SOME NEW STARS IN AQUATIC LINE

Three Youngsters Have Already Made Bids For Fame.

EDDY THE MOST PROMISING.

Rathel and Heath Excel in Distance Work a Thing to Be Desired—Rise of New Generation Is Gratifying—America Will Be Stronger Than Ever.

One of the most pleasing features of the 1912 outdoor swimming season, a remarkable one in many ways, was the discovery of three young swimmers of unusual caliber, who promise to make their mark in distance work, the branch of aquatic sports in which Americans are weakest and which is most in need of encouragement and development.

The sterling trio includes J. C. Eddy, Jr., of the City Athletic club of New York; J. Rathel of the Illinois Athletic club of Chicago and Frank Heath of the Missouri Athletic club of St. Louis.

Eddy, the youngest of the three, is only seventeen years old, but his name has been before the public for some time, thanks to his clever sprinting. Last winter he more than once traveled the century under one minute and the furlong around 2 minutes 40 seconds besides being among the candidates for the Olympic relay team.

It was not until the summer, however, that he gave any indication of his ability in the longer distances. On Aug. 25 he stepped unheralded into the limelight by finishing third in the quarter mile metropolitan championship and beating several men who were ranked with the best in excellent time. Then he took second in the national quarter mile race, third in both the national and metropolitan half mile swims and third again in the one mile championship, a noteworthy list of performances for a lad of his age, and it will not take much improvement to land him on top of the heap.

Rathel is Eddy's senior by one year and has given evidence of all round skill that stamps him a formidable rival to the leading veterans. He was a member of the western quartet that lowered the world's 400 yard relay record from 3 minutes 55 3-5 seconds to 3 minutes 52 2-5 seconds last April, and has other feats of speed to his credit. Of his endurance little was known until he met Bud Goodwin in the one mile national race in Chicago on Sept. 1. He stuck close to the New York Athletic club man for most of the long journey and pressed him so hard that the watches showed a new record when the latter shot over the finish line.

Goodwin said later that he tried vainly to shake his young rival for three-quarters of the distance and that he considered him one of the most dangerous miles now in the field. He added that Rathel's stroke is far from perfect and that when he corrects his faults the classic record will be at his mercy.

Heath does not appear to be the equal of the others over courses shorter than two miles, but beyond that he stands head and shoulders above them, and at five and ten miles there are many who think even Goodwin would have trouble in leading him home. It was a source of regret that the pair failed to meet. Both were anxious to settle the question of superiority, but the conflicting dates brought about by the Olympic games prevented. Heath won the ten mile national championship in convincing fashion, and then, eager to try conclusions with Goodwin, traveled to Philadelphia for the Pawling Marathon, in which the New Yorker was expected to start. Unfortunately, the metropolitan half was scheduled for the next day, and Goodwin was unable to leave town, so that the last chance of seeing the two matched was lost. Heath, however, has the title.

The rapid rise of the new generation of swimmers is most gratifying and warrants the hope that the next international competition will see American fighters successfully for distance honors as well as in sprinting, at which they have already proved an undisputed supremacy.

HOP GROWERS ARE FINDING GOOD DEMAND

Several of the hop growers of the state are disposing of their crops and among those who have sold during the past few days are Krays & Siebert, 16 bales at 14 cents a pound; Coyle, of St. Paul, Or., twenty-three bales at seventeen cents; S. J. McDonald, Joe Hiller and J. L. Cook, at St. Paul, at fourteen and fifteen cents. Mishler & Gribble, H. L. Bentz bought seventy-three bales of hops from B. J. Grimm. He also bought twelve bales from J. H. Sangulnette, of Hubbard; seventy-nine bales from George Oglesby, of Aurora, this crop being about the finest that has been sold. Aurora is a hop country and many of the best hops that are grown in the state are from that section.

Many of the grocers have shipments of peaches from southern Oregon that are excellent for this time of the year. They are finding good demand.

Prevailing Oregon City prices are as follows:

THE GHOST HUNT.

Jolly Sport For the Halloween Party.

HALLOWEEN JACK HORNER PIE.

Have a ghost hunt if you are planning a Halloween party. It's really lots of fun, and your guests will all want to come again next year.

Have James Whitcomb Riley's famous words "F'r the gobbles-uns 'll git you ef you don't watch out" in large letters over the door, which opens with a clank of chains when the guests enter.

Every one, of course, wears a false face and a domino or fancy dress. When they are all assembled the lights are turned low and a guide in Mephisto makeup or dressed as a witch takes the party on the ghost hunt. Not a word may be spoken, not a giggle heard, no matter what the provocation. Every one must look straight ahead. Something dreadful will happen to him if he is so much as turns his head from side to side.

The guide leads on through doors that open and close with a bang. Goblins with hideously painted faces and holding stuffed clubs are stationed along the way to punish offenders. The party is led upstairs through dark rooms where open windows make the air cold; up into the attic, which is lighted only with burning alcohol and salt; then down and out into the yard and, if there is an outside cellar door, through this into the cold, damp cellar. All along the route imitation "spooks" are met in the most unexpected places. Grinning jack o' lantern heads with ghostly bodies peer out from dark corners. False faces with lights behind them, black cats, bats and big toy spiders hang from webs made of string.

The guests are let to stumble over small objects left in their path, in pans and things that make as much noise as possible.

The chief ghost is seated behind a canvas screen in the cellar, and around him are groups of small goblins.

The ghost hunters sit on the floor in silence for a few minutes. Then the aid of the chief ghost names a guest and gives a list of his pet sins and weaknesses. When this is done the chief asks the sinner if he has any defense to make and if he can satisfactorily clear himself. He is made to solemnly promise to tell a ghost story when supper is being served.

If, however, he cannot offer any good excuse for his sins the chief names his punishment. This is made as ridiculous as possible. The trip back from the chief ghost's cave is made as funny as possible. You can plan all sorts of tricks to play on the "hunters."

The "hunt" ends with a daintily served supper, with appropriate table decorations, food and tea, not forgetting plenty of apples, nuts, candy and fruit. Favors and pretty souvenirs are given each guest before the evening's entertainment is brought to a close.

The ever popular Jack Horner pie is in evidence this year among Halloween novelties, and the one illustrated is the very latest and prettiest of its kind. As you see, the carrot has the place of honor as a decoration. The pie proper is covered with a frill of pumpkin colored crepe paper.

In the shops these novelties are quite expensive, but any one at all skilled in making paper trifles can easily evolve one of these pies.

Fall Hat Predictions.
Fancy feathers in profusion. Stiff wings on smart walking hats. Plush is to have a decided vogue. Contrary to custom, many early hats are large.

Oddities are less in favor than in the last few seasons.

The bewitching new Quaker hat is singularly appropriate.

Crowns are large and most of the fall hats will come well down on the head.

Pistache, capucine, lilac and magenta are shades the Parisienne will adopt.

Horn buckles are a favorite kind of trimming.

Fuchsia will be used in combination with the more somber tones.

The mandarin hat raised a little at the back by a bandeau is tres chic.

Genuine Loveliness.
Being pretty does not necessarily hinder a woman from being intellectual. If she is clever enough to be beautiful she should be smart enough to be intellectual.

The girl who is plain is plain because she does not know how to be otherwise. Beautifying of one kind brings along beauty of another kind. The girl who cultivates a sweet, smiling face finds it so attractive that she trains her heart to melt it.

If it happened it is in the Enterprise.

MIDDLEWEIGHTS NUMEROUS.

At Least Six Figure to Have a Chance For Championship.

Jack Johnson gracefully carries the heavyweight chip on his shoulder without the least molestation. Ad Wolgast is wearing the lightweight crown. two powerful arms, either of which had a knockout punch concealed in the biceps of an alert boxer and fighter of the grit and the stamina of a young tiger. For further information as to whose possession the title rightfully belongs we will have to consult a sextet of members of the 158 pound class—namely, Mike Gibbons of St. Paul, Eddie McGoorty of Oshkosh, Wis.; Frank Klaus of Pittsburgh, Leo Houck of Lancaster, Pa.; Billy Papke of Spring Valley, Ill. and Jack Dillon of Indianapolis.

For two years the title has been disputed. Surely one of this sextet has the necessary qualifications to come into undisputed possession of the honor. Mike Gibbons may be carrying the coveted prize around in his physique hidden in his shifty form and protected by two automatic-like hands. It may be that Eddie McGoorty has it concealed in his left hook that put two foreign contestants on the shelf within two weeks.

Klaus or Papke may have it stored away in their rugged forms. Leo Houck's apparent, backed by all round cleverness, is a possibility. Jack Dillon is a dark horse.

MISSSES MATTLEY ARE HOSTESSES OF CLUB

Miss Maude Mattley and Miss Belle Mattley were the hostesses of a needlework club at their home on Seventh and Monroe streets Tuesday evening, this being the second meeting held by the organization, the first one being at the home of Miss Hazel Francis. At the meeting Tuesday evening the club was given the name of "The Needlecraft Club." It has about twenty-five members. The Misses Mattley proved to be charming hostesses. Some of the members who did not care to indulge in needlework spent the evening playing cards. Refreshments were served.

Those attending were Miss Queen Adams, Miss Alice Bailey, Miss Nieta Harding, Miss Kathryn Sinnott, Miss Stella Cross, Miss Genevieve Capen, Miss Louise Walker, Miss Irene Moore, Miss Ruth Brightbill, Miss Madge Brightbill, Miss Nellie Swafford, Miss Ivy Ford, Miss Wynne Hanny, Miss Lillian Anderson, Miss Myrtle Parker, Miss Dolly Pratt, Miss Vera Canfield, Miss Florence Grace, Miss Van Brakle, Miss Nell Canfield, Miss June Charman, Miss Maua Mattley, Miss Belle Mattley and Miss Hazel Francis.

THINK SELVES SHOT AS TIRE BLOWS UP

As Dr. C. A. Stewart was returning from the Sellwood hospital a few days ago, with three passengers in his automobile, the machine had a blowout. The report was heard a mile away. The men in the back seat thought they had been shot and gave a cry of alarm. A look at the wheel of the automobile reassured them. The inner tire as well as the outer tire had been blown entirely off the rim. Dr. Stewart, at once telephoned to this city to a garage for another machine, but the man misconstrued the order, and instead of going on the Clackamas road where the machine was stalled he took the Portland road, going the entire distance to Sellwood. It was soon learned that the man was on the wrong road and another call was put in for a machine. The party was delayed more than two hours.

DERTHICK CLUB HAS FINE PROGRAM

The Dertthick club held its first meeting of the season Friday afternoon at the home of Miss Muriel Stevens, Sixth and Washington streets, when the hostesses of the afternoon were Miss Stevens and Mrs. J. C. Lewis, of Los Angeles, Cal., and Mrs. William Burghardt, of Salem. Every number given by these musicians was heartily received. Refreshments were served. The decorations were of carnations and roses. The next meeting of the club will be held in two weeks, and will be a business meeting, when Mrs. Dimick will be assisted in entertaining by Mrs. Carl Joehnke.

The following was the program of the afternoon: (a) "If," by Luigi Denza; (b) "Where My Caravan has Rested," by Herman Lohr; (c) "Three Dream Bonnets," by Guy Gui d'Haldelet; (d) "The Rose in the Garden," by W. H. Neidlinger; (e) "Calm as the Night," by Carl Bohn; (f) "Ave Maria," by Charles Gounod; "Mother o' Mine," by Frank E. Louis; "The Year's at the Spring," by Miss H. A. Beech; "Love is a Bubble." These numbers were given by Mrs. Lewis, and accompanied by Mrs. Burghardt, who followed with piano selections, including (a) "Ende Vom Lied," by Schumann; (b) "Vogger Prophete," by Schumann; (c) "Barrolee in G," by Rubenstein.

The following attended: Mrs. G. A. Harding, Mrs. C. G. Huntley, Mrs. C. H. Melsner, Mrs. J. P. Moffatt, Mrs. E. A. Chapman, Mrs. S. O. Dillman, Mrs. Edward Schwab, Mrs. J. P. Clark, Mrs. C. H. DR. SHELDON TO SPEAK AT MASS MEETING

Tickets have been printed for the union banquet to be given by the men of the churches to Dr. Charles Sheldon next Friday evening. They will be distributed to the brotherhoods Sunday. About 200 men can be accommodated and it is expected that the full number will be present. The dinner will be held in the basement of the Baptist church. Dr. Sheldon is expected to respond to a toast and others will speak. It is expected that a plan will be presented looking to the federation of the churches in the work of social-service and civic betterment in the city to be managed by a central committee representing all the Protestant churches that are willing to take part. Dr. Sheldon will address a mass meeting immediately after the banquet. This will be held in the main audience room of the church at 8 o'clock. The public is cordially invited to attend.
