THE TWO GREAT ISSUES

With great clearness and accuracy President Taft has stated the two great issues now before the American people. The first is the retention, on a sound and permanent basis, of the popular constitutional government under which, with an independent judiciary, the country has steadily progressed. The other is the continuance of the prosperity which has accompanied Republican administrations, and which has been especially observance under Taft.

In the hurry and bustle of everyday affairs we are apt to ignore the deep

FIRST YEAR VOTERS

They Should Vote With Republican Party.

It Has Stood for Progressive Policies Within Safe Lines and Has Given the Country Unexampled Prosperity.

Between three and four million young men in the United States this year cast their first vote. Every one of them should vote for President Taft and the Republican party.

In choosing his political affiliation the first voter should thoroughly study the platforms, principles and records of the great political parties, before allying himself with either.

PROF. WILSON'S SAD SITUATION.

Since he emerged from the cloistered seclusion of Princeton University into the mad whirl of politics, Professor Wilson has not led a happy life. When he was a college instructor and writing books which contained his real views, and when he was teaching young men through academic addresses, he wrote and said things which now as newly-fledged candidate, he deeply regrets.

We can well understand that Professor Wilson does not now like to be confronted with his denunciation of organized labor, his severe reflection upon the character of immigrants from southern Europe, and his protest against the payment of pensions to old soldiers. It is easy to imagine that all these things rise up to plague him. He realizes that they are things that no candidate for the presidency should have said.

As a matter of fact, they should not have been said by any American citizen who had the welfare of his country at heart. They show that Professor Wilson is a theorist, a person of shifting views without positive convictions, a man not of the people. He cannot now honestly assert that he did not mean what he said. What he believed then he believes now.

We extend to Professor Wilson our sincere sympathy in his dilemma. He is having trouble of his own. While he is explaining and shifting uneasily from one foot to the other, President Taft stands firmly upon the splendid record of his administration and of the Republican party and needs neither apology nor defense.

First Thing in Order.

Teacher—Johnny, if I gave you 5 cents and your brother 10 cents, what would that make? Johnny—Trouble.

A Man With Ambitions

By M. QUAD

It was a hot day, and Abe Shreter sat on a chair under the awning of Skinner's grocery with his feet on the head of a barrel and his hand nodding with drowsiness. Colonel Harper, who had come into town and left his mule hitched in front of the postoffice, came along on his way to the drug store and halted to say: "That yo', Abe? I declare yo' to goodness but I didn't know yo' at first sight. Powerful hot day in town."

Republican Party Will Live.

The first voter will not be received by the attack now made upon the Republican party by men who are smart under the ailing of disappointed ambition. This is not the first year in which the Republican party has been subjected to similar experiences. There was the bolt of the Liberal Republicans to Horace Greeley in 1872, the defections in the early '90's to the Farmers' Alliance, Greenback and Populist parties and the withdrawal of the Silver Republicans in 1896.

Linnaeus and His Works. How much sleep do men need? Jeremy Taylor was content with three hours. Baxter with four. Wesley with six. Bismarck and Gladstone needed eight, but Goethe, Napoleon, Mirabeau and Humboldt professed that they could get along very well with less.

The man who left the Republican party in the past have gone down to political oblivion. Those who have remained with the Republican party have, on the contrary, proudly participated in its great achievements. The Republican party offers to its first voter the splendid record of its past and the glorious promise of its future.

Dress of Our Women Is Extremely Immodest

If there be an increase in annoyance to women upon the streets I am inclined to think that it can be TRACED TO THE DRESS OF THE WOMEN.

THE AVERAGE WORKING GIRL TODAY IS TAKING, NO DOUBT IGNORANTLY, AS HER STANDARD OF DRESS THAT OF THE DEMIMONDE. IT IS NO WONDER THAT SHE, CONSCIOUSLY OR UNCONSCIOUSLY, INVITES MEN'S ATTENTIONS.

Girls of fourteen and fifteen years of age are quick to imitate, and when they see their mothers and other women wearing tight skirts and short skirts they naturally consider it the right thing and FOLLOW THEIR EXAMPLE.

Unquestionably the styles affected by women are having an UNWHOLESAME EFFECT UPON THE MORALS OF THE NATION. Many of these styles are decidedly immodest. But can we blame young girls for adopting them when well dressed women show them the way?

Who is responsible? The girls' mothers. They should use good counsel and their authority with the young women.
