"Chores," a Word of Ancient Lineage. The word "chose," generally used in the plural, is not slang, but an English word of highly respectable lineage. In this form it is found only in America. In England the spelling and pronunciation being "char." Though this is rarely used except in combination with "woman"—"charwoman." But in some of the provincial dialects, that of Cornwall, for example, the word "chores" is used precisely as we use "chores." All these forms come down to us from the Anglo-Saxon word "cær," or "cæran," to turn over.—New York World.

BROWN VELVET GOWN

Elegant simplicity is the keynote of this distinctive little gown of leaf brown velvet and ecru lace. It boasts a new sleeve model with deep cuff and medium sized puff above; the cuff finished with a frill of lace over the hand. Both blouse and skirt are buttoned directly down the front with a closely set row of small buttons covered in self-tone satin. The edge of this closing is finished with a graduated frill of lace which falls in jabot effect. The only other priming is a collar of ecru shadow lace falling in a point on either side of the front and in a single point in the back.

Heart to Heart Talks.

SEEING THINGS.

Oculists tell us we can see but 50 per cent of the things at which we look. If so how much smaller percentage we really see. Because—

No two people see the same thing in the same sense—that is to say: Suppose two men and a woman walk down the street together. One man is interested in buildings and gives particular attention to architecture. The other one thinks of buying an automobile, and his eyes follow every machine that passes. The woman is interested in dress, and she carefully notes costumes.

Now—

Ask the man interested in buildings about the automobiles or the automobile seer about buildings or ask the woman about the buildings or machines or the men about dresses.

Each sees what he wants to see. Seeing only what he wants to see, he passes over the others, and does not really see them. As Stevenson says: Two men looked out from prison bars. One saw mud, another stars.

One saw mud because he looked for mud, the other stars because he looked for stars.

Besides, there is the element of subjective vision. For instance, your pet dog may appear to you to be a very homely sort of animal, but to you he is a handsome dog. There's a light in the dog's eyes I cannot see.

Your wife is beautiful to you; to me she may lack many of the elements of comeliness. I cannot see that your sweetheart is particularly pretty; she is handsome in your eyes.

Your home may appear poor to the stranger; to you it is beautiful because it is home. And no one appreciates the furnishings of your own room, enriched by the gifts and purchases of years.

We cannot see alike. Each of us sees a different world.

Which should teach us tolerance and charity. Though your neighbor cannot see as you do, he is as honest as you are. He thinks you are wrong; you know he is wrong. Possibly both of you are wrong.

Do not make up your mind until you have seen all sides, because—

The man who sees things from a single standpoint is apt to be narrow, provincial, convicted, possibly prejudiced. He lacks the sweep of the broader vision, the horizon of the wider view.

Air We Breathe.

An ordinary human being uses up 267 cubic feet of air within the twenty-four hours.

TRUDELL BEATS BOWER IN POOL CONTEST

W. M. Trudell won a hotly contested pool match from H. H. Bower, at a local billiard hall Monday afternoon. Mr. Bower, several weeks ago, beat Mr. Trudell easily, but the latter subsequently won a series of games, and the contest Monday was to determine which was the better player. Mr. Bower was defeated in three straight games, and his opponent was declared the winner of the series between the two. Both are excellent players and friends are trying to arrange another match between them. Players are in rare form and a turn match would be appreciated by their friends.

Lobsters have a great dread of thunder and when peans are very loud will swim to deeper water.

CORRESPONDENCE

SUNNYSIDE AND ROCK CREEK.

The recital given by Mrs. Eva C. Wheeler at Sunnyside church October 15 was quite well attended, considering the stormy evening. All the numbers given were fine.

Oscar Bevan is at home again.

On Sunday Everett Hubbard and family went to Arletto to help Geo. Deardorff eat birthday dinner.

Sunday morning at 8 o'clock Mrs. S. E. Young passed from this life. She was loved by all who knew her and her old neighbors will miss her. She leaves her husband, two daughters, Ruth and Faith and a son, Curtis, also four sisters. The funeral was held Tuesday, October 22, at 1:30 P. M., at the Dankard church at Damascus. The body was laid to rest in Damascus cemetery. Rev. Sellwood had charge of the services. All extend tending to business connected with his farm at this place.

This vicinity was visited by a heavy wind storm Friday night and we are having a downpour of rain at the present time.

A couple of ladies are holding an evangelistic meeting at the Grange hall this week.

Hult's saw mill company are putting a new boiler in their mill at this place. Mr. Rhinehart, of Portland is doing the work.

There is quite an interest taken in the spelling contest going on at this place and there is quite an improvement in the spelling of the pupils who are attending.

The Rev. Piper, who has been appointed to preach for the Methodist church at this place has taken rooms at C. T. Howard's where he will reside during his pastorate here.

Nels Fosmark is planning on an extended excursion, where it will tend to miltate no seems to know, but nevertheless he is strong in his assertions that he will soon be on his way.

Mr. Sanden and family were very much surprised, Saturday evening, when a large number of their neighbors made a social call on them, refreshments were served and a general good time made everyone present feel delighted.

REMOVE THE CAUSE

THERE IS NO USE TRYING TO CURE ECZEMA UNLESS YOU DESTROY THE GERM

Eczema, it is now known, is caused by living germs, or parasites. These must be destroyed in curing the disease. No remedy for eczema that is not designed for this particular purpose will be effective. It may relieve the itching for a time, but will not cure.

An eczema remedy, to be of permanent value, must remove the cause. Soothing the inflamed surface is not all that is necessary. Zemo is intended to do both—remove the cause, and ease the pain until the cause is removed—or your money back. No matter what form your eczema takes—no matter what kind of skin irritation you may be suffering from—we guarantee that Zemo will relieve you, or your money back. In the scores of cases in which we have sold it, it has given satisfaction, relieving cases of eczema that ranged from the hard, scaly kind to the weeping variety. We are justified in having faith in Zemo. We are showing this faith in a practical, convincing way when we offer a money-back guarantee with each and every sale. You need not hesitate. If you want a remedy that will soothe and cool and heal eczema, use Zemo. It is a special remedy designed to remove the cause of your trouble and bring refreshing relief. If it doesn't—your money back. Prices, 50 cents and $1.00. Sold in this community only at our store, The Rexall Store, Huntley Bros. Co.
