EVILS OF ANXIETY.

Anxiety is the poison of human life. It is the parent of many sins and of more miseries. In a world where everything is doubtful, where you may be disappointed and be blessed in disappointment, what mean this restless stir and commotion of mind? Can your solicitude alter the cause or unravel the intricacy of human events? To provide against every important danger by the employment of the most promising means is the office of wisdom, but at this point wisdom stops.

What He Earned.

"What was the largest salary, you ever earned?" asked the beautiful girl. "About $8 a week," replied the retired politician.

"How could you ever save enough out of that to get a start in the world?"

"You asked me what was the largest salary I ever earned?"—Chicago Record-Herald

GOOD QUALITY OF HOPS MOVE FAST

For the best grades of hops available the demand continues strong, buyers readily paying 16 to 18 cents for the scattering lots of quality stock they are able to pick up here and there, and some purchases of choice goods at 19 cents have been reported within the past few days. For the lower grades also there is a fair demand, at prices running from 12 to 15 cents, but these it is said, now are offered more freely than for some time back, and for that reason the market on the medium grades shows a slight declining tendency.

Dealers, however, are still operating in a rather free way, taking quality stock wherever it is obtainable and where it is not taking the less desirable offerings, and in view of the active trade now under way in the coast markets it is believed that holdings in first hands will be reduced to rather small proportions by the end of the year.

Whether the present pressure to sell the medium grades will bring about a serious depression of prices remains to be seen but such a result is held by some members of the trade to be among the possibilities, though it is conceded that the total supplies of all grades this year will be it all in excess of brewer's requirements for the season.

Latest reports from the South indicate conditions about the same as in this state. The best of the crop in all quarters has in a large measure passed out of the hands of the growers, and the products are showing some anxiety regarding the sale of the less desirable offerings and the pressing that sort of stock on the market at a rate that naturally gives the bear element some encouragement.

New York reports the general market situation unchanged, with the best grades scarce and firmly held, but with the growers inclined to make concessions on the medium and inferior offerings.

WANTS TO STOP WORLD'S SERIES

Herrmann Has Theoretical Plan to Decide Championship.

ASKS INTERLEAGUE BATTLES.

Sixteen Clubs Would Engage in Fight and Team With Highest Average Be Declared the Winner—It Would Probably Fail.

When it comes to originality Garry Herrmann, chairman of the national commission, is in the first row of baseball's big family of magnates. The latest scheme of the Cincinnati mogul is to replace the world's series with a sort of interleague quarrel, in which the sixteen teams would engage. Theoretically Herrmann's plan lists fine. But practically—well, fans have their doubts.

First of all, here is a brief outline of Herrmann's plan: The Athletics, for instance, would play four games at home and four abroad with the Phillies, New York, Chicago, Pittsburgh, St. Louis, Cincinnati, Brooklyn and Boston, all of the National league. The Phillies meantime would be meeting the Mackmen and the seven other American league clubs.

It has been figured out that if 10 per cent of the revenue from these games were made into a pool for the players it would total $50,000. The team which won the greater number of games would receive about $20,000 and each player about $800. The last team would get about $2,000, or $80 for the individual members.

The national commission—of course the dear old "commish" has to get its—would not take more than $50,000. Mr. Herrmann says. The club owners would receive about $90,000 apiece on his basis of calculation, but by the time their expenses were paid they would probably have less than $50,000 profit.

All of which is very nice to read about. But will it succeed if the two leagues decide to try it? The experts think not.

Now, to get at the bottom of this argument one must decide what has made the world's series such an immense success financially. Isn't it the name of the thing—the high honors sought, the fact that the contending teams have won the pennant in their respective leagues, thereby being considered superior to the fourteen other clubs in the two major organizations? Sure it is.

It has been proved that the fans don't care whether it's the Athletics versus New York or Pittsburgh versus Detroit. They come from every state and some foreign countries to see the games. They expect to see wonderful feats of pitching, batting, fielding and base running. They know that every player will be keyed up to the highest possible pitch, realizing the honor and financial gain which belong to the winners.

In short, it is the baseball classic. There can be no substitute. The two teams may not play air tight baseball. They may not look better than tail-enders. But they are fighting for the championship of the world, and every move counts. That's what holds the attention of every man, woman and child in America.

Mr. Herrmann's scheme would be little more than a consolidation of the two leagues and a continuation of the regular season. Fans would go to see the Athletics play the New York Giants and would want to see the Phillies meet the Boston Red Sox. But where would the crowd be when the Mackmen were tackling Brooklyn, the Boston Braves, Cincinnati and the St. Louis Cardinals? And would the Quakers pay expenses with the St. Louis Browns, Cleveland, the New York Highlanders and Detroit?

Baseball has grown wonderfully during the last decade. It has had its foundation on the pennant races in the two leagues, with the world's series between the flag winners as the beautiful tower. Why tear down that building for something unknown and untried?

Those magnates and players who are jealous of the winners mainly because of the big money they get should remember that "to the victor belong the spoils." The season starts in April with every one of the sixteen clubs a possible pennant winner. However, only two can land the flag, and it is the teams which fight the hardest and possess the most class which invariably win out.

Waiter Camp Camps on Job.

Waiter Camp, Sr., is on the job daily at Yale field, and if tradition counts for anything Yale will profit by his service to Captain Spalding's eleven. In the old days if Camp kept away from a Yale team because some captain thought he was big enough to run things himself it was considered a golden opportunity for Harvard or Princeton to administer a beating to the Elis.

Gets Bonus For Not Smoking.

If Outsider Dan Moeller of the Washington Americans doesn't smoke during the 1913 league season he will come in for a $200 bonus from Manager Griffith. And if he does smoke his contract will be cut just that much. It's a pipe, not cigarettes, in Moeller's case.

The Higher Education.

A country minister met a farmer parishioner and asked: "Is your son going back to college this fall?" "Yes, he is, doctor," the farmer answered. "But he's got his degree," said the minister. "What's the matter? Doesn't he know enough to suit you?" "He knows enough book learnin'," said the farmer, "but from the way he's been helping with the harvestin' of the crops I think he needs a few more athletics."

MOTHER

She is lying very peaceful In that room so hushed and sad; And tho' our hearts are aching, For dear mother we are glad

That all her agony is passed, And pain can never lay Is weary, heavy hand upon Her frail form night or day.

I look upon her gentle face So saintly, fair and sweet, And know that she was not, ashamed The Lord she loved, to meet.

Oh how we loved her! We shall miss her step, her soothing hand, The loving heart that sympathized, Nor failed to understand!

And yet she'd want us to be brave, (Nor have us weep for her,) And welcome to our fainting hearts The blessed Comforter.

Not only the sick, but also pilgrims and mendicants, regardless of age, sex, condition, creed or nationality were admitted at all hours of the day and night; no regulations controlled their admission or departure.
