

Republican Candidates

E. P. DEDMAN.

To the voters and citizens of Clackamas County:
As the nominee of the Republican party for the office of Recorder of Conveyances of Clackamas County I wish to state that I have been a resident of this county for over thirty years. I am and have been for many years a farmer by occupation and a tax payer. I have had previous experience in the Recorder's office and know how the work should be carried on. I am deeply interested in the welfare of this county and believe I will be able to conduct the office of County Recorder in such a manner as will be of benefit to all the people. If you see fit to trust me with this office I will at all times be found attending strictly to my duty as recorder and will always conduct the office in a strictly business-like manner.

Yours truly,
E. P. DEDMAN.

I am now acting as Coroner of Clackamas County by virtue of an appointment made by the County Court on July 5, 1911. Since that time I have endeavored to fill the office with credit to the County. If the voters of this county see fit to entrust this office to me and thus express their approval of my past record, I shall at all times endeavor to do my duty and will always be on the job.

Yours truly,
WM. J. WILSON

J. A. TUFTS

Mr. Tufts will succeed himself as treasurer of Clackamas County. He will in the future, as he has done in the past, be on the job all the time. He has and will work for the interests of the tax payers. He will give fair and courteous treatment to all.

TAUGHT WOOD TO PITCH.

Uncle of Boston's Star Twirler Claims He Discovered Nephew's Ability.

Mr. Samuel Sheffer of Chicago, an uncle of "Smoky Joe" Wood of the Boston Red Sox, claims the credit for having discovered his nephew's flinging wing along about fifteen years ago and also the further credit of having aided in its development at that time. Joe was approaching then the serious age of some eight years, but, it appears, had already begun his preparation for a pitching career.

Mr. Sheffer tells of many a Sunday afternoon spent in the woods south of Chicago with Joe pegging manfully for hours at a tin can perched on a stump. Uncle Sam's part of the performance consisted of the arduous task of rerepurching the can after Joe had knocked it south with an insubstantial target practice sessions waned only when the youngster became altogether too proficient.

These training trips saw the beginnings of that "smoke" which has since made Joe famous, and they contain a very valuable suggestion for the youngsters who have the forests and the tin cans at hand, the forests being a prime requisite, however, in these degenerate days of plate glass windows and apartment houses.

If you saw it in the Enterprise it's so.

WM. J. WILSON.

To the voters of Clackamas County:

CARPENTIER'S CAREER.

Marvelous Success of Eighteen-year-old Boxer of France.

Ten years ago boxing was practically an unknown sport in France. Today a lad of eighteen is their middleweight champion. How this remarkable result was brought about was explained recently by Georges Carpentier, whom all France believes is a future champion of the world.

With the head and build of a young Roman gladiator, Carpentier's manner is modest and unassuming.

"When I was quite a baby," he said, "I used to startle my parents by the terrific punches I gave to other children—quite unintentionally. At the age of nine I joined a gymnasium society, presided over by my present manager, M. Descompes. Although my children were strictly forbidden to box I was caught one day having a few rounds with a youngster about twice as big as myself. Although he gave me a reprimand Descompes couldn't help admiring the way I wiped the floor with my adversary, and promised to give me a few lessons. After the third his mind was made up, but my parents had different ideas about my future.

"The time had come for me to begin my apprenticeship as a 'pit boy' at 20 cents a day. If I had done as they wanted I might have been 'on strike' now, like my former mining comrades. Descompes came to the rescue. He offered to pay my parents the amount of wages I would have received if they would let him take me in hand for six months. They agreed, and I don't think they ever regretted it, as they now own a good hotel which I bought for them for $20,000.

"My first prize was one of $50. There are some good boxers among the stable lads employed, but I managed to beat them after a hard struggle. I became a professional boxer.

"I needn't tell you anything about my big matches, as you probably know as much about them as I do. Besides, the lookers on see most of the game, don't they? Have I ever been knocked out? Yes, but it was the English champion that did it. The day I crossed to meet Young Josephs I was sick as a dog. If I had been obliged to box the same day a child could have knocked me out in one round. The next time I cross I'll ask one of our flying men to take me over.

"I had a narrow escape, too, when I was giving exhibition bouts with Jack Johnson. Unintentionally, I think, he caught me a hook on the jaw that staggered me, but I countered with an undercut that seemed a revelation to him. Of course I know that he could have pulverized me if he had wanted to, but we didn't continue the sparring bouts. I was not sorry, as I must have cut a ridiculous figure beside the 'black giant,' but I learned some useful tricks from him.

"I have always learned a good deal while watching other boxers, especially my future adversaries. When you know the style and mentality of a boxer you hold two trump cards. Always try to draw first blood. It helps to demoralize your opponent.

"I get up every day at 8 and go for an hour's walk. At 9:30 a light breakfast, consisting of weak cocoa and toast. From 10 till noon I read or 'loaf about.' At noon a substantial lunch, consisting of underdone meat bread and a little fruit, washing down with copious drafts of light beer. After lunch I walk for a half hour. At 3 my real work begins. I do an hour's gymnastics, principally Swedish, which keep the muscles supple. After that I do a quarter of an hour's skipping and the same amount of punching the ball.

"Then twenty minutes' rest. I finish with three rounds of three minutes each with my sparring partner, then a shower bath and five minutes' massage. So you see my day's work is finished in about two hours.

"I dine at 7, with practically the same bill of fare as at lunch, plus a little cheese. After dinner I pass the time as pleasantly as I can until 10:30, which is my bed time. It's all pretty easy, isn't it? Yes, I smoke one cigarette a day on the sly.

"Up to the present the greatest difficulty I have had has been to keep my weight down. Thank goodness, I can enjoy a good, square meal now, and I am in the heavy brigade. I was five ounces over when I stepped on the scales before my match with Harry Lewis and had to pay $400 forfeit. That beats old Shylock's pound of flesh, doesn't it?"

DARTMOUTH'S GIANT PLAYER.

Hanover Football Eleven Has Six Foot Four Lineman This Season.

As for several years past, the Dartmouth rush line will be big, heavy and powerful, but there is one giant who stands out above even such rangy fellows as Engelhorn, Whitmore, Captain Bennett, Estep and Margeson.

This is J. H. Beer, '14, who stands six feet four inches in his stocking feet and who is trying for guard or tackle, having played both positions on the varsity a year ago.

It is said that when Beer came from Lawrenceville academy two years back and climbed the hill into Hanover, carrying his own grip, the sophomores ran to the woods.

HOW ROOSEVELT RESEMBLES LINCOLN

Lincoln. "With malice toward none, with charity for all."

Roosevelt. "I will yield 'em to a frazzle."

Lincoln. "We are not enemies, but friends. We must not be enemies. Though passion may have strained, it must not break the bonds of affection."

Lincoln. In answer to an aspersion on his character, you stated publicly that you were in possession of a fact, or facts, which, if known to the public, would entirely destroy the prospects of myself at the ensuing election. I hope that upon more mature reflection you will view the public interest as the paramount consideration.—Lincoln to Colonel Robert A. Lincoln.

In addition to these choicely digested expressions, Theodore Roosevelt, formerly holder of the greatest office on earth, lately, in announcing his candidacy, added the phrase, "My hat is in the ring."

When Judge A. B. Anderson of Indianapolis, a highly respected gentleman, rendered a decision in the Panama Canal scandal, which was displeasing to Mr. Roosevelt, he is reported to have made the following courteous comment: "Judge Anderson is a damned jackass, he is a crook and a jackass, and I do not care if the whole world knows it."

Also, when addressing a crowd at Joplin, Mo., a few days since, he saw a man in his audience wearing a yellow Taft badge. This caused him to remark, that the color of the badge was very appropriate, as any man who would support Taft had a yellow streak in him somewhere. Can you imagine the kind and broad-minded Lincoln, to whom Roosevelt likes to compare himself, making such a remark to one who honestly differed with him politically?

WHO IS MR. PERKINS?

Who is George W. Perkins? Who is the man who stands ready to put up unlimited cash to get Roosevelt elected? Here is the answer, cut from the pages of the report of the Steel Investigating Committee of the House of Representatives:

- Director of the United States Steel Corporation.
- Chairman of finance committee and director of International Harvester Co.
- Director of Astor Trust Co.
- Director of Bankers' Trust Co.
- Director of Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton Railroad Co.
- Director of Cincinnati, New Orleans & Texas Pacific Railway Co.
- Director Erie Railroad Co.
- Director German-American Insurance Co.
- Director German Alliance Insurance Co.
- Director International Mercantile Marine Co.
- Director Marquette & Bessemer Dock & Navigation Co.
- Director National City Bank of New York.
- Trustee of New York Trust Co.
- Director of Northern Pacific Railway Co.
- Chairman of board, Pere Marquette Railroad Co.

Nearly all of these companies control or own a large number of other companies.

Mr. Perkins is a shrewd man. He has millions of dollars invested in the various corporations and trusts above enumerated. Several of them are now being prosecuted by the Taft administration. Is he financing Mr. Roosevelt's campaign in order to have in the White House a friend or an enemy? William Allen White of Kansas, in an appeal for contributions to the Third Term campaign fund, said: "The men who finance the campaign control the administration." Does the country want an administration which is controlled by a director in fifteen different trusts and corporations?

LaFollette No. 6.

FIGHT WITHIN REPUBLICAN PARTY.

It seems to me that the highest obligation of real progressive Republicans in every state is to maintain their organization and continue to fight within the lines of the Republican party for progressive principles, policies and candidates. No aid or encouragement should be given to a third party plan to divide the progressive vote and destroy the progressive Republican movement. No break should be permitted in the progressive ranks which will endanger the election of any true progressive Republican anywhere.—Senator LaFollette's Weekly Magazine, July 27, 1912.

LaFollette No. 5.

"IN NO PARTISAN SPIRIT I repeat that the progressive movement began within the Republican party. It rapidly advanced its control, shaping the policies of state administrations and stamping its impress upon national legislation as a distinctly progressive Republican movement, and upon this fact in recent political history I appeal to progressive Republicans everywhere to maintain their organization within the Republican party."—Senator LaFollette in LaFollette's Weekly Magazine, July 27, 1912.

Pathetic Yearning.

"I wish I were an orphan," said little five-year-old Bessie to her mother, who passed much of her time visiting charitable institutions.

"Why, dear?" queried the mother. "Cause I'd see you oftener," replied Bessie. "for you are all the time going to orphan asylums."—Chicago News.

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

HANDICAPS.

Young man: I want you to read what Macaulay says about the opposing generals at the battle of Merwinden:

"Of all the 120,000 men gathered around Merwinden under all the standards of western Europe, it is probable that the two feeblest in body were the hunchbacked dwarf who urged forward the fiery onslaught of France and the asthmatic skeleton who covered England's slow retreat."

You are neither a hunchbacked dwarf nor an asthmatic skeleton. But suppose you were? Or, suppose you are a runt and a weakling, physically?

Nevertheless, take courage! There's Napoleon. You think of him as a robust, sawedoff little giant, able to get along with four hours' sleep, but do you know—

He came to Paris an undersized, hollow cheeked boy, at whom they poked fun at the engineering school because he was small? Even after he had shown special talent as an artilleryman he was dismissed from the army and despaired of his future.

He tells us about making the this soup upon which he and his brother lived, and he says, "I breakfasted off dry bread, but I bolted the door on my poverty."

Note the nerve and the fine pride of the phrase.

Most young men would have given up. After seven years as lieutenant there was no promotion in sight, but the little corporal wrote in his diary: "I've done all I can do. Now let the world look out!"

And there's Theodore Roosevelt—A puny city lad who left New York, went west and lived the cowboy life in order to save himself from a premature death. Think or say what you like about Roosevelt politically, there are few men who are his peers physically.

And of literary men there are Darwin, who was an invalid for forty years, and Stevenson, who when he could not raise his head from his pillow wrote stuff that will live.

Do not these instances—and there are hundreds more—make you ashamed to say you cannot do what you want to do, or be what you want to be?

The flesh may be weak, but is the spirit willing?

When you can say with Napoleon, "I've done all I can," then you can also say:

"Now let the world look out."
And it will look out for you—and get out of you.

The Best Light at the Lowest Cost

ELECTRIC LIGHT is the most suitable for homes, offices, shops and other places needing light. Electricity can be used in any quantity, large or small, thereby furnishing any required amount of light. Furthermore, electric lamps can be located in any place thus affording any desired distribution of light.

No other lamps possess these qualifications, therefore it is not surprising that electric lamps are rapidly replacing all others in modern establishments.
