and so the prize went to her.

She has continued to win prizes ever since then. She has more than thirty by this time.

At Bedtime.
When we're upstairs in bed,
That's when our family tell
The interesting things,
We know it very well.
They talk, of course, all day;
They have so many friends,
They ask us 'bout our school,
And everybody 'tends
To what we answer, but
When we're tucked up in bed
We'll hear them laugh and laugh,
"What was it some one said
To make you laugh like that?"
I'll ask them all next day,
"Why, nothing special, dear."
That's what they always say,
When we're grown up we'll know
(That's how I comfort Ted)
Just sactly what they say
When we're upstairs in bed.

The Earth's Area.

The area of the earth comprises 190,000,000 square miles. Leaving out of the account the 8,000,000 square miles about the poles that are unexplored, the land area forming the habitat of the human race is about 27 per cent of the total area of the globe. And unless man in some way learns to live in, on or under the waters he can never have any more room on the earth than he has at present. But one need not personally worry over the matter. It will be a long time before the danger line is in sight. It is said that the United States of America could take care of all the inhabitants of the earth.—New York American.

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

A CRIPPLE'S OPTIMISM.

They called him "Cheerful Hymie." The pet of the Omaha hospital, his death was the occasion of widespread and genuine grief.

Hymie was eight years of age, was afflicted with an incurable hip disease, had undergone several operations and had lived in the hospital three years.

He was known as Cheerful Hymie because of his disposition. Bearing a burden of suffering that would have taxed all the patience and philosophy of an older person, Hymie never complained of his own troubles. The nurses say his funny sayings were a better medicine than any the doctors gave.

By his request he was wheeled about the hospital and gave a cheerful greeting to all, giving special attention to any newcomer who might be having a hard time.

He never spoke of his own suffering, and if questioned made a joke about it. Living in the constant atmosphere and amid the depressing scenes of a hospital, he did not permit the surroundings to affect him.

Knowing his disease was incurable, the little cripple faced the future with a smile.

Nobody knows how many sleepless nights he spent on his little cot squeezing back the terrible pain.

The little fellow never stopped to question his Providence nor to debate in his mind the use of it all; and he put to shame the petulance of many a complaining neighbor.

He suffered—and smiled.

Despite his crippled state, the boy found something sweet—even amusing—about human life; something inextinguishable and worth while.

He died as he had lived—with a smile on his face.

What made him so brave?

At his age he could fortify himself with no deep philosophy respecting life, its compensations, its needs of optimism.

He merely made a short cut to the doctrine that, whatever happens, it is always best to make the best of it.

And so the lad went about in his wheeled chair, keenly alive to every slight humorous phase, making his quaint sayings, scattering his winsome smiles, bringing into the dark corners of suffering every glint of sunshine he was able to get and transmit.

I know men who have lived to be eighty years of age and who have been of much less use to the world than this boy of eight.

The Cure.

Patient—Doctor, I frequently experience a hissing sound in my ears. What would you advise me to do? Doctor—What is your occupation? Patient—I'm an actor. Doctor—Then I'd advise you to get some other kind of a job.
