

NEW MANAGERS PROVED FAILURES

Not One of Four Green Pilots Had Successful Season.

KLING A BIG DISAPPOINTMENT

Leader of Boston Nationals Was Expected to Show Rare Generalship. O'Day Will Retire to Ranks of Umpires—Davis and Wolverton Failures.

Not one of the four managers leading major league baseball teams for the first time in their careers this year put the Clarks, Chances, McGraws and Macks in the background.

The National league had two freshmen tacticians in Hank O'Day of the Cincinnati club and John Kling of the Boston club.

Hank O'Day, an old time pitcher, had been for years one of the successful members of the National league staff of umpires, and his appointment to a post where men like Buck Ewing, Bob Allen, Bid McPhee, Joe Kelley, Ned Hanlon, John Ganzel and Clark Griffith had failed caused great surprise among the fans.

But August Herrmann, the president of the Reds and a well liked figure in the sport, told the doubters that O'Day had watched the best pitchers, catchers and batsmen of the National league perform from the first season they entered the league, and surely had mastered the sport from the side of tactics.

He had seen the keen brained Kling, Dootin, Bresnahan and Archer vie with hitters like Wagner, Zimmerman, Doyle and Magee. He had seen pitchers like Mathewson, Brown and Rucker go through with their wizardry.

It looked at the start of the season that Garry's confidence in O'Day was not misplaced. The ex-ump quickly shot the Reds into the lead, and they held the top place in the National league race for many weeks, but there was a sudden collapse. The Giants soon collared the Reds, and once out of the lead, O'Day's team fell out of sight.

Unquestionably Hank will dust his old blue suit and return to the umpire staff again next spring. Herrmann is looking around for a successor, with F. Otto Knabe of the Phillies and Bill Sweeney of Boston the leading candidates.

John Kling, the Cub catcher, who helped Chance to win his pennants in 1906, 1907, 1908 and 1910, had long been wanted by other clubs as manager. Many owners believed that the success of the Cubs was due to Kling's generalship.

Rivals tampered with him, and because Chicago would not let him go Kling refused to play during the season of 1909, and Cub pennant successes stopped. He rejoined the Cubs in 1910, and Chance's men resumed their championship ways.

Kling was traded to Boston in the spring of 1911 and played last season under the direction of Fred Tenney. When the Boston club changed hands Tenney was dismissed and Kling took charge. But Kling hasn't been a success with the Braves. They are still playing tail end ball, although it is possible that the catcher may pull them out of their rut if the owners give him another chance.

The American league had two new bosses this year in Harry Wolverton of the Highlanders and Harry Davis of the Clevelanders. Neither has made a success of it. Injuries to players put Wolverton's team down and out this year.

On this account the showing of the team has not been held against Wolverton, and he will be at the helm again next year.

Harry Davis, the brainiest of the Mack school, didn't do much for the Naps.

Ill thinking fans in Cleveland condemned Davis, and he resigned. They expected him to mold a peasant winner right from the start, but this happens only in fairy books.

Performance Only Reliable Test
Performance, rather than promise, is the only reliable test of the consistency of any man with relation to the cause he advocates. Measured by this test, Ben Selling, progressive Republican nominee for United States Senator, qualified years ago as a consistent progressive. As a member of the Oregon Legislature, Mr. Selling not only advocated but assisted in the enactment of the following measures of popular legislation: Australian ballot law, direct primary law, initiative and referendum, recall and Presidential preference primary law.

MRS. GOERTHER AND CHILDREN.

STAFFORD

Monday it threatened rain, but only about one-twentieth of an inch fell here.

On Saturday last Mrs. Weddle had a bad fall, hitting her right hip and arm. Dr. Guy Mount, who was in the neighborhood was called in, and after a careful examination found no bones were broken, and pronounced it a bad sprain. She is still confined to her bed and at times suffering severe pain. Her husband telephoned Dr. Hugh Mount Tuesday, who found the muscles and tendons of the hip and back were severely strained and advised rest and simple applications, as the only thing to be done.

A man is expected here Friday evening to talk to all who are interested on the subject of electric lights for Stafford.

MACKSBURG

The fine weather of the past week has given a new impetus to the late corn and potatoes and an exceptionally large crop of both of these products seems assured.

The hop picking and the threshing are finished and have been very satisfactory. The grubbing and preparing new fields for planting goes on with vigor. The sound of the engines at work on the Canby and Molalla railroad keeping pace with the bustle and stir on the ranches near which the road is to pass.

A little daughter came to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Will Roth last week. Diedrich Harms and some of his family narrowly escaped fatal results from an accident due to the frightening of their team at the entrance to the bridge that crosses the Molalla about a mile south of Canby. The horses took fright and became uncontrollable at the appearance of a freight wagon. The rig was overturned and all the inmates thrown out, fortunately no one was seriously hurt.

Chris Roth, who was badly injured by a frightened horse last week, is making steady progress toward recovery. It is Mr. Roth's intention to retire from active life on his recovery and for this reason he intends to sell the ranch that has for many years been the family home. The sale is to take place September 27.

Mrs. James Byron, of Seattle, Wash.

The Best Light at the Lowest Cost

ELECTRIC LIGHT is the most suitable for homes, offices, shops and other places needing light. Electricity can be used in any quantity, large or small, thereby furnishing any required amount of light. Furthermore, electric lamps can be located in any place thus affording any desired distribution of light.

No other lamps possess these qualifications, therefore it is not surprising that electric lamps are rapidly replacing all others in modern establishments.
