The Orange Tree.

The orange is the longest lived fruit tree. It begins to bear the third year after budding and for 100 years it will stand without crops. Orange trees have been known to attain the age of 300 years. The orange requires less care and attention than any other fruit tree. Its early growth is rapid. In the first two years it grows more than it will in the next fifty. This refers, of course, to its height and breadth alone—its fruit stems and consequently its crops increase more rapidly after the first ten years.

Thousands of Tons of Dust.

As a result of the estimates of a government expert, who has given much attention to the study of the remarkable phenomenon of dust and sand storms in the arid regions of the west, every cubic mile of the lower air during an ordinary "dust storm" contains at least 2.5 tons of dust, while in severe storms it has been as much as 125,000 tons of dust and sand may be contained in a cubic mile of air. Dust storms sometimes last for twenty or thirty hours.

An Inch or So Below.

"Well, and have you never found out the cause of your unpopularity?"

"No; I can't discover it."

"That's strange, because it's right under your very nose."—Philadelphia Press.

VOGUE POINTS.

What Paris is Sending Over in Winter Coat Models.

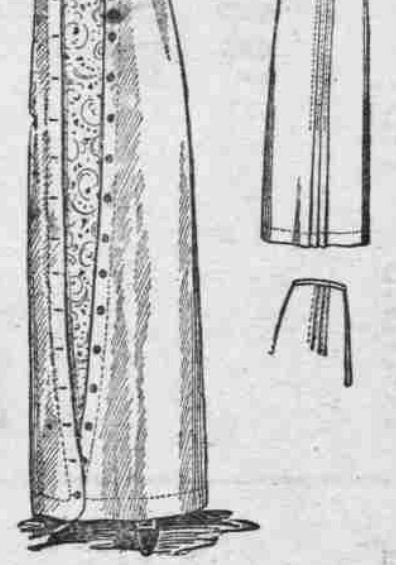

Some of the latest coats from Paris are knee length and actually show some fullness. The sleeves are apt to be bell shaped and flowing.

Fur trimmings on evening coats are all the vogue. Fox, skunk and mole are much used, with marabou and moulton for cheaper grades.

Ostrich plume is again being used as a hair ornament.

In raincoats mannish styles predominate, with raglan or regulation coat sleeves. Many made of homespun look like ordinary walking coats.

The skirt made with a few plaits is the very newest and smartest. This
