U'REN—GOVERNOR?

Some little time back "The Journal" Portland came out with an article on W. S. U'ren, stating that this candi-than at any former time. In this case there has been a search for a crop to suit peculiar conditions of climate, rainfall, soil and length of season and the African seed had been studied and adjusted to its best uses. Americans perhaps are not fully aware of how much has been done for the exceptional advancement of this this country by a right interpretation of some humble, neglected plant, or the discovery of one in other continents that will thrive even better in this. A weed has been defined as a plant misunderstood. Tobacco, that enters so extensively into the commerce of life of all countries, is still called a weed. But it founded a civilization in America, and its culture, though at length it exhausted the primitive soil of Virginia, goes on in every continent.

The first white man who landed in the New World found maize, potatoes and tobacco and understood by the Indians, though all were new to the strangers. Maize is an exception among plants, for the parent form has never been found growing wild. Burbank thinks he has identified it with a Central America grass whose seeds ripen at the top. If his theory is true there have been curious changes in growth and habits. Cotton is the white man's triumphant development. It matters little that the Chinese and Indians wove it into fabrics on a limited scale centuries ago. American ingenuity made for it a new place in the world until its production in this country has reached 15,000,000 bales a year, representing a source of wealth whose creation has few parallels. In the memory of a great many persons cottonseed was thrown away. Step by step cotton has been raised to its present importance, and yet in the early history of the Southern Colonies it was in the list of the native weeds, no one suspecting its possibilities. Students are coming from abroad to look into the methods of dry farming applied in the trans-Mississippi region. The results reported in the Kaffir corn are typical of the American genius for finding out the latent qualities of the materials that enter into their vocations.

Some years ago Dr. Edward B. Averling, high up in Socialism, wrote: "I know that others are at this good work, and I know that Christianity and Capitalism support, and are supported by each other. They are Siamese Twins. They live they die together. A blow at one is a blow at both. Christianity is a pander to Capitalism, bringing to it for prey the fair virgin called labor, beguiled by the hope of a beautiful hereafter. "The terrible condition of our poor is due, as are many other ills, to the curses of our country and time. These two curses are Capitalism and Christianity."

If Mr. U'ren is a Socialist at heart, he is an enemy of Christianity, as the principles of Socialism demand. Does the Republican party want a Socialist for its standard bearer and do the religious people of our state want as Governor, one who, is a Socialist at heart, believes Christianity is one of the great curses of the present day?

Millions in a Seed or Plant.

At a convention of bankers in Oklahoma an address was made by a delegate from Kansas on what Kaffir corn has done financially for his section. He said this plant of comparatively recent introduction had lifted the farmers in his region from poverty to remarkable prosperity, and that tillers of the soil with the aid of this new advantage had more money on deposit

Col. Cornelius Vanderbilt Goes Up With Beatty In Aeroplane

Copyright, 1912, by American Press Association. COLONEL CORNELIUS VANDERBILT, who doesn't have to worry where the next meal ticket is coming from, even if he didn't get the bulk of his daddy's millions, has qualified as a "chick flier." This photo shows you how he did it. He went up with Aviator Beatty the other day at Mineola, N. Y., at the review of aeroplanes by the New York national guard officers. Scared? Never! He simply forgot to smile when the camera clicked. He is enthusiastic over the coming future of aeroplanes for military use in America.

SPANISH PREMIER SHOT BY ASSASSIN

MADRID, Nov. 12.—The Spanish Premier Jose Canelejas, was shot to death today while entering the Ministry of the Interior here to attend a Cabinet meeting. His assassin, Manuel Pardiñas Serrato Martin, 28 years old, of El Grado, Province of Huesca, was arrested and then he committed suicide.

Martin fired four shots at Premier Canelejas as he was entering the Ministry of the Interior where a Cabinet meeting was being held. Two of the shots struck the statesman behind the right ear and he fell dead on the spot. The assassin is believed to be an anarchist.

Jose Canelejas y Mondes, Prime Minister of Spain, who was assassinated today, was selected to form the Spanish Cabinet in February 1910. He was leader of the Monarchical Democratic party which came into power on the resignation of the Liberal Cabinet, headed by Senior Moret y Prendergast. Senior Canelejas, who belongs to a wealthy and prominent family, came to the front in political life only in 1906, when he took a leading part in the campaign against Clericalism. He had, however, taken great interest in politics as a student and public speaker for many years before that. At the age of 25 he became a member of the Spanish Parliament, attaching himself to the advanced liberal section. He became a member of Premier Sagasta's Cabinet in 1902, as Minister of Agriculture. He introduced many reforms especially in regard to the working classes and eventually created a department of labor.

UMPIRE EVANS, FEARING JOHNSON'S SPEED, CALLED GAME IN TWILIGHT.

Umpire Bill Evans remarked the other day that Walter Johnson, the shrapnel shooter of the Washingtons, is the only pitcher whose speed ever made him blink. "It was getting dark one afternoon when I was umpiring behind Johnson," said Evans, "and I noticed that Catcher Williams was having trouble grabbing the fast ones. 'Hey,' I remarked to him, 'be careful. Don't let any of those get past and hit me.' The ball came in faster and faster and had me blinking and dodging. I thought it was about time to quit taking chances, so I turned around to the stand and sang out, 'Game called!'"

RECALL CARLISLE PLAY.

Harvard Men Will Remember Hidden Ball Trick by Indians. Perhaps the greatest trick play ever worked in football history occurred at Harvard some years ago. The Crimson was playing the Carlisle Indians, well known as trick warriors anyway. It was growing dark, and the various shifty formations of the redskins were followed with the greatest difficulty. Suddenly the Carlisle backs directed a play at left end, dashing together in a well knit interference. The whole Harvard squad, in a determined effort, smashed up the formation, but the various tacklers didn't know which Indian to down, for the ball wasn't in sight.

A moment later a wild yell directed Harvard's attention to its own goal line. There, sitting on the ball right behind the posts, was a Carlisle player. He had taken the oval from the quarter, concealed it under his ample sweater and during the mixup in midfield quietly stole around the other end and went down without a Harvard tackle to oppose him.

There isn't a Harvard graduate who has forgotten this play.

PERRYMAN FOR MINISTRY.

New York Giants' Young Pitcher is Studying For the Pulpit. Among the recruits going to the New York Giants next spring is a pitcher named Perryman, who is a student for the ministry. He was picked up at Richmond, Va., by one of McGraw's scouts and is a right hander. However, Perryman is not the first theological student to break into the big league, as Max Carey, or Carnarius, of Pittsburgh, one of the three greatest outfielders in the National league, is studying for the pulpit. It is National league opinion that in the mere matter of fielding Carey ranks with Spunker and Milan.

Campbell to Quit Baseball. Vin Campbell, the Boston National outfielder, again announces his retirement, which shows how difficult it is to break a habit. Campbell intends to be married and go into business at St. Louis.
