A SHADOW ON IT IS A TRITE SAYING A GREAT NAME that the sons of men of genius, or of talent, are apt to be moral delinquents. Why this should be no physiologist or eugenicist, has ever been able to find out. It has been accepted as a truth, alike as to preachers, orators and authors, in spite of the fact that, if it be a rule at all, it is proved by so many exceptions as to lose its validity. Even the old adage that a preacher's son is always a wild blade is so often disproved that it less quoted than of old. Still, whenever the son of an intellectual goes wrong, the old story of brilliancy leading to degeneracy must have its fling.

No doubt the conviction of Julian Hawthorne at Boston of complicity in a conspiracy to defraud, and his sentence to prison term will give a new vogue to the old tradition. Julian Hawthorne, now 67 years old, is a son of Nathaniel Hawthorne, having been born in Boston in 1846. He himself has attained some note as a writer, while never showing any approach to such literary power as his father displayed in "The Scarlet Letter." He has long been a contributor to many publications of articles which might be called "topical" in nature, showing more of revelancy than of inspiration and little or nothing of the creative art.

Very rarely have the sons of authors fallen to the low estate of Julian Hawthorne when finding the handcuffs slipped upon his hands. Many men born of brilliant fathers in the world of letters, the clergy, the law, politics and other intellectual fields, have shown reflections of the bright spark in "wardward" ways running toward burning candles at both ends, illuminating their noses, or bathing in the light of great white ways. These are moral delinquencies, when carried to excess, and among the sons of men who have been wrecked on such siren shores the children of genius have often been found. But seldom, indeed, has one lived to an advanced age only to bring shame upon an illustrious name. The melancholy which seems, somehow, to be always associated with the name of Nathaniel Hawthorne, grows deeper in the shadow of that of his son.

200 LOSE LIVES IN INDIANA FLOOD

INDIANAPOLIS, March 25.—A statewide flood, appalling in its intensity and terrifying in its swiftness, claimed certainly more than 200 lives, according to fragmentary reports, made nearly 200,000 homeless and has done property damage of more than $20,000,000 in Indiana today and tonight.

The rush of waters caught the state unprepared, and the following desperate fight to save property and life seemed futile.

From Peru came a sudden message that the town was overwhelmed and hundreds drowned before they knew their full peril.

Those females who cry out loudest against the flightiness of their sisters and rebuke their undue encouragement of this man or that would do as much themselves if they had the chance.—William Makepeace Thackeray.

In courting women many dry wood for a fire that will not burn for them.—Honore de Balzac.

A man is in general better pleased when he has a good dinner than when his wife talks Greek.—Samuel Johnson

It Hit Home. "If the high cost of living keeps on the rich themselves will feel the pinch of it."

The speaker was Frank Whitlock, mayor of Toledo. He continued: "I know a Toledo banker who has already begun to retrench. His daughter said to him the other day: "'Father, dear, I need a new spring riding habit. "'Can't afford it," the banker growled. "'But, father, what am I to do without a riding habit? "'Get the walking habit."—New York Tribune.

Mitady's Sleeves. There is the greatest variety in the width and shape of the fashionable sleeves. The overblown armhole and the drooped armhole are smart, and the wrist length sleeve is more generally used at present than the shorter models. The three-quarter and even shorter lengths are not fashionable, however.

A Smoked Ceiling. Smoke from a lamp or gas often soaks the ceiling in one particular spot. It is useful to know that soiled ceilings caused by lamp and gas will be rendered less conspicuous if rubbed over with dry whitening.

WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN didn't land in the White House, the goal of his ambition for so many years, but he did land mighty close to it. Here he is in his office as secretary of state, beyond doubt the right hand man of the Wilson administration, accepted at the start of the term as a power for weal or woe which time alone can reveal. The "Peerless One" faced his diplomatic job with many unsafe paces ahead, including the threatened Mexican shantelment, the Panama canal tolls question and the Cuban difficulties.

Council intends to change the grade of High Street, Oregon City, Oregon, from the center line of Seventh Street to the South line of Third Street from its present established grade to the following grade, to-wit:

Commencing at the center line of Seventh Street and High Street at an elevation of 200 feet, thence on a level grade to the South side of Seventh Street at an elevation of 200 feet.

Thence Southerly on an ascending grade 137 feet at an elevation of 219 feet; thence to the North side of Sixth Street at an elevation of 208.5 feet; thence level to the South side of Sixth Street at an elevation of 208.5 feet.

Thence on an ascending grade 137 feet at an elevation of 217 feet, thence on a descending grade to the North side of Fifth Street at an elevation of 211 feet on the East line of High Street and 212 feet on the West line of High Street; thence on a descending grade to the South side of Fifth Street at an elevation of 210 feet on the East line of High Street.

Thence on a descending grade to the North side of Fourth Street at an elevation of 208 feet on the East side of High Street and 210 feet on the West line of High Street; thence on a level grade to the South side of Fourth Street at an elevation of 208 feet on the East line of High Street, and 210 feet on the West line of High Street.

Thence on an ascending grade 137 feet on the East line of High Street at an elevation of 208.5 feet and on the West line of High Street at an elevation of 210 feet. Thence to the North side of Third Street at an elevation of 210 feet; thence level to the South side of Third Street at an elevation of 210 feet.

Real Immigration Problem Is Distribution

By Rabbi HENRY BERKOWITZ of Philadelphia

THE REAL PROBLEM WHICH CONFRONTS US IS NOT RESTRICTION OF IMMIGRATION, BUT THE DISTRIBUTION OF THE IMMIGRANTS.

America has not yet been discovered by most Americans. Millions have never penetrated beyond the Atlantic seaboard. What we need are MORE PEOPLE WHO HAVE THE READY AND VENTURESOME SPIRIT OF THE PIONEER.

Instead of a helter skelter haphazard migration of the nations let us have a CAREFULLY DIRECTED DISTRIBUTION of the people to the place of SELF SUPPORT AND INDEPENDENCE, and we shall have less need of sustaining charities for those who become helpless and jails for those who become worthless in the present scramble.
