TRENTON, N. J., Dec. 21.—President-elect Woodrow Wilson and William J. Bryan conferred here this afternoon in the governor's room at the state house, Bryan arriving this morning from Philadelphia and went at once to the state house, where he was cordially greeted by Wilson. When Wilson and Bryan emerged from the governor's private office to go to luncheon, Wilson said: "We have had a most delightful conference, but didn't arrive at any conclusions. We just talked things over, discussed the policies of the party and the fulfillment of pledges of the Baltimore platform. We discuss the Baltimore platform. We discuss the Baltimore platform. We discuss the Baltimore platform." (Continued on page 4)

Completion of Line Will Bring Big Shipments of Freight into City—Wood Camps to be Opened

A locomotive has arrived for the use of the track laying crew of the Clackamas Southern Railway, and rails are being laid on the hills toward Beaver Creek. The road should be completed from this city to Beaver Creek in less than ninety days if the weather remains favorable, and the prospects at present are bright for track laying during the winter. Butts & McCauley of Portland visited Oregon City Friday, for the purpose of placing a large crew of men in the timber along the line between this city and Beaver Creek, and open up several large wood camps. Wood camps mean a great deal to the tradesmen of a city, and in fact the entire community is greatly benefited when the product is sold in an outside market, and the proceeds go to the people. After this road is in operation and large loads of freight are hauled each day into Oregon City and Portland markets, and the heavy traffic is taken off the county roads, the people will all wonder why this road was not built years ago.

SALOON LICENSE IS CALLED FORFEITED

J. UDDERMAN FINED $10 LOSES RIGHT TO CONTINUE IN BUSINESS

City Council Decides that Corporation Shall Pay $1,000 Yearly for Railway Franchise

The City Council, at a meeting Saturday night revoked the license of J. Udderman to conduct a saloon in this city. Udderman has been the proprietor of the Mount Hood Saloon. On the night of December 5 Policeman Frost arrested the proprietor of the place on a charge that he had sold liquor to an habitual drunkard, who was blacklisted. The proprietor was fined $10 in the recorder's court next day. Udderman pleaded in court that he was a stranger in the city, that he had purchased the saloon of Matt Justin, and that he was not personally acquainted with the habitual drunkard. Mr. Tooze insisted that the license should be revoked, Messrs. Albright and Holman being the only members present to vote against the proposition. Mr. Pope had gone home before the question came to a vote. Policeman Frost, when called upon to testify, said that as far as he knew saloon had been conducted under the new management better than it had under the old. The action of the council means one less saloon in the city. Each saloon pays $1,000 license annually. The ordinance providing for the franchise of the Portland Railway, Light & Power Company in this city was passed. The ordinance provides for a lease of five years, the company to pay $1,000 annually for the privilege. The company must provide a freight yard between Fourth and Fourteenth Streets. The ordinance was adopted by a unanimous vote, Messrs. Tooze, Horton, Beard, Myer, Pope, Roake, Albright and Holman being present. An ordinance instructing the finance committee to arrange for $50,000 bonds as specified in the recent measure approved by the people at the election was approved by a unanimous vote.
