DEMAND FOR SPOT HOPS IMPROVING

There is a growing demand for spot hops. With stocks of speculators practically cleaned up, buyers have been forced to go grower-holder. The latter are exceedingly strong in their views regarding the price and for this reason no business of importance has passed recently.

With a lot of March deliveries to be made and yet unbought, the market is in a waiting position. The fact that no hops are available abroad has stimulated interest in the Oregon market, where the only first class hops remaining unsold in the world are said to be held. While California is reported to hold more bales of unsold hops than Oregon growers, the south is said to be so extremely poor that buyers are not inclined to even bid for them as long as they can get the better grade here.

There is little doubt in the minds of the trade that the price of hops in Oregon would be soaring at the present time were it not for the fact that contracts are so badly wanted. The payment of higher prices for spot hops would stimulate the strength in futures and this is one strong reason why brewing interests are inclined to go slow just at the present.

While prices are unchanged in the contract price, 15 cents being offered on all sides. Everyone seems to be interested in contracts but the price available is not meeting with the views of growers generally.

ter. Upon this shallow river scores of the fleet craft are seen, and the swift racers shoot by faster than the fastest trains that ever rolled on rails.

Lake Winnemago, Wisconsin, is another ice yachting center. The Lake Winnemago Ice Yacht association is a highly prosperous organization with a tremendous fleet. Winnemago is thirty-five miles long and sixteen miles wide in places. Its surface usually remains hard for three months in each year, so there is unlimited opportunity for ice yacht sailing.

Few persons except those who have ridden in one have an accurate conception of the appearance of the iceboat. Save for the tall masts and sails it bears little resemblance to the ordinary yacht.

The body of the boat is shaped like a cross with the top part forward. The beam is barely wide enough to bear a couple of inches lying at length.

On the underside extends a long runner, which is usually the keel in the sailboat. The ends of the cross are shod with steel runners about a yard in length. The rudder acts on the same plan as that of the ordinary boat, but is also reinforced with a steel runner, which cuts into the ice in swinging the yacht around.

Once started the boat travels very easily, even in a moderate breeze. Its course is a series of leaps through the air, in each of which the boat rises several inches from the ice and shoots through the air like a flying machine.

The return to the ice is so even and easy that there is not the slightest jar. It is this continual rising and falling at high speed which make ice yachting so attractive.

With all its so called dangers ice yachting has a fascination that cannot be denied, and it is a glorious pastime. With the racers wrapped up in warm clothing and speeding faster and faster, with the air full of electric sparks and the ice sparkling ahead, the glowing cheeks and the flashing eyes of the participants in this sport attest its wholesome nature. To steer in a bitter wind and to stand on the windward side of an iceboat is one of the joys of life.

For some boats records of a mile a minute and less are easy, while in a heavy wind with perfect ice a speed of eighty miles an hour has been accomplished. In fact, there is a wonderful record on the books of five-eighths of a mile in fifteen seconds, or at the rate of a mile in twenty-four seconds, two and one-half miles in a minute, faster than any automobile, aeroplane or any machine has ever annihilated space.

A BIT OF KINDNESS.

"The greatest thing," says some one, "a man can do for his heavenly Father is to be kind to some of his other children." I wonder how it is that we are not all kinder than we are. How much the world needs it! How easily it is done! How instantaneously it acts! How infallibly it is remembered! How superabundantly it pays itself back, for there is no debtor in the world so honorable, so superbly honorable, as love.—Henry Drummond.

An Infallible Test.

Impartial.

An English clergyman, recently settled in a small town in Perthshire, met a farmer's boy while visiting the members of his congregation. In the course of conversation the boy said his parents had an aunt staying with them. The parson, not having much acquaintance with the Scottish language and not quite comprehending what the boy said, asked:

"Then do I understand that your aunt is on your father's side or on your mother's?"

To which the young agriculturist replied:

"Weel, whiles the one an' whiles the t'her, excep' when feyther leathers them bath."—Dundee Advertiser.
