AWAITING THE PROFESSIONAL SKEPTICISM AND OPPOSITION WHICH DR. FRIEDRICHS FRAZ FRIEDMANN ENCOUNTERS IN HIS INOCULATION SERUM FOR THE CURE OF TUBERCULOSIS ACCEPTED BY HIS FELLOW PHYSICIANS IS INSPIRED LESS BY PROFESSIONAL JEALOUSY THAN BY A DEEP SENSE OF CONSERVATIVE RESPONSIBILITY Pervading the medical profession. There have been a great many theories advanced and so many cures and specifics proclaimed, whose after test proved them fallacious, if not actually fraudulent, that the great mass of physicians has assumed a general attitude of skepticism. They will accept nothing until it has been

proved under the most rigid scientific tests. Especially will they not accept or approve anything which maintains in any way an air of mystery. For this reason the arrangements now made for this new tuberculin to be submitted to the imperial medical authorities of Germany for scientific test, analysis and experiment meets the approval of the medical profession of the world. Even a favorable report from so eminent a source will not save it from the purifying fire of world-wide criticism. It must stand every test.

Ever since Dr. Koch nearly a score of years ago proclaimed the discovery of the bacillus of tuberculosis, and established his claim against just such opposition as this, controversy has run high in medical circles. It still rages over the question of the identity of the bovine and human tubercular bacillus. Beginning with Jenner's introduction a century ago of vaccination for smallpox, the germ theory of disease has advanced, especially during the last score of years, until it is generally accepted by the medical profession, except by certain schools of comparatively few members. Bacillus after bacillus has been isolated and identified, and preventive serums developed, until many diseases formerly considered incurable, or of high fatality, are now preventable and more largely curable. Among these are diphtheria, smallpox and cholera. Medical research is progressing along the same lines to discover remedies and preventatives of tuberculosis, cancer, leprosy and other diseases that have been the scourge of mankind for ages. Consumption cures of many kinds have deceived thousands into their graves, most of them fraudulently exploited and some in good faith. Especially have the people been deceived with serums under private control. The Postal Department has been active in closing the mails to such fraudulent exploitations of the ills of the people. It is no wonder the profession is skeptical, or that the people, hoping against hope as they do, demand something more than the assurance of the discoverer, no matter how eminent he may be in his profession. Yet if it be completely true, no pedestal is too high on which to set his statue, to show to future generations the figure of the man who banished from civilization its greatest plague of disease.

COUNCILMAN ALBRIGHT Council-AT LEAST CONSISTENT man Albright in his argument at the meeting of the city council Friday night on the proposed ordinance to close poolrooms on Sunday was at least consistent. Mr. Albright argued that the poolroom was a poor man's club. He did not say it was not right to close the poolrooms on Sunday, but he insisted if they were closed—the places where workmen go to play pool and billiards—the Commercial Club and billiard rooms of fraternal orders also should be closed on Sunday. Mr. Albright declared that there should be no discrimination, and he is right. If the laboring man's place of playing pool and billiards is closed on Sunday the clubs should be closed. Albright is of the class which he seeks to defend—and while he does not play pool and billiards—he recognizes the right of others to do so.

MEASURE TO CLOSE POOLROOMS URGED

man Albright strongly objected to the ordinance for as he said it only would close the public poolrooms, and not those in clubs and other places. He said that the proposed ordinance was really in favor of the rich as against the poor, for any man or boy who is a member of a club or lodge would be able to play while his poorer brethren would be denied the right to do so. He also urged that to pass the ordinance at present would be railroading it through without giving due thought to the matter. Councilman Horton spoke in favor of the ordinance and said that it would keep many young men out of undesirable company and that the city would be doing no more than many other cities. The report of the Finance Committee as to the sale of city bonds was received and the committee was authorized to sell to the two highest bidders, Morris Brothers, of Portland, and the Harris Trust & Savings Company, of New York. The City Attorney was instructed to repeal the ordinance which authorized the sale of property at Fifth and Jackson Streets. The matter of the acceptance of the pavement on lower Main Street was referred back to the City Engineer, who will accept the work before it again comes before the council. The contract for the erection of a concrete fire house near the fire tower was awarded to E. D. Olds, his bid being the lowest. His bid was $298 while the bid of H. O. McKinley was $308. The block on Monroe Street between Twelfth and Thirteenth was not accepted. The new gas franchise which is being asked by Dr. A. L. Beattie, was referred to the Finance Committee for alteration and will come before the council at a future meeting. The matter of drawing up a new ordinance allowing electric signs to be hung over the sidewalks was referred back to the original committee which will prepare an ordinance that will be presented at a future meeting. Several merchants on Main Street are desirous of installing electric signs in front of their premises, which the existing law does not allow.

Helen and Dorothy Gould Are "Just Like Other Children"

Copyright, 1913, by American Press Association.

Of all the children born to the children of the late Jay Gould perhaps none has been talked about so much as little Helen and Dorothy Gould. They are the children of Frank J. Gould and his first wife. Their father was divorced and is now married again. But despite all the marital changes of their parents the children have been brought up carefully, yet democratically, and largely under the guidance of Miss Helen M. Gould, their aunt, who is now Mrs. Finley J. Shepard. Helen and Dorothy were the flower girls and only attendants at Gould's wedding.

Suggestive in Questions Sunday School Lessons

- (36) Even if you neither attend church or Sunday school, and never expect to, if you are a man or woman of any thought, your life will be enriched, and the outlook for the future will be made bright, by reading the Suggestive Questions on the Sunday school lesson, which are to be found each week in our columns. Just put our words to the test. (37) Verse 2—How has God's promise to Abram that he would make of him a great nation been fulfilled? (38) In how many important respects have Abram and his descendants been a blessing to the world? (39) Verse 3—What nations in the past have persecuted the Jews, and what punishment has God inflicted upon them as a result? (40) Has the promise, "In these shall all families of the earth be blessed," been fulfilled and if so, how? (41) Verse 4—If Abram had been in doubt about obeying God and had delayed his departure, what probably would have been the result? (42) At what age is a man too old to start for a new country or take up a new enterprise to better his condition? Why? (43) Verse 5—When we have anything good from the Lord, why ought we to be anxious to share with others (This may be one of the questions which may be answered in writing by members of the club.) (44) If a man says he is on the road to the heavenly Canaan and takes no person with him, what would be your assumption? (45) When grounds for certainty have we of reaching the land or attaining the object that God has promised us? (46) If a man starts for heaven, may he, or not, and why, be certain of getting there? (47) Verse 7—Is God as able, and as likely, to appear to us in one place as another? Give your reasons (48) What imagination have you of the way or manner in which God appeared to Abram? (49) Why would you say, or not, that it is a rule with God to frequently repeat his promise to the faithful soul? (50) What is among the first things a good man does when he gets to a new country? (51) Verses 8-9—Is there or not, and why, any place or condition to be attained on earth in which we cannot make further progress? Lesson for Sunday, Feb. 23, 1913. Abram and Lott. Gen. xlii:1-18.

FISH MEASURE IS PASSED BY HOUSE

Important bills will get only half way on their journey. The bill providing for a tax levy of one twentieth of a mill to support county fairs passed the House with little opposition. It provides that any amount under $10,000 left over from the fair may be used on the county roads. The House has begun holding protracted night sessions and in all probability it will be after midnight when it adjourns each night until final adjournment.

STAGNATION.

Woman Ought to Do What Men Have Failed to Do By Dr. FELIX ADLER, Educator

IN the callings and professions woman ought to do what men have failed to do. What is man's failure? It is one sidedness. The men who are engaged in wealth getting—what are they working for? How are they working? They are working as if their ONLY INTEREST IN LIFE WAS TO GATHER MONEY. If men are pursuing art it is art for art's sake and not for the sake of the social value of art. This is ONE SIDEDNESS. Science is pursued today as if it were the ONLY INTEREST IN LIFE. Mere man has not succeeded in reconciling the truth of science and religion, but there will never be a reconciliation until a mind is found to show the truth common to them and which both share. WOMAN HAS ALWAYS BEEN A HARMONIFYING INFLUENCE. Woman has always stood for the unity force, and perhaps she will effect the reconciliation between science and religion. THE GREATEST LACK IN THE INTELLECTUAL FIELD TODAY IS THE "EACH FOR HIMSELF" ATTITUDE—SCIENCE FOR THE SAKE OF SCIENCE, ART FOR ART, LAW FOR LAW, ETC. THIS DIFFERENTIATION IS THE BREEDER OF DISCORD. Motherhood must become a vocation. Motherhood must become INTELLECTUALIZED. Love is to be intellectualized. Love is not to be blind, as it has been. Woman's great desire is to work for the best of her offspring. Is it not enough to desire that, but to KNOW WHAT IT IS? So motherhood must become scientific. It must have a knowledge of the mental life of the baby, of the character of the child. Even after the child has gone to school the mother MUST BE PART OF THE STAFF OF THE SCHOOL.
