UNCLE SAM TO PROTECT BIRDS

Senator George P. McLean of Connecticut says he will, in the approaching session, press an enactment bill to avert wanton bird slaughter which he introduced a few months ago. Political questions of many sorts were at the front at that time and prevented the consideration of his measure. As politics will have but little place in the doings of the session which opens in December, and which lasts three months, he believes the measure will go upon the statute book this winter.

There seems to be some ground for this confidence. Societies for bird protection are increasing in number throughout the country. The virtual extinction of the wild pigeons and the Play Is Neglected In Lives of Americans

By FREDERICK C. HOWE, Director of the People's Institute, New York

THE GROWTH OF OUR CITIES HAS DIVORCED MEN, WOMEN AND CHILDREN FROM THE NATURAL OUTLETS FOR PLAY. IT HAS GATHERED PEOPLE TOGETHER FOR WORK AND MADE NO PROVISION FOR THE UNIVERSAL AND INSISTENT INSTINCT FOR RELAXATION AND FOR HAPPINESS.

Modern industry has divided life into two parts—one devoted to work, the other to sleep—and has made no adequate provision for the hours in which the character, culture and real education of the people are formed. We have TURNED LEISURE TIME OVER TO COMMERCE TO BE EXPLOITED AT ANY COST TO THE COMMUNITY.

And commerce has proceeded to exploit the formative hours of our daily life through the saloon, the dance hall, the theater and other forms of commercialized amusement which have NO ELEVATING OR EDUCATIONAL VALUE. We educate children up to the age of sixteen and then turn them over for the most part to these agencies, which speedily destroy the value of the expenditure of the community for their cultural upbuilding.

THE CIVILIZATION OF EVERY AGE IS MOLDED DURING LEISURE HOURS RATHER THAN THROUGH WORK HOURS.

shrinkage in the number of the other game birds, as well as of the smaller members of the feathered tribe, arouses thinking people to the necessity of averting from those which are left to us the fate which overtook the buffalo. Aside altogether from their value as food, the great game birds, and also the humbler and more familiar members of their family, have an economic importance for us which is commonly overlooked. The Department of Agriculture estimates that insect pests every year destroy 10 per cent of our cereal crop and 20 per cent of our fruits. Much of these ravages could be prevented by protecting the birds.

Some of the states are doing good work by their establishment of a closed season for shooting game, in saving the birds which are still left to us, and the killing of certain small birds is prohibited altogether in a few states. Private individuals here and there, like Mrs. Russell Sage, are buying out some of the big breeding places of the birds and shutting out the hunters from them. As most of the feathered tribe, however, are migratory, the National Government must go to their defense if they are to be saved.

FORUM OF THE PEOPLE

SOCIALISM EXPLAINED.

OREGON CITY, Ore., Nov. 15.—(To the editor of the Morning Enterprise) In an editorial on Wednesday, Nov. 13, you state after quoting from "Das Kapital" by Kary Marx, that "if Mr. U'ren is a Socialist at heart he is the enemy of Christianity, as the principles of Socialism demand." This astounding accusation of course applies to all Socialists. What Mr. U'ren believes in regard to religion I do not know, that is his private matter. What ever it is it has borne abundantly that fruit needed by all churches, namely, the love of his fellowman and especially of that great class of the proletariat struggling for economic and social justice.

There is one thing, however, I do know—the principles of Socialism. In view of the accusation it may not be amiss to note the following facts, and I trust they will be considered both by the Enterprise and its many readers. I want to show entirely dispassionately, that Socialism does not teach anything contrary or inconsistent with Christianity.

Peacocks Lack Originality.

Abby, the little girl of the family, was seated at the breakfast table one morning. As usual, eggs were served. Either she was not hungry or she had grown tired of the inevitable bill of fare, for very earnestly and soberly she remarked, "I do wish hens would lay something besides eggs."—Brooklyn Eagle.

Insane Asylums.

The great Greek physicians had devoted much attention to insanity and some of their precepts anticipated modern discoveries, but no lunatic asylum appears to have existed in antiquity. In the first period of the monastic life a refuge is said to have been opened for the insane at Jerusalem, but this appears to have been a solitary instance arising from exigencies of a single class, and it may be said that no lunatic asylum existed in Christian Europe until about the time of the fifteenth century.—New York American.

Shortening of the Day.

For a long time it has been known that the tides set as a brake on the rotating earth and that they tend to lengthen the day. The effect is, however, so slight that it cannot be measured in any length of time at man's disposal. It may be estimated with the aid of certain assumptions and upon the data available MacMillan has made the necessary computation by the formulae used by engineers. He finds for the increase of the length of the day one second in 400,000 years.—Harper's Weekly.

man Social Democracy held October 1891 this article was divided and treated of education and of religion. It reads: "Declaration that religion is a private matter. Abolition of all expenditure from public funds upon ecclesiastical and religious objects. Ecclesiastical bodies are to be regarded as private associations, which order their affairs independently." This Erfurt Program is the basis of practically all national Socialists. The article embraces four points.

1. Freedom of individual in religious belief and practice. 2. Church and state to be separated. 3. Public funds must not be appropriated for ecclesiastical or religious matters. 4. Freedom of religious associations from the state.

This is the sum of the matter. Surely all Christians already agree with it, except of course that large body of fellow Christians of the Roman Catholic Church. This church opposes this and very naturally and properly from her point of view. As Victor Cathrein, a Jesuit says, "This doctrine is directly antagonistic to the teaching of the Catholic (the means Roman Catholic) Church, which has always condemned as injurious and untenable the principles of absolute separation of church and state. (See page 211 "Socialism etc.) We hesitate to think that even the editor of the Enterprise would assert no one is a Christian who does not belong to the Roman Catholic Church."

To be sure there are many Socialists who are opposed, as individuals, to Christianity. So are many Democrats and Republicans. But individual opinions do not belong to the official Program. To substantiate the foregoing I need only refer your readers to the wonderful address of Liebknecht at the Erfurt Congress. Here he says again and again thus, "we go much further; in the free community for which we strive the church is simply a private association, which is controlled by its own laws, as all other private associations are." This whole address has received the official imprimatur of the congress.

What Marx therefore gave as his idea about Christianity is purely personal. And it is very instructive to note, as Sparto points out, that it was in the year 1859 Marx's "Critique of Political Economy" appeared. In the same year was published Darwin's "Original of Species." This latter theory as all know was bitterly assailed by all churches as was Marx's doctrine. So it came about that the plowers of each of these great principles locked arms—Capitalism and the Church were the enemies to be overthrown. Now matters are very different—biology and sociology are taking care of their own affairs.

I trust this explanation will clear up one of the many misunderstood things about Socialism. This letter is not an endorsement of Mr. U'ren as Governor nor of the principles of Socialism. It is simply a statement of facts and we believe will be welcomed by the Enterprise, and if wrong corrected. The writer, as all serious and sincere thinkers, would esteem such correction as a favor.

C. W. ROBINSON, Rector St. Paul's Church.

Peacocks' Feathers.

Peacock feathers are said to bring ill luck. The origin of this tradition is interesting. It is found in Pagan's work on central and east Arabia, where the traveler says that, according to Mohammedan tradition, the peacock opened the wicket of paradise to admit the devil and received a very ample share of the devil's own punishment.

Little Gould Children Drawing Their First Checks For Charity

NOT every little kiddie in her teens can sign her personal check for $20. Papa finds the cost of coal too high, while mamma wonders how in the world she can keep the household expenses down. But with these little children, pictured here two peas in a pod above, it's different. They are Dorothy (at left) and Helen Margaret Gould (at right), daughters of Frank J. Gould, who live with their aunt, Miss Helen M. Gould. Recently they were given their first lessons in charity when they drew their first checks for $20 each for two beds in the Home For the Friendless, New York. These beds are now known by the children's names, and the luckless tots who will occupy them will no doubt count themselves lucky in their own childish way.

Matt. xvi:16 (1) Verse 27—Where was Caesarea Philippi situated and what class of people were the inhabitants? (2) Why did Jesus want to know who the people said he was? (3) Is it right or wrong, and why, for us to be anxious about what the people say of us? (4) Verse 28—Why did the people think Jesus was either John, Elijah or one of the prophets? (See Matt. xiv:2) (5) In view of the fact that prior to this they had been saying he was the Christ, why were they not now saying so? (See John iv:41; Mark iii:11, 12; v:7.) (6) Why did not Jesus publicly declare himself as the Christ and why did he refuse to let them make him king? (See John vi:15.) (7) If Jesus at this time was not no smuggling! Diligence in the pursuit of duty is commendable even in a customs officer, but it would seem that even the logical Gallic mind might have found a reason to suspend the rules in the following circumstances:

An English steamer was wrecked on the French coast, and the survivors were coming ashore, some in tow of powerful swimmers, others clinging to planks and barrels. Those nearest land were at last heartened by the sight of an approaching small boat. As it bore down on the head swimmers a figure in uniform rose in the bow. "Have you anything to declare?" demanded a stern voice.—Exchange.
