FALL GOWN OF WOOL POPLIN
The popular craze for ribbed material is demonstrated by the many diagonals, poplins, etc., which are offered for sale and appear made up in the smartest designs. A wool poplin combined with moire was the material used for this pretty frock. The blouse was made with vest and peplum, the former of the silk as are either side of it. The tulle of velvet is fastened at the front beneath a large buckle covered with the silk.

MARKET FILLED WITH THANKSGIVING BIRDS

Portland dealers Tuesday quoted 23 to 24 cents on best grade of dressed turkeys, 18 to 20 cents on seconds and 15 to 16 cents on culls, prices about as those given out Monday, but it was generally admitted that the retailers were not taking hold in anything like a free way, and for this reason there were predictions of a decline all along the line before the end of the day.

The apparent lack of interest on the part of the retailers thus far this week is in part attributed to the fact that many of them have already covered their Thanksgiving needs by purchases in large quantities in the country, and now have the bulk of their supplies in hand and in part to the more or less general belief that the supply this year is so far above the average of recent years that lower prices are inevitable.

In any event the commission houses and the leading retail stores were liberally supplied with dressed turkeys, and the market was a quiet one at a time when usually it is a scene of decided activity. Some of the chickens in part attributed to the fact that the birds on hand, and were still more occupied with receiving them than with selling stock. They counted on buyers getting into the market in an active way later in the day, but it was evident that the retailers who were not already supplied were figuring on a break in the market.

Dressed ducks also were plentiful and sold generally at prices around 19 cents a pound, and geese at the same time were available to a considerable extent at 17 to 18 cents. Hens and chickens were in fair supply. Live stock for the most part being held at 12 to 13 cents.

Most of the wholesalers had some dressed pork on hand, and the best of the stuff was said to be selling at 10 cents. Fancy veal was rather scarce, with 13 1/2 cents a pound obtainable.

STRIKERS FOUND NOT GUILTY OF MURDER

SALEM, Mass., Nov. 26.—Joseph Ettor, Antonio and Antonio Caruso were declared not guilty of the murder of Anna Lopizzo, a woman textile striker shot down on the streets of Lawrence last winter during the progress of the big industrial strike there.

The verdict was reached early last night by the jury, but was delayed by Judge Quinn until court opened today. The defendants stood in the iron barred cage when the verdict was returned. All three wept with joy.

"I thank you, gentlemen of the jury!" shouted Giovanniitti at the top of his voice. "I thank you in the name of justice and civilization."
Caruso loudly proclaimed his innocence.
Turning to the jurors, Ettor said: "I thank you, gentlemen, in the name of the great working class."
At a nod from Judge Quinn the cage was unlocked and the trio joined the hysterical crowd which awaited the verdict just outside the courtroom. Caruso tearfully embraced his wife, while hundreds of excited Italians and other workmen grasped the hands of Ettor and Giovanniitti. Immediately thereafter the three men were called before Judge Quinn again. Caruso was released on $100 bail on additional indictments charging him with rioting during the strike. Ettor and Giovanniitti were each released on bonds of $500 on similar charges. It is expected these charges will be formally dismissed later.

When court adjourned the acquitted men were given an ovation by their friends. Giovanniitti was particularly jubilant over the outcome of the trial.

MRS. SCRIPTURE DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

After a most beautiful life which has been spent entirely in this county, Rachel Elizabeth Scripture passed peacefully away at St. Vincent's Hospital in Portland Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Mrs. Scripture has been a constant sufferer for some months and Saturday last submitted to an operation which was of such a serious nature the patient could not possibly recover. The deceased was born at Eagle Creek, this county, February 1, 1866, and being the daughter of the late Thomas H. and Mary Forrester, prominent Oregon pioneers. Her early childhood was spent on her parents' farm and she was educated in the schools of Clackamas County. On May 12, 1889, she was married to Silas F. Scripture and since that time has made Oregon City her home, where she has made a host of friends, who will always remember her many kindnesses and her charity toward others.

About twenty-five years ago Mrs. Scripture united with the Methodist Episcopal Church and has always been a faithful and devout member. She was a member of the Willamette Rebekah Lodge and Soia Circle, Women of Woodcraft, having occupied prominent chairs in both these organizations. Mrs. Scripture's home life was ideal and she was an exceptional wife and devoted mother. The sunshine which radiated from her beautiful life will be greatly missed by her devoted husband and her two sons, Albert Merrill, and Otis Malcolm, also by her sister and brothers who survive, they being Mrs. L. A. Wineset, Montavilla; Miss Emma Forrester, Eagle Creek; J. P. Forrester, Firland; Joseph W. Forrester, Eagle Creek; Mrs. Ella Mitchell, Sandy; Ben. F. Forrester, Eagle Creek; Mrs. Matilda McLauglin, Firland; Miss Clara and Mary Mitchell of this city, were nieces of the deceased. The funeral services will be held on Thursday morning at 11 o'clock at the Methodist Episcopal Church, conducted by the Revs. T. B. Ford and E. F. Zimmerman. The burial will be in the family plot in Mountain View Cemetery, the trustees of the Willamette Rebekah Lodge being used at the grave.

Both lodges are respectfully requested to attend the services in a body.

OREGON CITY TEAM DEFEAT HOOD RIVER

Oregon City Athletic Club's football team scored another victory, when they defeated the Hood River Athletic Club's last team by a score of 13 to 6. The game was played at Hood River, Oregon, Sunday.

Hood River scored in the first quarter, outplaying the Oregon City boys in every department. The third quarter saw no scoring for either team and during the last few minutes of play in the fourth quarter, Gilbert Long made a touchdown from a forward pass. Both teams played fast ball throughout the game. No game will be played Sunday, as the boys on the Oregon City team are not in condition to play. A game was scheduled with the Brookings Athletic Club, but was called off and the boys will rest up and be in good condition when they meet the Columbus Club on December 8.

RAILS BEING LAID BY CLACKAMAS R. R.

along this new line will be far greater than ten times the cost of this independent road, and when a business man takes into consideration the fact that large sums of money will come from Portland into the territory traversed by this road in payment for cord-wood, lumber, logs and piling, and a market will be afforded for a product that could not be placed in the market without this line, and that same money will find its way through the channels of trade into almost every business enterprise near the line of the Clackamas Southern.

At every meeting that has been held the directors have labored to show that the purchase of the capital stock of this company was one of the best investments ever presented to the people of Clackamas County. They showed that all wild-cat features had been eliminated by the company and that every share of stock issued represented $50.00, and that no stock was given for promotion purposes or for any other purpose, except actual construction work, and that when the road was completed the total cost a mile would not exceed $16,000, and that every stockholder would be well compensated for every dollar of his investment.

The earning capacity of the road will be great on account of it running through a thickly populated section of the state, and lying close to the foothills and the volume of freight will be very heavy which will insure large earnings in the operation of the road.

The company intends to keep down all unnecessary expenses and place the operation of the road in the hands of a good, competent railroad man, so as to get the best results for the stock holders out of their investments and at the same time give to the patrons of the road safe and efficient service.

BOY SLAYER HELD OVER TO GRAND JURY

Glenn T. Gault, nineteen years of age charged with killing his stepfather, D. M. Leitzel, near Scott's Mills in June 1911, was bound over to the grand jury Tuesday by Justice of the Peace Samson. George C. Brownell and Gordon B. Hayes, representing the defendant waived examination, and the justice of the peace announced that he would hold the lad to await the examination of the grand jury, without bail. The accused, during the hearing, sat by his mother, who supported his head, he said after the hearing that he was confident of being acquitted. Gault was much more cheerful at the hearing than at any time since he surrendered, and declared that he had removed a heavy weight from his conscience. Mrs. Leitzel probably will remain in this city until after the trial. She says she will do everything to obtain the acquittal of her son.

GILL FOR GRANGE HIGHWAY MEASURE

said that presidents of universities had been chosen, and although they were competent college presidents they knew little of what should be taught beginners. Mr. Gill said his amendment provided that each commissioner have had five years' experience as a teacher in the county schools.

Grant B. Dimick said a few kind words about the Clackamas Southern Railway. The few kind words were applauded for Judge Dimick told about steel rails having arrived in this city and said they would be laid shortly on part of the route. The kind words were appreciated for the Live Wires want the Clackamas Southern built as soon as possible. The speaker said the railroad had its troubles and made an appeal for about $10,000 in stock subscriptions for ballasting about seven miles of the road into the timber district beyond Beaver Creek.

F. A. Olmsted, chemist of the Willamette Pulp & Paper Company, spoke on the mineral resources of the state. The subject was a new one for the Live Wires, but the speaker with splendid argument made it one that the organization now considers very important. He said that the legislature should provide an appropriation for mineral research.

O. D. Eby, a lawyer per se, but a diplomat beyond the slightest peradventure of a doubt, made a report that pleased the Wires beyond expression. At the previous meeting, which was held on election day, a wage made a motion that the Live Wires adopt a resolution approving the incoming administration. As the political affiliation of the incoming administration was not known at that time the wage was sat upon to some extent and, Mr. Eby being a Democrat, but fair, was appointed a committee of one to draft resolutions and instructed to report at the next meeting. His diplomacy is revealed in the following resolutions which were adopted by the Live Wires without a dissenting vote:

"We, the Live Wires of Oregon City, believe in our country—the United States of America—we believe in our constitution, our laws, our institutions and the great principles for which they stand.
"The genius, brain, brawn, honesty and integrity of our people cannot be surpassed or equalled and these, coupled with the great principles of our country and all added to the unlimited resources and possibilities of our commonwealth insure to us a future filled with hope and prosperity.
"We have no patience with the man who flunkes, hides his money in a sock and goes about the community preaching the gospel of hard times, time doing something that will build and respectfully suggest to such brother that he might better employ his up, rather than tear down.
"We express our confidence in the destinies of our country and in those who are to administer our laws and pledge our united cooperation with the incoming administration for the continued prosperity of our land."

The Best Light at the Lowest Cost

ELECTRIC LIGHT is the most suitable for homes, offices, shops and other places needing light. Electricity can be used in any quantity, large or small, thereby furnishing any required amount of light. Furthermore, electric lamps can be located in any place thus affording any desired distribution of light.

No other lamps possess these qualifications, therefore it is not surprising that electric lamps are rapidly replacing all others in modern establishments.
