TO THINK ABOUT.

It may be that this is at variance with your previous knowledge of osteopathy—that you have only heard of it being a good thing in certain chronic ailments. Yet any physician of whatever school, is more certain, everything else being equal, of scoring success in a new and acute case than in an old and chronic one. It is a fact, of course, that Osteopathy has won most of its laurels in curing old cases for which other systems no longer held out any hope. At first it was only such cases that ever came to the Osteopath; and success has brought so many of these cases to him that he is often unable to devote as much time as he wishes to the treatment of acute troubles.—Right Way.

COUPLE REUNITED THROUGH ELECTION

Despite the ravings of the iconoclast, or the suicidal urgings of the pessimist, a Clackamas County couple has proved that elections sometimes serve a good purpose. Laura Ripley Mack was granted a divorce last Thursday from F. L. Mack. The couple lived on a farm near Sandy. The suit was of unusual interest in that all the attorneys who live in Gladstone were employed in it. The plaintiff was represented by Cross & Hammond and the defendant by Sievers, Fisher & Sievers. The plaintiff was awarded a divorce and given the custody of their two children. Immediately after the handing down of the decree the defendant went to his farm to get his goods and chattels. After he had been there a little while he decided that he should remain until election so as not to lose his vote. He felt it his paramount duty to do so. As a result he and his former wife pitched up their differences and coming to town Monday, they obtained a marriage license and Rev. C. W. Robinson, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church officiated at the wedding. It is assured that Mr. Mack will vote for equal suffrage.

Telford Lauds Teddy In Burns Paraphrase

Max Telford, the pioneer Bull Moose of Clackamas County, is responsible for the following paraphrase of "The Brotherhood of Man." "A king can make a belted knight, A marquis, duke and a' that; But there's a higher mark for Teddy yet. No king or emperor saw that. Carnegie may have his halls of fame, His libraries and a' that; But the man who lives within our hearts Has higher place than a' that. As sure as He that rules the stars, This earth and us and a' that; And 'teddy means what Teddy says, He deserves our vote for a' that. And by that vote for women cast, For human rights and a' that; The man who loves his neighbor best, Is king of men, for a' that."

A Church Wedding.

If a bride elect has selected a church for the setting of the ceremony she should insist on punctuality. She and her attendants should arrive exactly on the hour mentioned in her invitations or a few minutes before. The mother and any sisters and brothers of the bride arrive a little before the bride, and the mother, on the arm of the head usher, walks to her seat, the first pew on the left at the head of the center aisle. On the arrival of the bride, her father and attendants the center aisle is cleared by the ushers, and news is sent to the groom and the organist. As the wedding march peals out the ushers advance toward the chancel. Then the bridesmaids, two and two, walk up the aisle. The maid or matron of honor immediately precedes the bride, who is leaning on the arm of her father or her nearest male relative. The ushers divide into two groups and pass to the side of the chancel. The bridesmaids do the same. The bride is met by the groom at the head of the aisle and removes her hand from her father's arm, taking that of the groom. She is led to a place in front of the clergyman, her maid of honor standing at her left and her father standing behind her until the moment of giving her away. After he has done this he steps to the pew on the left beside his wife. The bride hands her bouquet to her maid of honor as the moment for giving away arrives. After the ceremony the bride turns and places her left hand on the arm of her husband. The pair move down the aisle, followed by the maid of honor and the best man and then the bridesmaids with the ushers. They enter the chancel, waiting for them and drive to the bride's home. The parents of the bride follow immediately and after the entire bridal party and special guests have passed out the other guests leave. Music is played until the church is empty. When the bride has no attendants no further remains at her side during the entire ceremony. If a daughter gives a bride, the bride walks up the aisle on the arm of a brother or sister. When the organist asks "who gives the away" the mother rises in her "wedding dress" and says, "I do, and you do."

These are the important points in a church wedding. The personal taste and ideas of the bride may change these somewhat but the general idea remains the same.

Football Injuries Thus Far Not Due to New Rules.

SO OPINES OFFICIAL FARRIER.

Most of the Accidents Have Occurred During Practice—Good Coaches at Smaller Colleges the Cause—Larry McLean to Turn Fighter.

By TOMMY CLARK. "The number of accidents which have occurred this year almost before the football season has really started is very regrettable, but I can't see that it has any relation to the change in the rules," said Al Farrier, the old Dartmouth center and now an official. "You will note that practically all the accidents have occurred in practice and not in games. Some of them even did not happen in a scrimmage, but simply while the lad was making a lone tackle. "Although there undoubtedly will be more line plunging under the present code, I see no reason why that should be a source of danger. These mass formations, although they may look fierce to the spectator, are really no harder than or not as hard on the players as some of the more open maneuvers. I admit that under the old rules of, say, five years ago the line play was pretty hard on the tackles, but now that you can't help the man with the ball it should not be. "It has been my experience that in a line play the advantage of a heavy man over a light one is in most cases more apparent than real. It is usually very hard to get a heavy man moving, and if his lighter adversary gets the jump on him and is aggressive he has fully as good a chance to make a hole through the line. It's all in being there first. "I am firmly convinced that the code now is the best that we have had in five years. It is simpler than that of last year and has the advantage over the recent rules in many other ways. In the few games I have seen this fall there have been no injuries to amount to anything and very few of any kind."

Although Larry McLean, the star-watt catcher of the Cincinnati Reds did not participate in the world's series raffle, he has found a way to gather in a little post season money. During the past season Larry has had his fighting blood stirred up so frequently by sundry decisions of the umpires that the idea has come to him of turning his pugnacious disposition to some account. Accordingly he has signed to take part in a genuine ring battle to be held before a Gotham club in the near future. Marvin Schmidt, another ball player with pugilistic inclinations, will be McLean's opponent on this occasion.

McLean has always excelled in glove bouts with his fellow players, and having the build of a white hope, has long nursed a belief that he could land Jack Johnson if he cared to try real hard. If McLean makes good in his first assay in the rosin coated arena the Cincinnati club may lose the services of its star catcher next season. He would not be the first ball player to become a ring star. Bob Moha, the Milwaukee middleweight, was a ball player in one of the minor leagues at one time.

Quarantine. It is impossible to say with any certainty just how old the custom of quarantine is. We know that it was observed at Venice as early as the year 1127, whereby all merchants and others coming from the Levant were obliged to remain for some forty days in a lazaretto before they were admitted into the city. The custom is now coextensive with the civilized world, and to it is doubtless to be attributed the rapid advance that has been made within the past quarter of a century in safeguarding the people from the plagues which in the older times were so destructive of human life.—New York American.

PROGRAM ARRANGED BY SCHOOL LEAGUE

At a meeting of the Clackamas County School League which was held in Superintendent Gary's office the following arrangements were made for 1912-13: The plan adopted last year will be followed in the short story contests and debates. The subjects for the short story contest will be sent out by the league. The pupils may select one subject from those sent out, and the story must be written by the pupils and memorized. In the grammar school division the pupil must confine the story to 750 words. The high school pupils are confined to 1000 words. In the high school division the tenth grade is the highest grade that can enter the short story and debate contest. This rule was made as some of the high schools taking part have only ninth grade work, or ninth and tenth grades and would not otherwise enter in the contest. In the field meet no pupil can take more than three events and no pupil will be allowed more than two thirds and no one pupil will be allowed more than two contests in one event. There will be high school and grammar school division for the field meet. The high school restriction for oratory and debate is not made in athletic contests. The following prizes will be offered in each division: Fifty yard run; 100 yard run; 880 yard run; 440 yard run; 22 yard hurdle; high jump, pole vault, shot putting and one mile relay. There will be a grammar and high school division in baseball. Further announcements will be made at the annual County Teacher's meeting in Oregon City November 25, 26, 27. J. L. Ashton, of Clackamas, principal of the Clackamas school, is secretary of the Clackamas County school league.

M'BAIN ASKS FOR 11,364 HORSEPOWER

SALEM, Or., Nov. 4 (Special)—R. T. McBain, of Oregon City, today filed an application with the state engineer asking for the appropriation of sufficient water from the Clackamas River just below the River Mill of the Portland Railway, Light & Power Company, to develop 11,364 horsepower. The plans call for a dam 30 feet high, a canal five miles long and the estimated cost of improvements is $1,000,000. The filing fees amount to $636.25. Origin of Alcohol. A scientist says that when people were cave dwellers their diet consisted entirely of roots and fruits and that it is not unnatural to suppose that the food was often stored away. In course of time the fruit fermented, the sugar in it was turned into pure alcohol, and the cave dwellers drank it and got to like it. This was the beginning of the use of alcohol.

LUCK. There is no such thing. Now, do not throw down the paper and lose interest in my article because of the statement on the threshold of it. Did you expect me to tell you how, peradventure, you might have "good luck" in business or marriage or love? You may get that sort of advice by going around the corner to the clairvoyant or palmist or fortune teller or by crossing the dirty path of some gypsy woman by the roadside. How can you believe such persons have the power, hid from the eyes of other mortals, to lift the veil that hides the future for 50 cents per lifting—is a mystery. Nevertheless there are others. A lot of people believe in luck. All gamblers do. Do you want to find the credulous? Advertise yourself in some strange city as "Zaza, the Fortune-teller" and sit down in certain expectancy that about so many persons will come to see you every day. Wear your hair long or rough it fearfully in front, adorn your fantastic robe with symbolical figures, pose in a dim light. Warn your half scared client that a "dark haired man" will cross his path or tell him he will shortly undertake a long journey or will be twice married or come into a great fortune. Superstition! Twin of ignorance! How long it has survived! In darkest Africa the medicine man dances around the invalid, shouting incantations. In the orient charms are used to fight the plague, and people bathe in the foul Ganges to cure the cholera. And— Here, in brightest America, you believe in the virtue of the four leaf clover, or refuse to sit with thirteen at the table, or dread to begin an enterprise on a Friday, or solicitously see the new moon over your left shoulder. Luck? Depend upon it for a living—save as a word by which to conjure money from the pockets of the ignorant—and you will starve to death. Suppose there were such things as good and bad luck. Why, the universe would be torn apart, and the good God would be an unjust and cruel monster. The law of compensation holds. The Almighty did not make you to be either lucky or luckless. Moving Scenes. Jangs—Yes, sir, I have had some strange experiences and witnessed some moving scenes very moving, indeed. Jackson—Oh, are you a detective? Jangs—No, I'm a scene shifter at the theater.—London Answers.
