WOMAN SUFFRAGE

The news comes from Washington that a constitutional amendment giving women the right to vote for President and Vice President probably will be brought formally before Congress before the end of the present year with the indorsement of a Senate committee.

In the reorganization of its committees Saturday the Senate revived its inactive woman suffrage committee, increased its membership from five to nine and gave its chairmanship to Senator Thomas of Colorado, a woman suffrage state.

The Senate committee on woman suffrage has hitherto been known as a "minority committee". It has not met for years. Senator Thomas says nation of Miss Frances Louise Holmes as librarian of the Oregon City library. Miss Holmes came to Oregon City a few months ago with recommendations from Miss Isom, librarian of the Portland Public Library. She had held a position in Portland under Miss Isom's direction, and her training in library work covered a period of several years. Leaders in religious and educational work in Oregon City will testify that Miss Holmes made a capable librarian; that she was eager to assist seekers after knowledge; that her manner was pleasant, and that she had plans to make the local library popular with the working classes.

It is evident, however, that Miss Holmes, as a librarian, was not satisfactory to some of the members of the Board of Directors, and her resignation followed. Since the organization of the library association, she was the only librarian who had experience in the work. In view of the fact that the library is supported by the taxpayers money and from contributions from the business men of the city, it would seem that the directors should offer some explanation to the public of the real cause that led Miss Holmes to sever her connections with the institution.

Good form

The other day I visited a relative, said a woman recently, and after climbing up dark stairs groped blindly around in the dark for matches and the place where I remembered the gas jet to be. Needless to say, I bruised myself to pieces, for the house is comparatively new to me, and the "guest room" evidently has been allowed to take care of itself. And that was not all. I had been persuaded to stay overnight; consequently I had no traveling case, and in the morning I was in sad need of pins, which were not to be found in the guest room. Of course I was polite, and the surprise of the hostess was great when I asked for them after knocking at her door. She never thought about pins! And didn't she put the matches upstairs?

THE RESIGNATION No little commotion of Miss Holmes' resignation resulted from the apparently sudden resignation of her.

Only Trained Men Should Hold Public Office

By Dr. SAMUEL CHILES MITCHELL

President of the University of South Carolina

THE FACT THAT OUR UNIVERSITIES ARE THE MOST DEMOCRATIC GROUND IN AMERICA FITS THEM WELL TO BE THE RECRUITING STATIONS FOR PUBLICISTS. MEN OF ALL CLASSES, POOR AND RICH, THROUGH AMERICAN UNIVERSITIES, WHEREIN MERIT IS THE SOLE MEASURE OF THE MAN.

For the tree to be healthy the sap must flow freely from the root through the trunk to all the branches. So must it be with the men who are going to affect vitally public opinion and political action. They must SPRING FROM THE BOSOM OF THE PEOPLE. The statesman is a man of UNCOMMON ABILITY WITH COMMON OPINIONS. His heart must throb responsively to the multitude, for, as Emerson said, great ideas incarnate themselves in the multitude.

In suggesting that we need schools for statesmen as we have had schools for prophets, for physicians, for engineers, for lawyers and for journalists it may be asked whether any definite career awaits the publicist as a certain door opens to the physician, lawyer or engineer. CAN THE PUBLICIST EXPECT A CAREER? Democracy is government by INFLUENCE RATHER THAN BY OFFICE. Under a monarchy one must hold office to exert influence, and his influence is the more effective the nearer he stands to the king.

For this reason the most coveted place under Louis XIV. was the privilege of handing his robe to the king in the morning when he made his toilet, for then one could whisper his request into the sovereign's own ear. But in a democracy we must distinguish between office and influence. Offices are few. Sometimes office fetters. But the glory of popular government is that EVERY MAN COUNTS according to his character and capacity for leadership in molding public opinion.

Public opinion is sovereign, and whoever gives impulse to public opinion has a decisive part in shaping policies and making laws. Office is for the few; INFLUENCE IS FOR ALL. This fact sets free the energy in the will of every American citizen and gives value to his initiative and directive power. It should be noted, however, that specific CAREERS ARE MULTIPLYING FOR THE PUBLICIST.

Yes, All the World Loves a Lover; Here Are a Royal Pair of Them

TWO happy young people indeed. You can see them like this the world over, but what makes this picture interesting is the fact that the girl is none other than Princess Victoria Louise, only daughter of the German emperor, and the young man is her fiance, Prince Ernst Augustus. They were snapped strolling in Carlsruhe on the day their engagement was announced. Their clasped hands and their smiling faces would seem to disprove the reports that the alliance was made for reasons of state and not for love. Prince Ernst is the Duke of Cumberland's only son. They are accompanied by Prince Oscar of Prussia.

Good Form in Clothes

A woman has reached the height of her ability in carrying her clothes if she can reach the point where she knows she is all right and can forget about her appearance and enjoy herself in the pleasure of the moment. Lots of women can forget how they look when they ought to remember, and others remember how they look so poignantly that they are continually posing, whereas the woman who rightly feels that she is appropriately and comfortably dressed without the dread of something coming apart or becoming disarranged is a happy mortal and a rare one.

Self-consciousness is a very difficult failing to overcome, and it requires perseverance to overcome it. Some women pose, others talk very fast, again others are speechless, and still others acquire little mannerisms such as wrinkling the forehead, twitching the veil, clearing the throat, and so on. But nearly always these things can be traced to the image either in an actual mirror or in the mental picture which every one has of oneself.

It can be largely overcome by learning how to carry oneself. Dancing, gymnastics, lessons in deportment, all these things help.

Beware of Extremes.

Too much of anything means a lack of balance, a lack of refinement. Look around you. The refined characters are those that are well rounded, evenly developed, beautifully balanced. An extreme emphasis of any one thing be it in manners, ideas or dress, immediately places the person out of a class and may get attention never admiration from thoughtful beings.

Look over your own things carefully.

If you take steps to regain the right proportions. Discard the hat, the shoes, the perfume that make you "noticable". The type of notice that is accorded extremes is not the kind that any right minded woman values. It may be just a lack of thought on your part. Well, here is a time to follow up a thought with an action.

A Poor Prophet.

Conan Doyle told of an experience which he had when leaving school. His teacher must have been one of those noble old Romans such as Thackeray describes as "caring at young Penderis when the major, his uncle, called to take the boy away. When Conan Doyle had finished his course in school the head master called him aside and, after eying him with ominous disfavor, spoke to him in measured tones as follows: "Doyle, I have known you now for seven years, and I know you thoroughly. I am going to say something which you will remember in after life. Doyle, you will never come to any good." -Hookman.

Physicians Failed To Help Mrs. Green, But She Finally Found Relief in Cardui.

Meetze, Va.—Mrs. J. C. Green of this place, says: "I suffered with womanly troubles so that I could hardly sit up. Two of the best doctors in our town treated me, and I tried different medicines, until I gave up all hope of ever getting well. One day, I decided to try some Cardui. It did so much for me that I ordered some more, and it cured me! Today, I feel as well as I ever did in my life. The pains and the trouble are all gone. I feel like another person in every way. I wish every sufferer could know what Cardui will do for sick women."

A few doses of Cardui at the right time, will save many a big doctor bill, by preventing serious sickness. It tones up the nervous system, and helps make pale cheeks fresh and rosy. Thousands of weak women have been restored to health and happiness by using Cardui. Suppose you try it. It may be just the medicine you need.

"All Clear Gain!"

The earliest recorded royal marriage at St. James, says Archdeacon Sinclair in "The Chapels Royal," was that of William and Mary, in 1677. The bride was very reluctant, for she had set her heart on a handsome young Scots lord, and she wept for two days when her destiny was announced. Charles II., who was present at the wedding, "covered the unwillingness of the bride with sprightly remarks." When William endowed his bride with all his worldly goods he put a handful of gold and silver coins on the book, whereupon Charles told his niece to gather it up and put it all in her pocket, for it was all clear gain.
