WET SNOW WOULD

DO MUCH DAMAGE

Since the big fall of snow Friday vening and Saturday morning little snow has fallen at Oregon, and little has melted, the thermometer hovering near the freezing point The indications Monday morning pointed toward mere snow Should a dry snow fall little damage would be done, but if a wet snow should come trees and awnings not yet cleaned off would go down. Small boys are making the most of the unusual condition and scarcely a hill in the town has not had a crowd of boys sliding down it Due to the heavier fall in the country many farmers have not been able to reach town with their produce. The Oregon City street cars are running on time and business has adjusted itself to the snow in town.
