ON RETIRING When Woodrow Wilson decided some time ago to apply for a Carnegie pension he must have had in mind a program of continued work of some sort, for a life of complete inaction, unless compulsory, is unendurable.

When fully engaged as an educator Mr. Wilson found leisure to do some writing on questions of social and political philosophy, and it is probable that he thought to add to his list of books after the Carnegie fund should relieve him from further effort to support himself and family by his own efforts. What really happened in the case is a striking proof of the fallacy of retiring from business as long as there is strength and capacity to go on.

If Mr. Wilson should be an energetic president, always alert in mind and physically competent, the point will be strongly emphasized that his pension move, at the age of 55, was a mistake in more senses than one. He will illustrate a fact in the philosophy of life without the aid of his pen.

FORUM OF THE PEOPLE

BURDON IS RETAINED.

GLADSTONE, Feb. 11, (Editor, Oregon City Enterprise.) Since the passage of a resolution by the Council of the Oregon City Federation of Churches, on Feb. 3, favoring the passage of the Schuebel 10-hour bill now before the state legislature, some trouble has arisen which calls for a public explanation. F. A. Burdon, an officer of the Gladstone Christian Church, whose letter stating his attitude toward said bill, and the Oregon City Federation of Churches appeared in your paper of Feb. 5, has been put to a vast amount of trouble and annoyance because it appeared to some, from published reports, as though Mr. Burdon was acting on both sides of the above proposition. Mr. Burdon has been so troubled over these things that he felt compelled to resign his position on said church board, and his resignation was before this board on Sunday. Mr. Burdon has been a faithful member of the church, and also an efficient officer and rather than lose him from his official position in the church, a resolution was unanimously passed by the church board favoring the secession of the Gladstone Christian Church from the Oregon City Federation of Churches, and the retention of F. A. Burdon in his official position in the church. I know that Mr. Burdon has acted on but one side of this 10-hour bill proposition—the side stated in his letter of Feb. 5. I voted for the passage of the resolution by the Church Federation meeting, believing at the time it was for the best. I realize now it was a mistake for the representatives of the churches to take such action, and hereby express my regret for the same. It was the desire of the church board that this public statement should be made.

Most respectfully, ROY L. DUNN, Pastor, Gladstone Christian Church.

Smashed Bow of the Indrakuala, Which Cost fifteen Lives

THIS has been an unusual winter of marine accidents and escapes. One of the most tragic of the fatalities occurred in Chesapeake bay when the British steamer Indrakuala rammed the American steamer Julia Luckenbach and sent her to the bottom, costing fifteen lives. The illustration shows the damage to the unwitting juggernaut. Her bow is smashed in both above and below the water line, and she was beached to save herself a similar fate. Her safety bulkheads saved her eight sailors on the Julia Luckenbach—owing to the rigging of that ill fated ship for many hours, nearly perishing, and they were rescued.

800 miles to the pole and back worked out to perfection. The advance party would have returned to the glacier in fine form and with a surplus of food but for the astonishing failure of a man least expected to fail.

"Seaman Evans was thought to be the strong man of the party and Beardmore glacier is not difficult in fine weather, but on the return trip we did not get a single completely fine day, and this, with a sick companion, enormously increased our difficulties.

"We got into frightfully rough ice and Evans received a concussion of the brain. He died a natural death, out it left a shaken party with the season unduly advanced.

"But all the facts above enumerated were as nothing to the surprise awaiting us on the barrier. I maintain our arrangements for returning were quite adequate and that no one would have expected the temperatures and surface which we encountered at this time of the year. On the summit, in latitude 85 degrees to latitude 86 degrees, we had minus 23 to minus 30.

LONDON, Feb. 11.—With death staring him in the face, with no possible succor at hand, Captain Robert F. Scott, British polar explorer, who perished after reaching his goal January 18, 1912, wrote with his dying hands the story of his quest into the Antarctic that all the world might know. Found beside his stiffened corpse, when rescue came too late, Scott's story was cabled here today from New Zealand and given to the world under his laconic title, "Message to the Public." The full text of the message reads:

"The causes of this disaster are not due to faulty organization, but to misfortune in all the risks that had to be undertaken.

"First—The loss of pony transport in March, 1911, obliged me to start later than I had intended and obliged limits of staff transported to be narrowed.

"Second—The weather throughout the outward journey, especially a long gale in 83 degrees south stopped us, and the soft snow encountered in the lower reaches of Beardmore glacier again reduced our pace.

"We fought these untoward events with a will and conquered, but it ate up our provision reserve. Every detail of our food supplies, clothing and depots made on the interior ice sheets and on that long stretch of

"If you drink because of a craving for stimulants—if you've reached the stage where nothing will satisfy excepting rough high-proof, strong whiskey—our story is not for you. But if it's mellowness, age and flavor you're looking for—you'll like Cyrus Noble.

Because it's pure—because it's palatable—because you don't have to dilute it with water to be able to swallow it. It costs no more than any other good whiskey.

Kill Disease Before It Reaches Its Victim

Remove Causes of Human Misery

By Dr. CHARLES W. ELIOT, President Emeritus of Harvard University

THE medical practitioner of the future will be one who prevented disease rather than cured it. More than half the physicians of the country eventually will be engaged in PREVENTIVE RATHER THAN CURATIVE MEDICINE.

PREVENTIVE MEDICINE IS CAPABLE OF REMOVING THOSE CAUSES OF HUMAN MISERY, POVERTY AND SORROW, WHICH LEAD TO INTERNAL REBELLION AND DISORDER AND, AMONG NATIONS, TO WAR AND STRIFE.

The Chinese people have been through every form of misery which a despotic tyranny, ravaging diseases, destructive floods, can bring to mankind. As a result there have been strife and rebellion. They have taken the sword as the only remedy for misery and death. Out of such conditions PREVENTIVE MEDICINE IS CAPABLE OF LIFTING THEM.

One of the most irritating things in international relations is the strife that arises out of the distribution of population. Preventive medicine is MAKING SAFER THE IMMIGRATION OF PEOPLES.

Our achievements in the Panama canal zone have made safer future migrations to tropical countries.

AIDES OF SCOTT WIN LIFE FIGHT

And there they found them—huddled together, frozen and starved and sickened to death. But their deaths are more triumphant than most of our lives. For they left records—Scott left a record—for honesty, simplicity and bravery—everything that makes a man.

And this, to me, is greater than having discovered the pole.
