

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

WHERE THE MONEY GOES.

It was Saturday night. Husband and wife sat up late talking over the family finances. They discussed the expenditures that would be necessary the forthcoming week. Every cent of the husband's salary for the past week had been spent, and some bills were unpaid. Said the wife: "Where does the money go?" "Search me," naively replied the man. They did not know. Many husbands and wives do not know. Whole families do not.

Which breeds trouble. It was the business of this husband and wife to know where every cent of the husband's salary had gone. The business of a family is as much a business as any other. There was no record. They could figure how much had been paid to the grocer and the butcher and for this and that, but when the total was made by memory a good sized margin was left unaccounted for. Of course they did not know. Every family should have its book keeper, and every expenditure should be accounted for. The account should be accurate and in detail.

Because—The high cost of living often may be traced to carelessness in spending money. So long as there are funds in hand or the credit is good, it is easy to buy whatever the mood may suggest. "It doesn't cost much"—only 5 or 10 or 25 cents. But—

The aggregate spells extravagance. If an accurate accounting is made of each item, however small, as set down it will be found that not only will there be less freedom in expenditure; but, what is better, the family will know where it is at financially. The record is in black and white. So that the family can make an analysis of its finances just as a merchant does when he gets his statement from the bookkeeper.

Furthermore—The welfare of the family demands that the family should know where the money goes, because—

Failure and debt and disgrace and discord and divorce are often caused by lack of business sense in family affairs.

Know where the money goes. Dangerous. "A person should think twice before speaking." "Perhaps so, but if some people were to think twice before speaking they would be so exhausted they couldn't speak."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

December. "Nobody is worried nowadays by the fact that the twelfth month of the year is called the tenth. December," says a writer, "and no doubt even the ancient Romans soon got used to the anomaly when the new year was shifted back from March to January, though the old names of the months were retained. But there was one of them who made ingenious use of it—Laelius a rascally procurator at Lyons under Augustus. He insisted on having certain monthly payments made fourteen times a year, arguing, when December came round, that as it was the tenth month of the year and there ought to be twelve there must be two more to be accounted for."

A Movable Town. There is a town, Garok, in Tibet which moves twice every year. For three months of the year it is situated at the place where it is designated on the map. During the other nine months it is not there at all, but is about forty miles farther south, at a much lower altitude. Climatic conditions are the cause of this migratory habit. When the heat grows too intense for comfort the whole town packs up, and driving the herds of yaks, sheep and goats moves up to the higher altitude, and the traders from India at once begin to drift in. Trade continues for three months; then, before the severe Tibetan winter begins the town moves back.

Fire and Water. Why does water put out fire? Water reduces the temperature of the flame below the point of ignition; therefore it cannot burn. Water does not smother the flames even when the burning brand is completely immersed in a tank of water, because the first contact puts out the fire—that is, reduces the temperature of the flame below the point of ignition.

POPULAR LOCAL GIRL BECOMES BRIDE

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Schoenborn Wednesday evening, when Miss Hazel Gintner, sister of Mrs. Frank Schoenborn, and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Gintner, of Shubel, became the bride of Frances McGahney, of this city. Only the immediate relatives were present at the ceremony.

The bride was handsomely gowned in Japanese chiffon over white satin and carried a shower bouquet of Brides roses. The bride and groom entered the room as Miss Lulu McGahney, sister of the groom, sang "For Love's Sweet Sake." The ring ceremony was performed, Rev. J. R. Landsborough officiating. After the ceremony was performed dainty refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Miss Winnie Jackson and Miss Lulu McGahney.

The bride is one of Oregon City's most popular young ladies, having lived here for many years. She is a graduate of Barclay school and also from the Beane-Walker Business College of Portland, and has been employed for some time as stenographer by Huntley Bros. Co.

The groom is the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. L. McGahney of this city. He has resided with his parents in Oregon City for about three years and is employed by the Willamette Pulp & Paper Company. The newly married couple left Wednesday evening for a short honeymoon and on their return will make their home for a short time with the parents of the groom at 509 John Adams Street.

Those present were Rev. J. R. Landsborough, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Gintner, Mr. and Mrs. L. McGahney, Mr. and Mrs. Christ Crasier, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gintner, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Schoenborn, Mrs. Rita Ruchoinich, Miss Winnie Jackson, Miss Lulu McGahney, Leonard, Eldred and Arden Graasler, Beverly and Ione Gintner.

BEAUTIFUL HAIR AT SMALL COST

A SIMPLE REMEDY BEAUTIFIES THE HAIR. CURES DANDRUFF, STOPS FALLING HAIR.

What a pity it is to see so many people with thin, wispy hair, faded or streaked with gray, and realize that most of these people might have soft glossy, abundant hair of beautiful color and lustre if they would but use the proper treatment. There is no necessity for gray hair under sixty-five years of age, and there is no excuse for anyone, young or old, having thin, straggling hair, either full of dandruff or heavy and rank smelling with excessive oil.

You can bring the natural color of your hair in a few days and forever rid yourself of any dandruff and loose hairs, and make your hair grow strong and beautiful by using Wythe's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy. For generations common garden Sage has been used for restoring and preserving the color of the hair; and Sulphur is recognized by Scalp Specialists as being excellent for treatment of hair and scalp troubles.

If you are troubled with dandruff or itching scalp, or if your hair is losing its color or coming out, get a fifty cent bottle of Wythe's Sage and Sulphur from your druggist, and notice the improvement of your hair in a few days' treatment.

M'LOUGHLIN PAINTING IS ARTISTIC WORK

OREGON CITY, Nov. 27.—(Editor of the Enterprise)—The picture of Dr. John McLaughlin, at present on exhibition in the McLaughlin Memorial Home, Seventh and Center Streets, is one which every lover of Oregon City should see. It has been lent to the association by the artist for exhibition purposes, but it is understood a merely nominal sum would secure it, the balance of its monetary value being donated by the painter. There are at least a hundred men in Oregon City, and not rich men at that, who should be eager to secure the painting for the city.

Portraiture is not merely copying of the subject line for line. It is infinitely more than that. A good painting lays bare the soul, and openly portrays the life and character of the person painted. No better example of this great fact in portrait work could be found than in the picture of Dr. McLaughlin. The artist had as material to work upon, the large photograph that hangs in the home, and the historic data of Mrs. Eva Emery Dye and other historians. It has been said that Annanias was a photographer, and most artists will bear testimony to the fact. For instance, the hands in the painting, are certainly not those in the photograph, but they most surely are the hands of Pioneer McLaughlin, who knew hardship and its accompanying labor only too well;—and the artist evidently meant that. Three old men, posed for the picture—one selected for his hands alone, the other two for figure, and shoulders respectively.

The portrait as a whole is a wholesome combination of everything McLaughlin was; a faithful picture of a man who will live forever in the history of Oregon and the Northwest. The technique of the painting is that of a genuine artist; an artist of whom Oregon City has great reason to be proud.

Mrs. Henry Shannon, the artist in question, has been a resident of Oregon City for the last four or five years, coming here from Michigan. She has studied with Mrs. A. L. Fonda of Seattle among others and has traveled widely. While fond of landscape and watercolor work, she has definitely devoted herself to portraiture, and already has secured many notable commissions, among them Mrs. Dye, Mrs. Frank Schrell's daughter Lillian, Mrs. Mace Kellogg and Mrs. Worthington Willoughby, of Portland.

I would recommend that the picture be hung on the wall, instead of where it is and that it be placed in the next room, for the red wall paper of its present lodging has a greasy influence, not only on the portrait itself, but on the rather clever old Mission frame which surrounds it.

PIONEER. Appearance Against Him. "Do you mean to intimate that the prisoner was intoxicated?" "Well, appearances seemed against him." "What appearances?" "Well, for one thing he was holding a glass upside down trying to fill it from a tightly corked bottle."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

In the British arctic expedition of 1875 one of the chaplains had a file of the London Times twenty years old, containing the Crimean war reports. One copy was given out to each ship daily. The officers had it first, then it went to the fore-castle, and soon every one was as keen about the news as if the war had been proceeding. The clergyman in control of the press was besought to issue an evening edition, and when Sebastopol was about to be taken excitement ran so high that the newspaper office—a locker—was almost stormed. The editor, however, was firm and continued with his daily issue, the interest being kept up to the end of the expedition.

The Three Heaviest Men. The three heaviest men of whom any mention is made in history were Miles Darden of Tennessee, Lewis Cornelius of Pennsylvania and Daniel Lambert of England. Darden died in 1857 when in health he was seven feet six inches in height and weighed over 1,000 pounds. There is no record of the date of the death of Cornelius which occurred in Pike county, Pa. but the account says that he was born in 1794. When in his prime he measured eight feet two inches around the waist, was six feet tall and weighed 645 1/2 pounds. Daniel Lambert was an English freak who died in June, 1800. He was of average height, but weighed 739 pounds.
