

ELMORE TO TAKE PLACE OF DISABLED STEAMER

Captain O. L. Hegdale, master of the Steamer Ruth, which sank in the Clackamas rapids early Saturday morning, filed a wreck report at the custom house, Monday in which he set forth that the accident was due to the fact that the steamer failed to answer her helm, and when he saw that she would "take the bank" he signalled for full speed astern. The Steamer Elmore, of the O. W. R. & N. fleet, was leased by the owners of the Ruth to ply between Oregon City and Portland until the injured steamer is raised and repaired.

Worse and More of It. "Concord, Concord!" shouted the brakeman as the train pulled into the station during a tremendous outburst of thunder and lightning.

The clever woman grasped her umbrella firmly.

"Not only conquered," she ejaculated, "but taken by storm!"—Youth's Companion.

BOTH HOUSES ARE QUICK TO ORGANIZE

Without a dissenting vote, excepting his own, C. N. McArthur, of Portland, who served as speaker of the house in the 25th session of the legislature, was today elected speaker of the house for the present term. He was escorted to the chair by Representatives Latourrette, Thomas and Chapman, and was roundly applauded and cheered.

"I want to thank you for this expression of confidence," said Speaker McArthur, in addressing the house and in outlining in general his policy. "I think we all appreciate the great responsibility we owe the great commonwealth which we have been elected to serve, and that we will all faithfully discharge our duties. Law-making is a serious business and I should demand serious attention. There has been a tendency of late to depart from the old methods of government and toward a more popular form of government—the initiative and referendum. The principle cause has been the lack of confidence in the legislature. The people have overworked the referendum and initiative as was demonstrated at the last election. "The time has come when we have an opportunity to reinstate ourselves with the people by an honest and economic session, and which will generally be responsive to the wishes of the people. There is no other reason for the wholesale use of the referendum and initiative if the legislature will do its duty. Let us bow solidly into the line and give the people a constructive session, and make a record for honesty, efficiency and principles."

After the delivery of the Speaker's address, the house, pursuant to recommendations of the committee on organization and business, went into executive session for the purpose of electing a chief clerk and the other officers.

For a while this afternoon it was feared that a fight would be participated by Taton, of Lane, as to his plan to change the rules of the house, when it came to effecting the temporary organization. This was the subject of discussion at a caucus last night, and Eaton then was insistent upon changing the rules. The rule causing the most objection was that taking the power of committee appointments from the speaker and giving it to a committee on committees, to be appointed by the house. A fight along this line, however, was averted at the morning session by an arrangement which will make Eaton a member of the rules committee, and the subject will be taken up by the house when that committee makes its report.

Chief Justice McBride, of the supreme court, administered the oath to the members, and also in behalf of the Oregon Historical Society presented the speaker with a gavel. Entering into the composition of this gavel are 10 different kinds of woods, each having its historical significance. After going into session just before noon, long enough to elect the clerks agreed upon at the caucus, the house adjourned until 2:15.

Fred Drager, of Salem, was elected chief clerk; Harry T. McClelland, of Douglas County, assistant chief clerk; Dudley Clark, of Multnomah, reading clerk; W. O. Burner, of Wheeler, calendar clerk; J. D. Woodman, of Yamhill, sergeant-at-arms; R. A. Corey, of Baker, doorkeeper, and W. F. McAlams, of Polk, polling clerk.

If it happened it is in the Enterprise.

CORRESPONDENCE

MARKSBURG

True to ancient tradition, the first week of 1913 with its lengthening day, brought strengthening cold. Despite the frozen aspect, however, outdoor work has gone on with a vigor that must certainly make itself apparent in the coming spring. Everywhere is heard the stroke of the sled and wedge, the sound of the grub hoe and at intervals the blast of dynamite shivering the mammoth stumps. All this added to the illumination of the rubbish fore tells that soon the long stretches of unbroken land in this new region will give place to the succession of cultivated fields that meet the eye of the travelers in crossing our continent. The activity in agricultural advance is greatly stimulated by the unflinching account that comes to us weekly of the steady approach of the Portland, Eugene & Eastern Railway. The road is to furnish market for our produce and connect us with the outside world. In the long rainy season, we long for the comfort of the railroad car which cannot be found in any other vehicle and Macksburg has every promise that luxury is to be hers at no very distant day.

The Macksburg public school opened Thursday, January 7, with a full attendance, notwithstanding the inclement weather.

The saw mills continue a double debt to pay. Not only are they turning out building material, thus furnishing employment to men, but they are providing excellent substance for side walks, so necessary in a rainy season. The masses of saw dust that heretofore went to waste, are now utilized in changing almost impassable walks to comfortable footpaths. True, they will have to be renewed each year but if—as we wish—the mills continue their present output the supply will be unending.

The Ely school opened Monday, January 6. Mr. Sherwood, the principal, has returned from the holiday visit which he and his wife were making at the home of Mrs. Sherwood's people near The Dalles.

A little son was born last week to Mr. and Mrs. John Helvey.

A meeting was held in the Verein hall last week for the purpose of promoting better roads. It was decided to levy a tax on all property to meet the expense of this work. Adolph Claus was elected road supervisor for this district.

John Dawson and Miss Catharine Winsinger, who were married last week, returned from their wedding journey on Saturday and have commenced housekeeping in Mr. Dawson's home.

FELT BAD ALL THE TIME

Shellhorn Lady Suffered a Great Deal, But Is All Right Now.

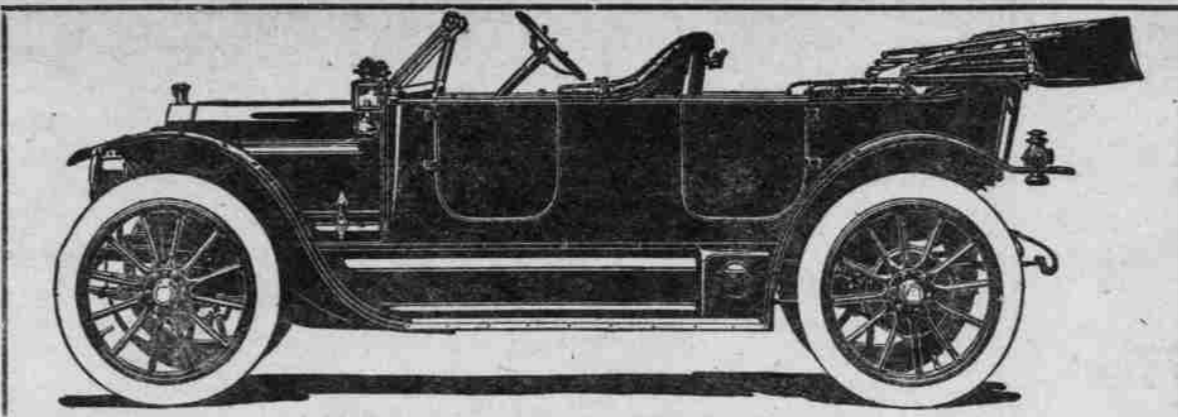

Shellhorn, Ala.—In a letter from this place, Mrs. Carrie May says: "A short time ago, I commenced to have weak spells and headaches. I felt bad all the time, and soon grew so bad I couldn't stay up. I thought I would die. At last my husband got me a bottle of Cardui, and it helped me; so he got some more. After I had taken the second bottle, I was entirely well. I wish every lady, suffering from womanly trouble, would try Cardui. It is the best medicine I know of. It did me more good than anything I ever used."

Cardui is a woman's tonic—a strengthening medicine for women, made from ingredients that act specifically on the womanly organs, and thus help to build up the womanly constitution to glowing good health.

As a remedy for woman's ills, it has a successful record of over 50 years. Your druggist sells it. Please try it.
