In this afternoon gown of navy blue brocaded empe the effect of the bur noose drapery is very good. A petti coat of plaited satin, over which the brocaded crape is draped, is short enough to show the buttoued boots of black satin.

DOT VEILS ENRICH OCULISTS. Closely Woven Network Also Is Cause of Eye Trouble.

"Every dot in a woman's veil is worth dollar to the oculist," an old member of the profession declares, "and there is no doubt that the modern veil, with its intricate figuring and bold designs. is far more harmful than the old time veil, which was either plain or adorned with small spots.

"A closely woven network offers a considerable barrier to evaporation, and the surrounding of the skin of the face with material which hinders the proper ventilation of the eyes and skin produces a certain amount of trouble Thus all conditions of eczema or skin irritation which women complain of are due to the heated condition of the eye brought about by the veil.

"Associated with the watering there are redness of the eyes and a curious oversensitiveness to light. Again, a veil which is twisted tightly under the build ourselves up without pulling thin compresses the veius of the face, others down. We may strive to cochin compresses the veins of the face, and this intensifies any tendency to skin irritation and may account by impeding the circulation for woman's chief dread in life, a red nose."
